SINGAPORE HOLDS ALL THE ORIENT.

England's Island City on the Equator the Home of Every Race in the Tropics.

SPRING ALL YEAR ROUND.

Rain Falls Every Day in the Afternoon, and the Sun Never Relents in Its Energy.

[BY ELIZA R. SCIDMORE.]

SINGAPORE, Feb. 21.—We reached Singapore too late to enter the harbor and were obliged to anchor outside until daylight, within sight of all its twinkling electric lights, and were eager to get ashore in the morning when the dawn revealed the glorious panorama of verdure spread out before us.

Singapore had received its winter rainy spell all in one fortnight at the end of January and the first days of February, when it had poured torrents night and day—seven inches and a fraction in one twenty-four hours—and the great greenhouse of an island was at its best for verdure and blossom.

The grass was everywhere green velvet, there was not one dusty leaf in sight, and the hedges of crotons, the tall poinsetta bushes, the hibiscus trees, and the great green, glittering bo trees were everywhere a delight. The sun scorched, but the wind blew fresh from the water, and if one sat idle in the shade where the breeze blew he might wonder that any one called it hot.

The humidity told, however, and if he made the least effort, climbed the long stairs to the steamship or the telegraph office, he believed all that story about the millions of pores in the human skin. Singapore puts every pore in the body to work, and, being so nearly on the line of the equator, it keeps them at work the year round.

There is no respite, nor change of seasons; no dry time or cold weather, although at some seasons it is wetter than at others—at the change of the monsoon and in midwinter. Otherwise, there is a shower on nearly every day of the year, rain slipping down suddenly and quietly from any innocent looking cloud, and the sun shining out quickly on the freshened foliage.

Despite the heat, the steam, and the monotony of the unchanging tropical summer, Europeans live and thrive in Singapore. One meets Englishmen, and Scotchmen particularly, who have spent ten and twenty years in the Straits, and are prize specimens of robust manhood.

Everywhere in the tropics the Scotch are the most numerous and the most active members of the British communities. Banks and business houses are full of them, the civil service of these hot colonies and the telegraph service are recruited from young Scotchmen, who stand the climate and enjoy the life, and joyfully return from shivering visits home. They lead active lives, too, far beyond the exertion of the leisurely day of easy hours downtown, they put in vigorous rides at sunrise and do much golf, tennis, and cricket during the short afternoons. The Singapore day varies only from six minutes before 6 to six minutes after 6 the year round, and a watch can be set by the dropping of the sun.

British ownership has brought to the little island the most perfect roads and model municipal order. All the heterogeneous collection of heathen that prosper so under British rule are made to observe certain elementary sanitary regulations, and the dreaded plague has never gained a permanent hold. A great system of wharves and docks stretches for two miles below the city proper, and the mail steamers of great European lines have each their berth and coal sheds.

On the hard metaled road over which one drives to the business quarter of the city he passes more differing specimens of humanity probably than in any other drive he may ever take. All the glamour of the east besets one there, and the sight of the crowds of jet black Tamil coolies on their slender, slender pipe stem legs carries one at once to southern India.

⁂

The Tamil coolie seems leaner and lanker, blacker and blacker, every time one sees him; and in Singapore he carries the white man's and the brown man's burdens, works on the roads, drives bullock carts, and with the Chinese loads, unloads, and coals ships. A scrap of red or white cloth around his waist, a larger scrap wound round and round his head or draped splendidly over head and shoulders suffices for clothing the year round.

For 20 silver cents a day he stands in the sun and swings a pickax whose handle is just as thick as his long storklike legs, and whose weight seems fairly to overbalance his body; or, he stands, a picturesque silhouette against a cart load of white flour bags and directs a pair of humped bullocks, who look and tread as if in a religious procession.

⁂

The Moorman and Arab are here; the mixed Portuguese and native people are many; and everywhere, all around, are the inevitable, omnipresent, outnumbering Chinese. Chinese pull the jinrikishas, serve one in the hotel, in shops and offices, and a cloud of them are in the streets, on the wharves, have absorbed all the retail trades, and are general purveyors to all the other races assembled.

⁂

It was but a brief and literally feverish day that was spent in Singapore; for to get off the old ship, read the war news, and be on with the new ship was quite enough, without everything being on the point of closing for the two days of the Chinese New Year.

All Chinatown was being put in shape, decorated, lanterned, and red papered for the great holiday; gala costumes were being donned by the children, and the yellow fathers were having their heads shaved and their ears probed at every recess, doorway, and shady rest place the peripatetic barber could find. Every shopkeeper was keen for bargaining, and one might fairly dictate prices if he wished to buy Cantonese goods and the cheap Japanese goods which the Chinese shopkeepers so largely deal in. "You go see pearl shop?" asked one dealer, ready to take us around to the pawnbroker's last bargain sale of the year, but "button," and "blister," and baroque pearls could not tempt when there were orchids in bloom far out one shady avenue.

IS IT WATERLOO FOR J. J. HILL?

St. Paul's Railway King in Desperate Battle for Control of Transcontinental Lines.

ASK COURTS TO UMPIRE.

Great Northern's President Tells How He Fought and Won to Build Up the Northwest.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

St. Paul, Minn., April 14.—[Special.]—Hill against Harriman; the north against the south; Puget sound against San Francisco.

Four hundred millions of dollars and the control of two great transcontinental railroad systems and their connections tied up in the Northern Securities jackpot.

Did the Supreme court of the United States mean, when it declared the Northern Securities company an illegal combination, that the pot should be split up evenly among the players, or did it mean that each player should take out exactly the stake he originally put in?

Battle of Railway Giants.

James J. Hill and Pierpont Morgan on one side; Harriman and his allied interests on the other; half a dozen of the greatest corporation lawyers in the country, headed by Elihu Root, J. G. Johnson of Philadelphia, and Francis Lynde Stetson as counsel for Hill and Morgan, and W. D. Guthrie of New York for the Harriman party; four judges of the Circuit court of the United States listening in a packed courtroom for two days to sarcasm, invective, logic, and law delivered by men the fee of each of whom in this single case would probably double the yearly salaries of the four judges on the bench.

Their decision is yet to come. It will certainly decide the control of the Northern Pacific railroad company. And if that control goes into the hands of interests hostile to James J. Hill and the Great Northern railroad system it may ultimately mean also the retirement of Mr. Hill from his present position as one of the railroad kings of the country.

May Mean Hill's Retirement.

That threatened retirement is the one great dramatic possibility in the whole situation, for if Hill retires it will only be because he is forced to do so. He has been the uncrowned emperor of the northwest for a quarter of a century. It has been an empire in the making, and Hill feels, with apparent justice, that he has been, in a large part, its creator. If he lays down the scepter now it will be in bitterness. He will feel that he has been the victim of a party of scheming politicians who have betrayed at the same time the best interests of that great section of the country stretching westward from Lake Superior across the continent to Puget sound.

Fights for the Northwest.

It is Hill's position that, in forming the Northern Securities company, he was acting not only for the protection of his own great railroad system but even more directly for the protection of the vast territory which it serves. He feels, too, that the successful attack on the Northern Securities company was the outgrowth of the agitation begun by leading politicians in the states through which the Great Northern railroad runs. He denounces such agitators as "idle persons who insist on dragging business into politics."

He has no charge of ingratitude to bring against the people of the great northwest. He feels that in the mass they are his loyal friends. In confirmation of this feeling there lay on his desk yesterday a sheaf of letters just received, coming from as far west as Washington and from the states between. Each letter announced the surprise and shock of the reader in hearing even the rumor that in certain contingencies Mr. Hill might retire.

Would Like to Retire.

"I have reached that period of life," said Mr. Hill today, as he stood by his desk in the general offices of the Great Northern railroad company, "when I must naturally wish to lift from my shoulders some of the load I have been carrying, and to turn over to younger men for execution some of the plans which I have outlined. I should not wish to do so unless I could leave things in good condition. And I feel they are in splendid condition just now."

He picked up from his desk a little red bound book. It was the tabulated statement of expenses and earnings of the Great Northern railroad system for the last four years. The book contained a list of every station on the Great Northern line, and after each name was written the amount of freight and passenger earnings which that station had turned into the coffers of the Great Northern for each of the last four years. This book is the railroad man's book of results. It is his business bible. It is the thermometer which shows the rising and falling of the tide of prosperity.

How West Has Grown.

Mr. Hill ran a stubby forefinger down the closely written pages of this book. It stopped at Anita, N. D.

"In 1899 Anita contributed $79,000. In 1903 it had jumped to $142,000."

The finger moved on to Minot, N. D.

"In 1899, $124,000; in 1903, $391,000."

Mr. Hill stopped and smiled. It is a trick he has to drive home and emphasize the points he is making.

"Souris, N. D. In 1902, $176,000; in 1903, $280,000. You see, that town is only two years old."

He ran rapidly through the book, thumbing the pages and stopping now and then as the name of some particular station caught his eye.

"Odessa, Wash. In 1890 the freight and passenger receipts at this station were $9,000. In 1903 they were $122,000."

It was the same all through. At hundreds of stations the increase in freight and passenger receipts had doubled within the four years. In many cases the increase was tenfold.

"What does it mean?" he asked. "It means that the country is prosperous, that it is growing, that people are moving back and forth, and that the products of the country are increasing enormously.

"And yet," he added, scornfully, "they say we are restraining trade and choking off competition."

Mr. Hill is 66 years old. He is likely, in any event, to retire before many years from his present position of active director of the Great Northern system.

But such a retirement would not mean that

HITS "BIG" GAMBLERS.

Grand Jury Votes to Indict 'Mont' Tennes, O'Leary, and King.

LEAK IN BARRETT'S OFFICE.

Injunction Sought Against Removal of Telephones; More Raids.

The police are declared to have "made good" in their efforts to secure the indictment of some of the so-called "big gamblers" who are backing the poolrooms of Chicago. The names of several of these men are said to be included in a list of two dozen indictments which the special grand jury will return into Judge Kersten's court this morning. The bills were voted on the evidence presented by Assistant Chief Schuettler's men on Wednesday evening.

Some of the indictments, which include the charges of handbook making and conducting common gaming houses, comprise several defendants and the total of persons caught in the grand jury net is said to be almost double the number of indictments. The bills were drawn in the state's attorney's office yesterday, the work being surrounded by as much secrecy as was observed by the detectives in going before the jury.

"Big Gamblers" Are on List.

Standing out in relief from the names of the smaller fry on the list of defendants are said to be the following well known in racetrack and gambling circles:

"MONT" TENNES, reputed holder of gambling privileges on the north side; listed in the telephone directory as proprietor of four saloons and a cigar store; holder of a liquor license for saloon at 143 North Clark street, which was revoked by Mayor Harrison on Tuesday, alleged to control a system of handbooks throughout the north side, which he supplies with gambling information over private telephone exchanges.

JAMES O'LEARY, whose "winter book" on the American Derby and heavy betting on municipal and national election results have made his name familiar throughout the country; former proprietor of saloon, restaurant, gambling, bowling, and billiard halls, 4187 Halsted street.

"PATSY" KING, formerly reputed to rank with "Al" Adams of New York as a policy magnate and said to be financial backer of "Billy" Skidmore's west side handbook system. King was arrested in a raid on Skidmore's rooms at 189 West Madison street.

The list is believed to include Skidmore, who is a member of the democratic county central committee and was in attendance at one of its meetings when his gambling rooms were raided.

Saloonkeepers May Be the Next.

Indictments also were voted against several of the saloonkeepers whose licenses Mayor Harrison revoked on Tuesday on the theory that they had guilty knowledge of the operation of handbooks in their places of business. The saloon men in the mayor's list were:

Paul Guse, holder of license for saloon at 499 Lincoln avenue, until recently run under the name of "Mont" Tennes.

S. W. Clute and Nicholas Ambrosi, 200 Halsted street.

Robert C. Nelson, 207 West Madison street.

W. A. McCarthy, 6058 Cottage Grove avenue.

L. W. Schaefer, 3056 State-st.

Dennis Foley, 79 Halsted street.

"Leak" in Sheriff's Office.

Consternation was caused in the sheriff's office in the Criminal Court building yesterday afternoon, when eleven men, whose names are said to be included in the indictment list, appeared with their attorney and offered to give bonds.

"Who told you that indictments had been secured against you?" asked Chief Deputy Sheriff Byrnes.

"I was notified by telephone by some one who said he was in the sheriff's office," said one, and the others told similar stories.

"I have no capiases for you," said Byrnes. "I have no information that you are indicted, and certainly no one under orders from me sent you any such a tip."

The visitors went away, and the sheriff instituted an investigation as to who was sending out such warnings. Whether other indicted persons got similar information and left the city is not known.

Telephone Users Will Sue.

The threatened war on the Chicago Telephone company because of its attempts to terminate contracts with lessees of telephones, reported by Mayor Harrison as being used for gambling, broke yesterday in the service upon President Arthur G. Wheeler of two injunction notices. In each the telephones company was warned that an injunction to restrain it from interfering with a telephone would be asked of Judge Dunne this morning. One was from George B. Harding, 823 Larrabee street, and one from Charles C. Hoffman, 94 Van Buren street.

The company's men were locked out yesterday when they attempted to dismantle a switchboard in a building not a block from the city hall.

More Raids Are Made by the Police.

Raids were made by the police yesterday as follows:

46 Congress street, cigar store, John Hughes keeper.

5356 Halsted street, saloon, John Brodie keeper.

Rooms 412 and 414 old Inter Ocean building, William Loomis, keeper, and four inmates.

Room 504 same building, John Kelly, keeper.

264 Chicago avenue, saloon of W. F. O'Donnell, John Roach and eleven inmates.

COLORADO SHERIFF COOLS MOB BY SHOW OF FORCE.

Attempt at Central City to Lynch Murderer of Woman and Child Brought to Sudden Halt.

Central City, Colo., April 14.—A mob has surrounded the jail here and demanded Azel D. Galbraith, the self-confessed murderer of his wife and 9 year old boy. Near midnight the jail was surrounded, but Sheriff Cody, who had armed about twenty deputies with rifles, announced that he would kill any man who attempted to enter the jail and this checked the mob. The jail is still surrounded.

BONDAGE HIS REFUGE

Union Business Agent Wants Ten Years of Peonage.

FEARS POVERTY IN OLD AGE.

T. P. Quinn, Orator and Theorist, Says There Is "Nothing in It."

T. P. Quinn wants to go to work. After an experience covering several years as business agent of the Solicitors and Canvassers' union, as federation of labor orator, and as writer of fervid resolutions for public meetings, he announced yesterday that he was ready to engage in manual toil. The other sort of occupation, he said, had proved a delusion and a snare, and he was anxious to obtain something that could be counted on to provide for old age.

But Quinn admitted he did not know what to "go at." He also confessed that he felt his training in his business agent career had unfitted him for directing his own affairs. Wherefore he made this proposition:

Seeks Ten Years of Bondage.

"I will agree to work for ten years for any man," he said "at any task he may put me at on these terms: No money is to be paid me during the term, but I am to be provided with my board and clothing; at the end of the ten years I am to receive forty acres of land in payment for my services.

"As I want my compensation to be in land, I would prefer that my work be on a farm. I will agree to do my best, although I will not work more than eight hours a day. That is the proper limit set by the unions and it is enough even for the farm.

"To the man who will consider my proposition I will agree that during the life of the contract I will not swear or use tobacco or liquor in any form. I have no bad habits to take up 'spending money,' and so I can get along without it. I do not require change to put in the collection box, for I will pledge myself not to attend church once."

Wants Placid, Pastoral Place.

Quinn said that he would like some gentle, plodding task, like herding sheep or gardening, so that his meditations on sociological problems should go on uninterrupted. The stir of cattle raising on a large scale would ruffle his sensibilities, he believed, and the labor connected with grain and hay raising would be too arduous.

"There is no hope for a man who does not own land," he said. "If he works on a salary he cannot get ahead enough to be independent. I know I have always preached against the existing social system and called the wage earners slaves. Still, I do not think it inconsistent for me to offer to enter into bondage for a period. I would be guaranteed some definite return at the end of the period, and that is more than I could hope for under my own management of my income."

Quinn was author of the reply of the federation to the invitation of the crime committee, which solicited the coöperation of the labor organization. The responsibility for social injustice and crime was there laid upon the property owners of the community. The business agent was active in the massmeetings in the interest of John Turner, the English anarchist who was detained on Ellis island, New York.

Anarchist Turner Is Coming.

Turner, it was reported yesterday, is to be in Chicago all next week. Quinn and other supporters of the English agitator are making plans for his appearance in several meetings in the city. He will speak to workingmen, it is expected, Sunday evening at Uhlich's hall, 27 North Clark street, and he may address trades union members in the afternoon at Bricklayers' hall.

KINGKOW, Thursday, via Tientsin, Thursday, 11:45 a. m., eastern time.—The train from Port Arthur did not arrive here yesterday, owing to the destruction of bridges.

Is Togo Using Submarines.

PARIS, April 15, 3:20 a. m.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo de Paris, under this morning's date, sends the following:

"It is learned that a firm opinion prevails in naval circles, based on telegrams from the surviving officers, that the loss of the Petropavlovsk and the injuries to the Pobieda were caused by torpedoes launched by the Japanese and by submarine vessels.

"Hitherto it has not been believed that the Japanese had any submarine boats, but it is now admitted that such boats might have been received with the cruisers bought from Argentina and brought out from Genoa by British crews.

"It is difficult to verify this, but the admiralty is of the opinion that the cruisers brought out two submarine vessels."

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—The loss of the torpedo boat destroyer Bezstrashni, with forty-five officers and men, and the disaster to the battleship Pobieda, added to the destruction of the battleship Petropavlovsk, have simply stunned the Russian people. Summed up, the losses in Wednesday's disaster were:

PETROPAVLOVSK, battleship; sunk; 596 officers and men perished, including Vice Admiral Makaroff, Vice Admiral Molas, and thirteen officers of the general staff; Grand Duke Cyril, Capt. Jakovleff, three lieutenants, two midshipmen, and fifty-two sailors saved.

BEZSTRASHNI, torpedo boat destroyer; sunk in battle with Japanese warships; forty-five officers and men perished or captured; five men saved.

POBIEDA, battleship; seriously damaged by torpedo or mine; able to reach harbor under own steam; no one killed or injured.

Verestchagin May Be Lost.

Vassili Verestchagin, the Russian painter, was Vice Admiral Makaroff's guest on the Petropavlovsk. It is reported that he was lost with the ship.

Nicholas T. Kravtchenko, the well known Russian literary man, who was acting as a newspaper correspondent at Port Arthur, it is believed went down with the Petropavlovsk. Telegrams to him remain unanswered.

Details Are Held Back.

These facts are all that the news censors have permitted the public to know. Voluminous dispatches have been received from Port Arthur; but their contents are a secret. No one knows yet, officially, just what happened in the vicinity of Port Arthur on Wednesday morning. It is admitted that the Russian warships are at the bottom of the ocean, that two vice admirals and hundreds of men have perished. But Rusisan officials refuse to admit that there was a battle with the Japanese fleet. There is not a word about any attack on Port Arthur itself.

There is a general fear that there is more bad news to come.

Official News Is Meager.

The official dispatch bringing the news of the disaster to the Pobieda was sent by Admiral Prince Ouktomsky. He says:

"During some maneuvering of the battleship squadron the Pobieda struck against a mine admidships on the starboard side. It was able to regain port by itself. No one on board of it was filled or wounded."

Battleship Sunk in Battle.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, April 15, 3 a. m.—Little by little the news is coming from Port Arthur to prove that the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk was sunk by Japanese torpedoes, discharged in battle.

The Daily Mail's Chefoo correspondent declares that advices from both Russian and Japanese sources indicate that the battleship Petropavlovsk was torpedoed. By a pretense of an attack on the harbor by the enemy, Admiral Makaroff, says the correspondent, was enticed outside for the Japanese torpedo boats, which crept behind him and awaited his return and dealt the blow as he was nearing the harbor on the return.

Fight Began Night Before.

A news agency dispatch from Port Arthur by way of St. Petersburg says that after a fierce fight between torpedo boats on the night of April 12 the squadron went out in the morning into the roads and took up combat with fourteen large Japanese vessels. At 10:20 in the morning, as the result of an explosion, the battleship Petropavlovsk sank.

The battleship Pobieda, to which Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky had transferred his flag, the dispatch continues, is damaged on the water line.

Says Jap Fleet Escaped.

The enemy, the correspondent concludes, attempted to escape, and an open fight resulted at a distance of forty-five cable lengths. The Russian squadron ran back into the harbor under command of Prince Ouktomsky.

The Chefoo correspondent of the Daily Express says a Chinese vessel which has just arrived there reports there now is no trace of the Japanese fleet outside Port Arthur. Other reports confirm the impression that Admiral Togo has gone to his base to refit, as some of its vessels must have suffered damage.

Panic at Port Arthur.

A dispatch to the Express from Newchwang says the naval disaster on Wednesday completely demoralized the defenders of Port Arthur. The confidence inspired by Admiral Makaroff has entirely evaporated. The gloomiest forebodings are expressed regarding the fate of the stronghold in view of the possibility of Admiral Togo following up his advantage with another attack.

Russia's Naval Power Gone.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, April 15, 3 a. m.—Russia's naval power in far eastern waters is annihilated. The possibility of a diversion by the Baltic squadron is removed, and Port Arthur practically is at the mercy of the enemy. These are the results of the latest Japanese successes, upon which English naval and military authorities lay most stress.

The death of Admiral Makaroff is regarded as an irreparable loss to Russia. Tributes to his memory from Englishmen multiply. Admiral Sir E. R. Fremantle writes in this morning's Chronicle:

"Tell for the brave. In this country our sympathies are with our ally, but throughout the civilized world there will be felt the loss in death of that able, accomplished, and gallant sailor and good man, Admiral Makaroff."

Sunk by the Japs.

Admiral Fremantle is inclined to share the view widely held here, that the sinking of the Petropavlovsk was done by Japanese agency. He says:

"If the Petropavlovsk was blown up in shallow water, how are we to account for the small number saved? This looks as if the ship had gone down in deep water, and it is worth remarking that Admiral Gregorevitch speaks of the ship having struck a mine, which exploded and the vessel capsized.

Capsizing a Strange Feature.

"This capsizing is decidedly strange if the ship was in shallow water and close to port, and we know that the Russians use the same word for 'mine' or 'torpedo.' This gives some color to the report that the Petropavlovsk was sunk by Japanese torpedoes.

"If the ship was moving at high speed toward Port Arthur a torpedo striking well forward and filling one or two compartments might well cause the ship to capsize suddenly, as in the case of the Victoria, in which case any Russian ship near would be only able to save a few men, though others might have been saved by the Japanese."

Japs Injure Pobieda, Too.

Rear Admiral Ingles also thinks this likely, while the Daily Telegraph, to which he contributes, says, apropos of Alexieff's report of the battleship Pobieda being injured by striking a mine during the maneuvers:

"It seems more probable that the Pobieda, like the Petropavlovsk, was torpedoed in action, but succeeded in making back to harbor.

Only One Ship Uninjured.

"Of the whole Port Arthur squadron, as it existed at the commencement of hostilities, only a single battleship, the Peresviet, remains unscathed and fully serviceable for sea. All the cruisers but one have been struck and holed at one time or another.

"It is now clear," the article continues, "that the disaster in which Admiral Makaroff met his death was indirectly brought about by the reduction of the Russian squadron's speed through previous Japanese successes. For weeks it has been Admiral Togo's sole aim to give his adversaries hope enough to tempt a brave but weakened enemy to sea.

Japs Superior in Speed.

"When the Bayan was rescued Tuesday morning from the clutches of the Japanese warships, which were hounding it down, Makaroff came out in full strength in the vain hope of bringing an inferior force to action, but the Japanese used their superior speed to keep ahead, gradually drawing their pursuers far out. Makaroff suddenly found himself in the presence of an overwhelming force and was at once compelled to turn, with the Japanese fleet straining every nerve to close upon his rear. His flight must have been precipitate. The squadron speed of his slowest vessels must have caused terrible anxiety before producing the fatal consequences.

Faced Jap Fleet Alone.

"Before all these ships could make their way through the narrow channel the Russian rear was overhauled by the swifter enemy. Makaroff's flagship put back in a gallant effort to shield his laggards, and it was then that the Petropavlovsk came within torpedo range.

"Then in one appalling moment came one of the most terrific scenes in the records of war. The flagship was seen from shore to blaze out like a brazier. One vast sheet of flame shot upwards before the echoes of the crash and thunder of its doom rolled ashore. In the same instant the whole massive hulk turned over bodily and was gone, with all the fraughting souls within it.

"The Pobieda may have been struck just before or soon afterwards and the isolated destroyer remained to be cracked like an egg and sent to the bottom."

French and Holland Bankers Go to St. Petersburg to Consult with the Russian Minister of Finance.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

PARIS, April 14.—The Frankfurter Zeitung Wednesday evening stated that Hottinguer and Noetzline, representing the Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas, have gone to St. Petersburg to conduct important business. In well informed financial circles it is today asserted that there is question of a large Russian loan. There is reason to believe that in view of the fact that the Russian government still possesses a gold reserve of about 1,000,000,000 rubles (about $500,000,000) the Russian minister of finance will not consent to a loan at a price which may adversely affect the actual quotations of former loans. There is no doubt that as the loan will amount to a billion francs ($200,000,000) all the leading financiers in Paris, Berlin, and Holland will take an interest in the issue.

RUSSIANS DENY CREDIT TO JAPS.

Official Version of Loss of Petropavlovsk Given Out at St. Petersburg.

CLING TO MINE THEORY.

Makaroff and His Staff at Breakfast When the Battleship Was Destroyed.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—What is practically the Russian version of the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur was given out tonight and it clears up to a great extent the mysterious features of that vessel's destruction. This version is as follows:

Retiring before the advance of a superior Japanese fleet, which was not fighting its progress, the Russian squadron approached the entrance to the harbor. It was shortly after 8 o'clock in the morning, and most of the officers and members of the crew were at breakfast on the flagship.

Makaroff at Breakfast.

Vice Admiral Makaroff was eating breakfast in his cabin and the wardroom was crowded with officers surrounding the tables. On the bridge Grand Duke Cyril, his friend, Lieut. von Kobe, Capt. Jakovleff, commanding the vessel, and two other officers were on watch examining the narrow entrance preparatory to entering it.

At about 8:30 o'clock there was a terrific explosion of the boilers, followed a few seconds later by a detonation from the well stored magazines.

Huge gaps were torn in the hull of the ship and the water rushed in. The center of gravity having gone, the ship rolled on its side and sank.

All information tends to prove that a mine was responsible for the destruction of the Petropavlovsk.

No One Below Deck Alive.

The scene below will never be described, as, so far as known, not a single person between decks succeeded in escaping. The hot steam which scalded the men on deck indicated what must have been the character of the death met by those in the engine room. The men on deck were thrown in all directions, those falling into the water swimming and grasping the wreckage, to which some of them were able to cling.

The remainder of the squadron immediately stopped and lowered small boats, and the torpedo boats steamed as quickly as possible to the rescue of the survivors.

The exact number of Vice Admiral Makaroff's staff on board the Petropavlovsk when it sank is unknown, but it is thought by the admiralty to be probably fifteen or sixteen. The exact number of the crew lost is also unknown. The Petropavlovsk had a complement of about 650, of which fifty-two were saved at last accounts.

Deny Credit to Japs.

Admiral Urius' statement that Admiral Togo's fleet was responsible for the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur is officially denied here. A member of the general's staff says that the advices received do not show that a naval engagement took place, unless the cornering and sinking of the torpedo boat destroyer Bezstrashni can be so denominated.

The destroyer and four consorts were outside scouting during the night. The Bezstrashni lagged behind and became lost in the mist. When day broke it tried to creep in along the coast, but was discovered, cut off, overpowered, and sunk, only five of the crew escaping. The fate of the other members of the crew is unknown, although it is believed that some of them may have been captured.

RUSSIA'S DAY OF MOURNING.

Czar and People Weep Over the Loss of Admiral Makaroff and His Sailors.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—Such a day of mourning has not been known since the war began. At the Admiralty church and the St. Isaac and Kazan cathedrals solemn services for the dead were held. It is said when the emperor received the news of the sinking of the Petropavlovsk yesterday he wept. Today the people weep with their monarch. Black rimmed obituary notices of Admiral Makaroff appear in all the papers.

The curt official dispatch seems to give absolute denial to such an idea, yet among the more intelligent classes is found the suggestion which is more than ever today prevailing that there is a great deal more behind the scenes than has been announced, and that the truth has not been heard.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—The aspect of the streets today is unchanged. Notwithstanding the disasters to the navy the merrymaking of Easter holiday week went on as usual. The popular theaters were crowded, despite the fact that newsboys at their doors were selling papers containing the official announcement of the damage to the Pobieda and the loss of the Bezstrashni.

This seeming indifference is not shared in aristocratic and official quarters. There was a requiem service at the Admiralty church today in memory of those who lost their lives by the sinking of the Petropavlovsk, attended by crowds of worshipers, clad in mourning, among whom was the whole diplomatic body. Father John officiated at a similar service at Cronstadt. Archbishop Justim solemnized a requiem mass at the cathedral at Odessa. There also was a service at Nicolaieff, where Admiral Makaroff was born.

FLOATING MINES IN DISFAVOR.

German Naval Experts Doubt Wisdom of Russian Methods of Defending Port Arthur.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

BERLIN, April 14.—The catastrophe to the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk has created a tremendous sensation here, and fuller details are eagerly awaited. The Lokal Anzeiger's Paris correspondent sends a dispatch that the Petropavlovsk was torpedoed, but other journals still stick to the mine theory.

Able experts are beginning to be of the opinion that floating mines are an unsatisfactory means of defense. The present war has shown that on two occasions they may be equally dangerous to both belligerents. The well known naval critic, Count Redenglow, in this evening's Tageblatt says:

"Though it has yet to be determined whether the floating mine was Russia's or Japan's, the probability is it was one set by the defenders, which the ocean currents or pressure of melting ice had driven into the fairway. The loss to the Russian fleet is considerable, but almost insignificant in comparison with that occasioned by the death of Admiral Makaroff, who, in his brief command, already had infused new life into the forces he led."

FAMOUS PAINTER DROWNED IN SINKING OF RUSSIAN BATTLESHIP AT PORT ARTHUR.

VASILI VERESTCHAGIN.

Verestchagin, the Russian painter of war scenes, who went down with the Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, was in the far east to paint battles and was the guest of Admiral Makaroff. He was one of the world's greatest painters. He painted war scenes with the idea of showing up the horrors of warfare, and succeeded. He was awarded the Nobel peace prize for the work which the Swedish academy recognized his realistic pictures were doing in the cause of peace.

Verestchagin was born in 1842 at Teherepovets, in Novgorod, Russia. The son of a Russian landed proprietor, he was sent to a naval academy when 8 years old and graduated at the age of 17 years. Instead of entering the military service he went to Paris and studied art under Gérôme. In 1867 he went through the Turkoman campaign with Kauffmann, participating in all the engagements, that he might know what war really was before he attempted to depict it on canvas. Since then he had been following the armies of many nations.

He took part in the campaign of the Caucasus and the Russo-Turkish war, and was in the hottest of the fighting at Plevna. He painted a cycle of twenty paintings of the Russo-Turkish war, a similar cycle on India, and another on the Spanish-American war. In the Philippines he camped with Gens. MacArthur and Lawton, and the best known of his Philippine pictures is "Lawton's Last Fight." Another picture famous in America is "The Charge of Roosevelt's Rough Riders at San Juan." The realism of his pictures was illustrated at Buffalo, where the horror expressed in the figure of a single soldier caused a mother with a son in the Philippines to swoon.

Verestchagin visited the United States several times, first in 1888, and in December, 1901, an exhibition of his pictures was held in Chicago. While here that winter he occupied the pulpit of All Souls' Independent church, and preached a sermon on war, whose effect on society he compared to the effect of an ever opening and ever recurring wound upon the body of a human being.

Verestchagin also painted wars and historical scenes which took place before his birth and centuries back, and these pictures alone would have made him famous, notably his series representing Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. His painting of the crucifixion of Christ is one of the most famous pictures of that tragedy of history.

Verestchagin counted among his personal friends and companions the most noted Russian naval and military men of the last half century. Admiral Makaroff, with whom he died, he had known since the Turko-Russian war, when Makaroff earned fame by blowing up the Turkish fleet. Gen. Skobeloff was one of his most intimate friends, the companion of many hard marches.

TOGO CLAIMS A VICTORY.

MIKADO'S OFFICER SAYS HIS FLEET SUNK CZAR'S SHIPS.

Admiral Uriu in Dispatch to Tokio Asserts That Japanese Fleet Attacked Port Arthur—In the Fighting Which Followed the Russian Battleship and Destroyer Were Sent to the Bottom — Regret for Makaroff Is Expressed in All Quarters.

TOKIO, April 14, 5 p. m.—A brief report from Rear Admiral Uriu of Wednesday's fighting off Port Arthur reached the navy department this afternoon. It says Vice Admiral Togo's fleet attacked Port Arthur in the morning and succeeded in sinking a battleship of the Petropavlovsk class and one torpedo boat destroyer. The Japanese sustained no losses. One Japanese was wounded.

The first intimation of the result of Vice Admiral Togo's seventh attack off Port Arthur reached Tokio at 3 o'clock this morning.

The news was received with intense satisfaction, particularly the reported destruction of the battleship Petropavlovsk. There was a note of regret, however, in the comment upon the reported death of Admiral Makaroff, for the Russian admiral commanded the respect of his opponents, and the Japanese admired the manner in which he had rehabilitated the fleet after the first attacks upon Port Arthur and the splendid fight he was making against odds.

The navy department expects advices from Vice Admiral Togo soon. It is known that he left the vicinity of Port Arthur yesterday to return to an unknown base, and it is expected that he will reach telegraphic communication tonight.

SKRYDLOFF TO TAKE COMMAND.

Czar Orders Admiral of the Black Sea Fleet to Go to Port Arthur at Once.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 15, 2 a. m.—Viceroy Alexieff has arrived at Port Arthur and assumed temporary command of the fleet until Vice Admiral Skryloff hoists his flag.

The emperor's choice of a successor to the late Vice Admiral Makaroff as commander in chief of the Russian naval forces in the far east has fallen upon Vice Admiral Skrydloff, whom he appointed this evening, telegraphing to him to go direct from Sebastopol, where he is in command of the Black sea fleet to Port Arthur.

It is believed that Viceroy Alexieff, who is to temporarily command the Russian fleet at Port Arthur, will hoist his flag on the battleship Peresviet.

It is asserted that the battleship Sevastopol and Peresviet are in good order; that the repairs to battleships Retvizan and Czarevitch and the cruiser Pallada are almost completed, and that the cruisers Novik, Askold, Diana, and possibly the Bayan, as well as the gunboats Bobr and Otvashni and a score of torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats are in good order.

HERR BEBEL ACCUSES GERMANY OF UNFAIRNESS TO JAPAN.

Socialist Leader in the Reichstag Declares That Sale of Steamers Is Only an Indirect Way of Reinforcing the Russian Navy—Chancellor Von Buelow Replies That Sales of Ships to Private Firms Do Not Violate Laws of Neutrality.

BERLIN, April 14.—In the reichstag today Herr Bebel, the socialist leader, declared the socialists did not object to Chancellor von Bülow's declaration of neutrality and the localization of the war in the far east, but Germany's neutrality was not above doubt.

He referred to the sale of the steamer Fürst Bismarck to a Russian company, and asked whether the foreign office permitted the sale. The steamer was an auxiliary cruiser of the German navy at the time of the outbreak of the war, hence its sale was all the more astonishing. Bebel added that such sales accomplish indirectly the reinforcement of the Russian navy.

"We," said Herr Bebel, "must energetically protest against such a procedure. The world is filled with tinder material. One spark can set the world ablaze. I therefore ask the chancellor what he thinks of these sales and the resulting damage to Japan and the advantage to Russia."

Recalls Boer War.

"During the Boer war an English firm placed large orders for Krupp shells, but the German government finally, after the fact could no longer be denied, took energetic measures to prevent the order being filled. The present case is precisely similar. The sale of the German ships is doubly objectionable, as rumors are circulating of a far coming bill to increase the strength of the German navy."

Von Buelow's Angry Reply.

Chancellor von Bülow, in reply, said he was sorry to observe that the socialist press took sides against Russia in the most partisan manner, trying unweariedly to embroil Germany with Russia.

Continuing, the chancellor said that, according to the principles of international law hitherto prevailing, the sale of the vessels of a private firm to a foreign state was admissible. At any rate, the question was a doubtful one. He cited the Vorwärts [organ of the socialists] in support of this view, and added that the principle of neutrality forbids a neutral state from giving direct or indirect support to either belligerent through furnishing ships for war transportation purposes. In the case of the Russian transports it was not to a state but to private firms that the vessels were sold.

Says Students Were Rude.

The chancellor admitted that the Russian students were expelled in accordance with his orders because they exceeded the reserve which foreign guests must everywhere observe.

"We simply availed ourselves of the rights," he pointed out, "of a master of the house in turning out of doors guests who make themselves obnoxious. Neither the German officials, nor the Prussian police, nor I can permit rude language against us."

Chinese Minister at Vienna Says Japan and Russia Can End War by Mutual Concessions.

[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

BERLIN, April 14.—The Chinese minister at Vienna made a significant statement today when he hinted that foreign intervention between Russia and Japan was not improbable and that hostilities thereby might be brought to a close sooner than generally believed. All that was required of Russia was that she renounce all claims to Corea and of Japan that she recognize Russian sovereignty in Manchuria.

BIG BATTLESHIP HAS CLOSE CALL.

Gunner's Mate Monson and Capt. Cowles Save the Missouri from Wreck.

ONE CLOSES MAGAZINE.

Other Stops Vessel Just as It Is About to Be Jammed On to the Beach.

Pensacola, Fla., April 14.—That the newest battleship of the navy, the Missouri, had a narrow escape from being blown to pieces by the explosion of a magazine and also being beached, came to light today.

Capt. William S. Cowles prevented the latter when the vessel was with 250 yards of the beach by giving orders that the ship's course be changed.

Chief Gunner's Mate Monson saved the ship and lives of over 600 men by jumping into the open magazine and closing the door behind him.

Ship Was Headed for Shore.

It is stated, though not by officers of the Missouri, that when the officers heard the explosion in the turret and saw the fire coming through the top they realized the hot magazine would next explode and headed the ship for the shore, intending to beach it if possible before the explosion. Capt. Cowles quickly stopped the plan and put the ship back to sea.

After the first explosion in the turret the men in the handling room knew in an instant what had happened. The big magazine door was open and standing against it were four charges of powder. Without a moment's hesitation Gunner's Mate Monson acted and saved the ship.

Monson Found Barely Alive.

The magazine was flooded with water, and when the men opened the door they found Monson barely alive, the water having reached his neck. The damage to the battleship is much greater than was stated at first. In addition to the large amount of ammunition ruined by the magazine being flooded, which will amount to thousands of dollars, the after turret is badly injured, the top being burned away and all brasswork melted inside. The hoist is a charred mass, and the mechanism of the guns is completely ruined. The estimated damage caused by the explosion will reach $50,000.

Total Dead Now Thirty-two.

The total list of dead now numbers thirty-two.

The funeral of seventeen of the seamen was held this afternoon, and each ship of the fleet was represented, fully 5,000 men being present, while thousands from the city were in attendance, every place of business being closed for the afternoon and flags on all buildings placed at half mast.

The bodies of the officers and eight of the seamen were shipped to their former homes tonight and the others are being held to await advices from relatives.

The Missouri will not conclude its target practice but will go to New York to be docked as soon as the court of inquiry makes its findings. The court is still in session and may not reach a conclusion for several days.

General Regret Is Expressed.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Expressions of sorrow and regret for the accident on the battleship Missouri were received at the navy department today from all quarters of the globe. President Roosevelt and Secretary Moody have each contributed $100 toward a fund for the benefit of those dependent upon the sailors who lost their lives.

Because of the necessity of repairing the electrical apparatus which was destroyed by the explosion the Missouri will be ordered to New York for repairs.

Rear Admiral Capps, chief constructor of the navy, has gone to Pensacola to make a personal examination of the turrets of the Missouri.

Thomas W. Lawson Declares Standard Oil Magnate, Banker, or Himself Has Testified Falsely.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—[Special.]—Thomas W. Lawson, in a sensational statement today, says that either Henry H. Rogers, the Standard oil magnate, or Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co., or himself committed perjury in the famous "gas case" just concluded in the Supreme court. Lawson promises to produce witnesses to prove which is which. If in the coming trials which Lawson says are sure to result from the gas hearing which ended yesterday Rogers or Winsor attempts to controvert his testimony he agrees to summon witnesses and "stamp the one who committed perjury."

ANARCHIST BLOWN TO PIECES.

Man in St. Petersburg Hotel Victim of Infernal Machine, Which He Concealed in a Trunk.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—An anarchist known as Kazanoff, stopping at the Hotel du Nord, concealed an infernal machine in his trunk and it prematurely exploded last night, Kazanoff being blown to pieces. The ceiling and windows of his room were smashed, several persons were injured, and the hotel was set afire. All evidence of the anarchist's identity was destroyed in the explosion. The police confiscated copies of newspapers containing accounts of the explosion. It is stated that the room in the hotel was rented by two persons, one of whom is missing.

Get My Book, if Sick.

Don't Send a Penny.

Don't send a penny.
Just wait till you see what I can do.
Let me take the risk. Let me prove up first what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do. The Restorative will gain your friendship, your endorsement, if you test it. For a whole month you can use it without the slightest risk.

I will tell you of a druggist near you who will furnish six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month on trial.

I will absolutely stand all the cost if it fails. If you say, "It did not help me," that ends it as far as cost to you is concerned. Do you understand me? I am telling it as plainly, as clearly as I can. I want you to know absolutely and without doubt that this offer is made on honor. I have the prescription that cures. My only problem is to convince you that Dr. Shoop's Restorative will cure—is an uncommon remedy. A common remedy could not stand a test like this. It would bankrupt the physician making the offer. And I am succeeding everywhere and here is the secret of my success. I found invariably that where there was a weakness, the inside nerves were weak. Where there was a lack of vitality, the vital nerves lacked power. Where weak organs were found, I always found weak nerves. Not the nerves commonly thought of, but the vital organs' nerves. The inside, the invisible nerves.

This was a revelation. Then my real success began. Then I combined ingredients that would strengthen, that would vitalize these nerves. That prescription I called a restorative. It is known the world over now as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Thousands are accepting my offer and only one in each forty writes me that my remedy failed. Just think of it. 39 out of 40 get well, and these are difficult cases, too. And the fortieth has nothing to pay. That is a record I am proud of. It is wrong to stay sick when a chance like this is open. If well, you should tell others who are sick, of my offer. Don't let a sick friend stay sick because he knows not of my offer. Tell him. Get my book for him. Do your duty. You may be sick yourself, sometime. Sick people need help. They appreciate sympathy and aid. Tell me of some sick friend. Let me cure him. Then he will show his gratitude to both of us. Your reward will be his gratitude. Send for the book now. Do not delay.

STIR UP TROUBLE OVER DUNNING.

Physician Objects to Promotional Examination for Specialists.

MAY APPEAL TO COURT.

Secretary of Federation of Labor Brings Charges Against Podstata.

The attempts of President Foreman and the county commissioners to reorganize the public service at the Dunning institutions has stirred up a double headed row which threatens to hamper the plans considerably if not to indefinitely retard their consummation.

The promotional examination for senior physicians was begun yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow in the face of threats made by Dr. M. B. Lawrence, one of the resident physicians, that he would take legal action to defeat what he termed a violation of the civil service law. At the same time the federation of labor, in behalf of the Dunning union of nurses and attendants, made charges to the county board against Supt. Podstata's administration.

Are Selecting Specialists.

The examination is for the purpose of securing five specialists designated by President Foreman as follows:

Three senior physicians for the hospital for the insane, one for the male department, one for the female department, and one for the hospital for physically sick insane, each to be a specialist in mental and nervous diseases.

One senior physician, experienced in internal medicine and surgery, to be in charge, under the general superintendent, of medical and surgical work at the infirmary, and who shall also give professional instruction to internes.

One senior physician, to be a specialist in the treatment of tuberculosis and in the science of pathology, who shall be in charge, under the general superintendent, of the medical work at the hospital for consumptives.

Dr. Lawrence Makes Protest.

Dr. Lawrence was the only one of the Dunning staff of physicians who refused to take the examination.

"The physicians who fail to pass the examination are thereby invited to become internes or resign," he said. "It amounts to reducing a man in rank arbitrarily, and President Foreman, in so doing, is exceeding the limitations of the law."

The practical result of the examination, it is said, will be to detach permanently from the service the candidates who fail to pass. The physicians at Dunning now are paid from $75 to $125 a month, with board and lodging. Internes, which the unsuccessful ones will find themselves after the examination, receive only board and lodging as their remuneration.

Federation Makes Trouble.

In a communication to the commissioners, Secretary Nockels of the federation of labor, says that Supt. Podstata has violated union rules. Dunning is the only one of the county institutions in which organized labor has gained a foothold. Mr. Nockels says that under the last appropriation the wage scale for nurses and attendants was to be a minimum of $30 a month, and he charges Dr. Podstata with cutting some of the union nurses to $25, and even $20 a month. Other charges are:

Paying higher salaries to new employés than to old.

Reducing the capacity of the institution by sixty beds in order to form a dance hall.

Neglecting to visit the wards once a week.

Exposing inmates to work in cold weather insufficiently clad.

Opposition to the union.

President Foreman Replies.

"The charges are not founded on serious investigation," said President Foreman. "Dr. Podstata has been getting a degree of efficiency out of the employés at Dunning which was unknown several years ago. The civil service law is being lived up to in letter as well as spirit. If an employé attends to his business he gets along all right, and you will find that these complaints come from the disgruntled and dissatisfied. Dr. Lawrence's grievance is aimed at the plan by which the board hopes to give the inmates of Dunning better medical service than most people can ordinarily afford. We are going to have specialists in tuberculosis and in the nervous and chronic diseases of the county's wards."

PESANT WILL DIE TODAY ON GALLOWS IN THE JAIL.

Confessed Murderer of Mary Spilka, to Be Hanged Before Noon, Spends Time in Preparing for the End.

Louis Pesant, confessed murderer of Mary Spilka, will be hanged at the county jail shortly before noon today. Preparations were completed last evening.

Pesant declared himself resigned to his fate and prepared to meet it as bravely as he can. For several weeks he has been under the spiritual direction of the Rev. Father O'Brien of the Holy Name cathedral. The priest was with him the greater part of the day and will be his companion until he walks to the gallows.

Pesant had not retired at 1 o'clock this morning. For some time early in the evening Father O'Brien was with him, but after the clergyman left Pesant spent most of the time sitting with his head in his hands, apparently in deep thought. When the guards would speak to him he would reply briefly. At times he would look at the catechism left by the priest, but, after reading for a minute or two, he would drop it.

In the afternoon the condemned man was shaved and returned to the cell. As he passed that of Van Dine he cried, "Good-by, Harvey," reaching his hand through the bars.

"Good-by, old man," said Van Dine cheerfully, holding the hand.

TELLS OF PLOT TO KILL BANDIT.

Marx Testifies That Bullet Which Slew Bauder Was Intended for Emil Roeski.

In an attempt to clear his associate, Emil Roeski, of the murder of Otto Bauder, Gustav Marx, condemned bandit, in Judge Kersten's court yesterday testified that a bullet which he intended for Roeski had killed Bauder. He said also that the robbery of Ernest Stire's saloon on July 9 was planned by him and Harvey Van Dine to make an occasion for slaying their companion because Roeski knew more about their previous operations than they deemed safe.

Assistant State's Attorney Olson declared the narrative was "extemporized." He says as against this testimony the state has confessions of Marx that Roeski shot Bauder, and the statement of the defendant that he was "in on the robbery" and killed the boy.

Court adjourned at noon with Marx still on the stand to allow Juror Peterson to attend the funeral of his father.

POLICE SCHOOL NEARLY READY.

Assistant Chief Schuettler Soon Will Begin Teaching Men to Get Convicting Evidence.

Ways to secure evidence and mark exhibits in criminal cases soon will be taught under direction of Assistant Chief Schuettler. His schoolhouses all will be police stations, and his pupils policemen. Chief O'Neill yesterday said the work would be begun as soon as his aid had finished his work against gamblers and robbers.

SPANISH WAR ROMANCE IN AN EASTERN WEDDING.

Miss Amanda J Armstead

Philadelphia, Pa., April 14.—[Special.]—A romance which began in the Philippines culminated today in the marriage of Miss Amanda J. Armstead, a former army nurse, to Maj. Henry Hunt Ludlow, U. S. A. Maj. Ludlow is at present detailed as military instructor of the Agricultural college at Oktibbe, Miss., but previously served for two years in the Philippines, where he met Miss Armstead, who was chief nurse in the Second Reserve hospital at Manila.

His bride was educated in this city and after graduating as a nurse served at Blockley. When the Spanish war broke out she served on the hospital ship Relief, and later went to the Philippines on the same vessel. While at Manila she received the appointment as chief of the Second Reserve hospital. Gov. Taft, secretary of war, was one of her patients while in the Philippines.

On Miss Armstead's return from the far east she was stationed for fourteen months at Angel island, where she taught elementary nursing. Here she met Maj. Ludlow again and their engagement was announced.

BOY CHOIR QUITS OPERA.

DR. STONE OF ST. JAMES' CHURCH "PUTS DOWN HIS FOOT."

Rector Finds That Religion and the Theater Do Not Mix Well in This Way and Declares the Custom Must Stop—Plans for Performance in Lincoln Hall Next Week Altered Accordingly—Influence on Young Singers Bad.

Dr. James S. Stone, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, has "put his foot down" on the church choir's custom of giving operas, light or otherwise. The decision, given at rehearsal Wednesday night, was made public yesterday.

"Religion and the theater do not mix well in the way St. James' choir has been trying to mix it," declared the rector yesterday. "I do not have any objection to members of the choir appearing in operas as individuals and I should go to see them if I cared to. That is a matter for the individual to determine. I am, however, opposed to operas being given in the name of the church. I don't want it said that St. James' is educating boys and men for the stage.

Influence Not of the Best.

"Furthermore, I do not believe the influence that goes with the preparation and presentation of an opera is of the best. The choir contains many boys of tender years, who are not proof against the seductions of the stage. As a result not a few boy members of St. James have conceived a desire to become actors right away.

"St. James' practically adopts its choir boys and feels a deep interest in their welfare. In fact, we follow their career through life and try in every way to assist them in making the most of their opportunities."

Clarence Dickinson, choirmaster, is thus compelled to abandon the opera and arrange for a concert which will be given next Thursday night in Lincoln hall, Dearborn avenue and Division street.

It is understood that Bishop McLaren has informed the rectors of Episcopal churches generally that he would be better pleased if they would stop giving operas.

Experience Last Summer.

The Bush temple of music last summer organized a boy minstrel troupe made up of choir boys and called it the Church Choir minstrels. The aggregation appeared at the Bush for three weeks and was then taken on the road. Several of the boys of St. James were members of the organization and the characters of some of them were so changed when they returned that they were dropped from the choir.

NEEDS 45,000 HARVEST HANDS.

Estimate of Outside Help Required to Move the Grain Crop in Seven States.

The Western Association of Free Employment Bureaus, designed to aid in securing men to handle the western wheat crop, met yesterday at the Hotel Majestic, and it was decided that this year 45,000 laborers from outside would be needed in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma, and South Dakota.

President Despain, Nebraska labor commissioner, gave statistics in his report to the association.

"The seven states which we cover," he said, "have a small grain area of 37,097,722 acres, with a total small grain production of 601,088,444 bushels a year. It requires 575,889 cars to move this crop, or, all together, a train 4,365 miles long."

CRANK IS HIDING IN CHICAGO.

Relatives Seek Edwin Relgar, Who Wanted President Roosevelt to Take Another Name.

Edwin Relgar, the insane man who five weeks ago wanted President Roosevelt to change his name, is in Chicago, but cannot be found by relatives. He spent last Friday and Saturday at the Mayflower, a Clark street lodging house. His uncle, P. S. Whiting, 73 Florence avenue, is seeking to find Relgar and have him submit to an operation which may restore his reason. Relgar is 35 years old, 5 feet 10½ inches tall, weighs 180 pounds, has light hair and mustache, light gray eyes, prominent ears, dark suit and overcoat, and soft hat.

HARRISON PLANS TO CIRCLE GLOBE.

Around the World Trip Contemplated by the Mayor When He Retires.

IN HIS FATHER'S STEPS.

Political Advisers Believe Move Would Have Effect on His Future.

Persons who see in Carter H. Harrison's record an imitation of his father's will have a chance to trace the resemblance further. He now is arranging to take a trip around the world as soon as his term of office expires next spring, and he will spend a year abroad. When he returns he will be in a position, as his father was after a similar trip, to consider any political conditions which may offer.

After Carter H. Harrison I. had refused to again become the democratic candidate for mayor in 1887, leaving his party without a leader and making the election of John A. Roche a certainty, he made a trip around the world and contributed letters to a local newspaper which were of enough interest to keep his name constantly before the people of Chicago. Compiled into a book, they afterwards received a general circulation by gift if not by sale.

Return Is Triumphal.

The former mayor's return was a memorable affair. He entered the city in the evening and it was a triumphal procession. Red fire was burned all along the route his carriage and those of the citizens escorting him covered. There were speeches of welcome and resolutions adopted by the city council. The reception given Gen. Grant on his return from his trip around the world was a bigger affair, but that to Mr. Harrison carried with it more enthusiasm on the part of the democrats taking part in it, who had held jobs in the city hall and hoped to regain them.

Mr. Harrison became a greater man in politics than he had been before, and, although he failed of the democratic nomination against Cregier, he came near being elected as an independent, and practically was invincible two years afterwards, when the world's fair mayor was chosen.

May Repeat Father's Example.

It has been suggested that by this contemplated trip that the son easily can keep himself before the public while withdrawing temporarily from his present office. He would avoid the chances of being defeated if he ran to succeed himself and be greeted by his party in 1907 as the only Moses who could lead it out of the Wilderness. He would at least be following in his father's footsteps.

LAUDS MARY BAKER EDDY AS EMANCIPATOR OF RACE.

Leader in Christian Science Church Declares Faith Healing Represents the Emancipation for All Minds.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy last night was declared to be the benefactor of her race, and Christian Science the emancipator of mankind. A large audience heard the Rev. William P. McKenzie of the Christian Science lecture board speak under the auspices of the Fifth church at Forty-sixth street and Madison avenue.

"Christian Science, or the revival of healing Christianity, represents an emancipation movement not for a nation merely, but for all minds in the world," he said. "Christian Science reveals the way to liberty in self-government under the eternal law of God, making clear the ultimate fact that for man the only true freedom is in goodness; that is, in release from sin and its deception, from fear and its tyranny. Common theological teaching represents man as governed from without. Christian Science teaches how he should be governed by divine principle within.

"If the discoverer of Christian Science has been misunderstood while struggling along with the perplexities of the untried way in founding the church and movement, it is because men have failed to recognize their benefactor. Her text book is virtually an emancipation proclamation, and those who have found freedom from sickness and sin through it are an increasing host."

WAR ON UNMUZZLED DOGS: WARRANTS HIT SOUTH SIDE.

S. G. Brabrook Secures Writs for Arrest of Twenty-two Owners and Declares He Will Get Fifty More.

A crusade to clear the south side of unmuzzled dogs was begun yesterday, when a lone crusader secured warrants for the arrest of twenty-two persons alleged to be violating the new ordinance.

Ald. Milton J. Foreman declared the new measure an ordinance of great public benefit and said that before its passage medical societies showed the council that the bite of a rabid dog was as dangerous in winter as in summer.

The complaints all were made by S. G. Brabrook, 3502 Lake avenue, who says he will secure fifty more warrants this morning. He declares he made the investigation because of the prevalence of hydrophobia. A few were arrested by the Stanton avenue police and allowed to sign their own bonds. Brabrook makes a tour of the district daily, follows dogs to houses of their owners, it is said, and then lists the names.

Six valuable dogs belonging to residents of Oak Park have been poisoned, and owners in that suburb, River Forest, and Maywood have appealed to the police.

SIKES OUTLINES CHARTER PLAN

Assistant Secretary of Municipal Voters' League Would Give Extensive Powers to Council.

George C. Sikes, assistant secretary of the Municipal Voters' league, last evening told the Men's club of Grace Protestant Episcopal church of his ideas regarding the framing of a new city charter.

Mr. Sikes advocated a council of forty ward aldermen and nine elected at large who should each be paid $5,000 a year and given offices and secretaries. The council would be given full authority to do all things not prohibited in the state and federal constitutions, and would itself elect the mayor, who would hold office during its pleasure.

The mayor could appoint the heads of departments, and he and they have seats, but no votes at council meetings. There would be no veto power, but no ordinance, except the appropriation bill and regular tax levy, would become operative until sixty days after passage, and if, in the meantime, a properly signed petition was presented, they must be submitted to a referendum vote.

DEMANDS PLACE OF CLARKE.

Perry L. Hedrick Seeks Writ to Compel Merit Board to Make Him Sanitary Chief.

Complications were added to the fight over the office of chief sanitary inspector, when Perry L. Hedrick yesterday applied for a writ to compel the civil service commission to oust Charles L. Clarke and certify to the plaintiff's appointment. Hedrick is next on the eligible list, and lives at 216 North Central avenue.

RUSSIAN DESTROYER BEZSTRASHNI, SUNK IN FIGHT WITH JAPS.

The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Bezstrashni was cut off from the rest of the fleet at Port Arthur, surrounded by Japanese torpedo boats, and sunk by them. Nearly fifty officers and men went down with the Bezstrashni.

CHURCH WINS GOLD MINE.

ARBITRATORS ALSO AWARD IT $263,686 IN MONEY.

Unusual Dispute Between Chicagoans and Swedish Missionary Society Decided in Favor of Religious Body, by H. T. Gilbert and D. F. Lane, A. M. Pence Dissenting — Dr. Claes W. Johnson and Peter H. Anderson and White Star Company Hard Hit.

By the decision of the board of arbitrators in the matter of the title and proceeds of the placer mining claim, "No. 9 Above on Anvil creek," Cape Nome, Alaska, N. O. Hultberg, assignee for the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America recovers from the White Star Mining company of Illinois, Dr. Claes W. Johnson, and Peter H. Anderson the mining claim in dispute and proceeds to the amount of $263,686.

The arbitrators were Hiram T. Gilbert and A. M. Pence of Chicago and David F. Lane of Berkley, Cal. The award is signed by Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Lane, Mr. Pence dissenting from their opinion. Peter H. Anderson, formerly a missionary for the Covenant at Chinik, Alaska, is directed to pay over immediately to Mr. Hultberg the sum of $232,200, and the White Star Mining company of Illinois and Dr. Johnson are directed to surrender to Mr. Hultberg the "No. 9" mine and the additional sum of $26,000, the net value of the output of the mine in 1903, after it was transferred to the White Star Mining company of Illinois. Minor awards of $500, $1,236, and $3,750 were made.

Story of Unusual Case.

The unusual arbitration case grew out of Alaskan gold mines staked out by Covenant missionaries in 1898. Mr. Hultberg staked the first claim for his society and when he returned to the states Mr. Anderson and others continued the work. They declared, however, that the mines were their property, not the mission society's. Not wishing to have the church organization appear as a litigant in court, private arbitration was decided on, the hearings beginning in secret on Feb. 20.

Two of the disputed claims were at one time held by Eskimos and this necessitated the presence in Chicago of Gabriel and Constantine Uparaczuck, natives of Alaska. A number of other witnesses were brought to Chicago from Alaska. The ownership of mine No. 9 was the only one passed on by the arbitrators.

Two Rule Against Anderson.

The opinion of Arbitrators Gilbert and Lane recites that "Anderson himself did not either directly or indirectly make any contribution either by way of money or labor towards the acquisition of the title to the claim in question. He never saw it until some time after the legal title to them became vested in him."

The counsel for Hultberg included N. Soderberg, a former judge of San Francisco; Frank Quinn, Peoria; and H. F. Williams, Chicago. The defense was represented by Judge Chytraus. As Judge Chytraus was formerly attorney for the Covenant, there were frequent lively tilts between him and opposing counsel, and on one occasion the judge and Mr. Soderberg nearly came to blows.

FIRE IN APARTMENT HOUSE DRIVES TENANTS TO STREET.

Family of Judge Frank Baker Also Forced to Flee from Blaze at 3541 Lake Avenue.

Fire in the apartment building at 3541 Lake avenue drove the tenants into the street at 8 o'clock last night. Members of Judge Frank Baker's family next door to the burning structure, were also forced to flee by the flames. The loss on building and contents was $1,000. The fire started on the top floor in the apartment of Mrs. Mary Kenney. The building is owned by Mrs. Annie Barry, 356 Chicago avenue.

Car Strikes an Engine.—In responding to an alarm of fire at 150 Michigan avenue in the evening chemical engine No. 6 collided with a Larrabee street car at Clark and Randolph streets. C. Dennehy, the driver, was injured and the horse's eye gouged out. A demonstration was made against the car crew by the spectators. The fire started on the fourth floor of the building at 150 and 152 Michigan avenue, occupied by the Chicago Leather and Plush company. The damage was $5,000.

Fail to Find Incendiaries.—Fire inspectors investigated the cause of the White Manufacturing company fire at 196 and 198 Michigan street. It was rumored that they would arrest two men today, charged with arson, but at night the detectives practically decided the blaze originated from defective wires.

Fire Causes a Panic.—A blaze in the basement of E. Heidhues' department store, North avenue and Halsted street, in the afternoon, caused a panic among the office tenants on the three upper stories of the building and caused a property loss of $10,000.

SUIT SEPARATES AGED SISTERS.

Promissory Note Figures in Family Dispute, Which Finally Is Settled in Court.

Mrs. Pankratz Weidner, 843 Melrose street, and Mrs. John Popp, sisters, each more than 60 years old, yesterday appeared in Judge Hanecy's court in a suit involving a promissory note and a transfer of property by their father, who since has died, to Weidner in 1881. The dispute had estranged the sisters during many years, and they left the courtroom without speaking after the court gave judgment for Mrs. Popp.

BATTLESHIP POBIEDA, DAMAGED BY MINE.

The Russian battleship Pobieda, which, according to official announcement from St. Petersburg, was damaged by a mine, is one of the finest of the Czar's battleships. A notable feature of the vessel is the heavy armament. Its sides bristle with guns. It was launched in 1900.

POEMS AS LAST MESSAGES

TWO WOMEN LEAVE VERSES AND TAKE CARBOLIC ACID.

One, Whose Identity Is Unknown, Dies in Chicago Hotel, but Other, Making Attempt in Aurora, Is Expected to Recover—First Selects Passages by Matthew Arnold, but Second Writes Her Own "Farewell" Rhyme—Relatives Hurry to Her Side.

In poetry two young women yesterday left messages to friends before taking carbolic acid. One is dead, but the other is expected to recover.

For some are born to do great deeds, and live,
As some are born to be obscured, and die—

The foregoing words in the story of "Sohrab and Rustum," by Matthew Arnold, struck the fancy of a woman who was found dead in bed at the Twenty-second Street hotel, 2128 State street. She registered Wednesday afternoon as Annie Kelly, and was 25 years old and well dressed. A half emptied bottle of carbolic acid lay beside the book, open at the passage marked.

Another passage from Arnold which she had marked was:

For we are all, like swimmers in the sea,
Poised on top of a huge wave of fate
Which hangs uncertain to which side to fall.
And whether it heave us up to land,
Or whether it will roll us out to sea,
Back out to sea, to the deep waves of death,
We know not, and no search will make us know,
Only the event will teach us in its hour.

The police are seeking to learn her identity.

Fannie Wing, 817 South Halsted street, did not go to books for ante-mortem poetry. She wrote it herself, and it was:

Weary of living!
  So weary and tired of sin and care;
A failure, and tired of a world
  Where sin and I are a pair.

Miss Wing left home after a quarrel with her sister, it is said, and took the acid in the Huntoon hotel at Aurora. She was found unconscious and relatives hurried to her bedside. She had been employed as a clerk in a downtown store.

TWO CHURCHES CALL MINISTER.

Dr. C. B. Chapin Summoned to Jefferson Park Presbyterian and Also to Rochester Pulpit.

The Rev. Charles B. Chapin, pastor of Hamilton Grange Reformed church of New York City, who last week was called to the pastorate of Westminster Presbyterian church, Rochester, N. Y., yesterday received a call to the Jefferson Park Presbyterian church, Chicago. This is the church lately vacated by the Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage. Dr. Chapin was in this city last week, delivering the annual address before the graduating class of the Chicago College of Nurses. He expects to announce his decision next week.

FOR UNIFORMED MEMBERS ONLY

Legal Opinion on Police Pensions Bars Out Drivers, Operators, Janitors, Etc.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Beckwith has decided the police pension act applies only to the regularly uniformed members of the force, and department attachés cannot benefit from it. The ruling applies to the patrol wagon drivers, telephone operators, matrons, janitors, and similar employés.

An ordinance is pending in the council to make all persons carried on the police pay rolls members of the department, but Mr. Beckwith holds the only relief would be by amendment to the pension law by the legislature.

APPEALS FROM COURT'S RULING.

Proceedings Begun to Determine Whether Circuit Judges' Allowance of Masters' Pay Is Final.

Attorney Ernest Saunders yesterday began mandamus proceedings to determine whether a Circuit court ruling is final in deciding the compensation of a master in chancery. Judge Dunne, over Saunder's protest, had allowed Master Waite $800 for services in the settlement of the case of Katherine S. Ernst and others against Joseph H. Ernst. He refused an appeal to the Appellate court.

POLICE AT TOWN MEETING

RIVAL PRESIDENTS MAKE TROUBLE IN CICERO.

Comerford Faction Swears in John S. Sherlock as Attorney—Moore Refuses to Yield to Man Elected and Relies on Opinion Given by Judge Dunne—Employes Decide to Obey New Official, but Opponent Declares He Will Continue to Preside.

With Frank L. Moore, the retiring president, holding the gavel and the chair and the newly elected president, George Comerford, standing beside him, waiting for his turn, the regular meeting of the Cicero town board was held last night while policemen, guarding the doors, held back a crowd of several hundred sympathizers of Comerford.

Professing that the election was illegal on account of a recent state law authorizing presidents of small town boards to remain in office for two years, President Moore, backed up by an opinion rendered by Judge Dunne, refused to surrender the chair.

As soon as the routine business was completed, Comerford, supported by the four new members of the board, went through the form of swearing in John S. Sherlock, who had been appointed town attorney. This move, Moore asserted, was out of order, as three of the new members—the collector, the assessor, and the treasurer—he said, had not yet signed their bonds.

Although the presiding officers apparently were equal in authority as long as the board was in session, when it was adjourned the president-elect called upon the police to know whom they would regard as the president. Lieut. Schaffer, head of the town's force, announced that he would take his orders from Comerford.

Despite this assertion, Moore declared that at the next meeting of the board, Thursday night of next week, he would be present and preside.

Moore was defeated for reëlection by 180 votes and appealed to the court.

BODY REVEALS CAR ACCIDENT.

Trolley Strikes Child, but Consequences Are Not Discovered for Half an Hour.

For a half hour last night the body of Arnold Grahn, 9 years old, lay undiscovered at the curb in front of his parents' house, 1224 Southport avenue. Then a passer-by notified the police, who learned that a fast Southport avenue car had struck the child.

Conductor Axel Baneston and Motorman Patrick Moran, who were arrested, said they stopped the car, but could find no one injured.

While he was playing on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific tracks at Tracey yesterday, a train in which he believed his mother was a passenger, attracted his attention, and Foster Northrup, 8 years old, stepson of Louis Layton Wright, was struck and killed by another train. The body was taken to Morgan Park.

STEAL STAMPS: FIGHT GUARDS.

Police Think Gang of Postoffice Robbers Are at Work on the North Side.

Thieves, who stole $250 worth of stamps from the drug store and subpostal station conducted by A. G. Herzberg, Oak and Wells streets, early yesterday morning, lost over half their plunder during a revolver fight with watchmen. The robbers escaped. Last night several supicious characters were seen near the North Clark street postal station, and the police believe a gang of postoffice thieves is in town.

WIRELESS SYSTEM FOR LAKES.

Communication Established Between Buffalo and Cleveland—Will Extend Stations.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 14.—Communication by wireless telegraph between Buffalo and Cleveland for commercial purposes was formally opened this afternoon. The system will be extended to Detroit, and ultimately stations will be established at all the large ports on the great lakes. The tests were satisfactory.

DAYLIGHT BURGLARS GET $1,650

Take Diamonds and a Sealskin Sacque from the Apartments of A. N. Osgood.

Burglars yesterday afternoon robbed the apartments of A. N. Osgood, 1630 Jackson boulevard, and took diamonds and a sealskin sacque valued at $1,650 while Mrs. Osgood was calling on a neighbor.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—After a voyage of more than 18,000 miles the first torpedo flotilla of the United States navy, consisting of the torpedo boat destroyers Decatur, Bainbridge, Barry, Dale, and Chauncey, convoyed by the cruiser Buffalo, arrived at Cavite, P. I., today.

Commanded by Lieut. Lloyd Chandler, the flotilla left Hampton roads on Dec. 12 for a longer voyage than was ever before attempted by craft of this class. Letters of protest had poured in on Secretary Moody. Land sailors had wagged their heads and dire disaster to the flotilla had been predicted, but Lieut. Chandler answered with the declaration, "Those destroyers can go to Hades and back."

Secretary Moody, impressed by the lieutenant's confidence, told him to go ahead. A board of inspection and survey accompanied the flotilla to Key West and pronounced the baby ships perfectly seaworthy for any voyage. This judgment has been vindicated by the sound condition of the flotilla as it rides at anchor off Cavite today. It is ready for duty with the Asiatic fleet, of which it will form a powerful adjunct.

No Grave Losses on Voyage.

There were few casualties during the voyage, so far as the navy department has been informed. One or two boats were washed away, but these would not have been considered enough to report had Lieut. Chandler not feared they might be picked up and their being adrift excite stories that the flotilla had gone down or been wrecked. There has been no real reason for apprehension about the seaworthiness of the destroyers. Each is of 420 tons displacement, with 8,000 horse power, and is 245 feet in length, with a maximum speed of from twenty-five to thirty knots an hour. The average cruising speed it is calculated to maintain is ten knots. The voyage made via Suez was broken up into much shorter relays than are made by larger ships, because the quarters of the officers and men are none too commodious on torpedo craft and it was desired that they get as much rest ashore as possible.

Little Fleet Well Drilled.

Lieut. Chandler is a leading authority in the navy on torpedo craft. The officers commanding the destroyers have been together for a considerable time and the drills which this fleet engaged in have been marvels of seamanship. The accuracy of their torpedo fire is extremely high, and Lieut. Chandler has declared it his opinion that a torpedo within certain ranges is more effective than a gun.

The most feared part of the voyage was the trip from San Juan to the Canaries. This was the longest single division. From Key West to San Juan, the flotilla made an unusually fast run to test its coal endurance, which was found highly satisfactory. Lieut. Chandler then determined to cruise without a stop from San Juan to the Canaries, which was done most satisfactorily.

Usually the regular cruising speed was steadily maintained. In fact, the voyage came out much as it was calculated it would, the actual cruising time being about seventy days, the rest of the 124 days consumed by the voyage having been spent in port.

In the Mediterranean the weather encountered was mild. In the Indian ocean, after leaving Aden, the flotilla expected to have a hard task to reach Bombay, but this was accomplished without trouble. After leaving Bombay the flotilla proceeded to Colombo, thence to Singapore, after which a straight and apparently uneventful run was made to Cavite. The destroyers will be given a thorough bottom scraping and such minor repairs as may be needed.

UNION PICKETS ARE HELD FOR BEATING A WORKMAN.

Prisoners Declared to Have Aided Gang Which Beat Lyon & Healy Employe Into Unconsciousness.

Two arrests were made yesterday in connection with the assault Wednesday night on Jacob Alberg, an employé of Lyon & Healy. George Rose and August Bockelman will be tried this morning at the Desplaines street court.

Alberg, who is 42 years old and lives at 407 Paulina street, refused to quit when employés were ordered to strike He had worked in the factory on Union park for three years, he said, without cause for complaint, and could not afford to be idle

Machet Mozek, declared to be a hired "slugger," was arersted on a charge of assaulting several nonunion employés of the International Salt company. Frank Miznowski, 40 Temple street, and John Framzar, 270 North Center avenue, were the complainants.

The United Laundrymen's association yesterday signed an agreement with the International Union of Steam Engineers for a year. Members of the union are to be employed exclusively in the engine rooms, and the wages are to be $18 for a week of fifty-four hours.

BEREA HONORS D. K. PEARSONS.

Birthday of College's Benefactor Is Celebrated in a Fitting Manner.

Berea Depot, Ky., April 14.—[Special.]—The birthday of D. K. Pearsons of Chicago, who is one of the benefactors of Berea college, was celebrated today. A congratulatory telegram was sent to Mr. Pearsons. Each student received a souvenir card with Pearsons' portrait and the inscription; "We requite our benefactors by our own service to humanity." President Frost spoke on "How to Requite Our Donors." Students and teachers were much affected by a letter from Dr. Pearsons, in which he says he may not be able to visit Berea again, owing to his health.

POSTAL INQUIRY NOW UNLIKELY.

Senate Leaders Conclude That the Guilty Already Have Been Punished.

PRESIDENT HOLDS ALOOF.

Advice Either Way Is Refused, and Party Will Stand Upon Its Record.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., April 14.

Legislation Agreed On for Remaining Sessions of Congress.

At a conference between Senators Allison, Aldrich, Cullom, and other leaders of the senate today a program of legislation for the remainder of the session was mapped out. It was agreed that nothing would be done at present toward an investigation by the senate of the postoffice department, and there is now considerable doubt as to whether there will be any investigation at all. This question will be decided upon later. It was agreed that of the remainder of appropriation bills the measure providing for the government of the Panama canal zone and some minor legislation would be adopted, and that congress would adjourn some time during week after next, or between April 26 and April 29. It is more than likely adjournment will come on the 27th, so as to give senators and representatives who desire to attend the opening ceremonies at the St. Louis exposition an opportunity to do so. The bill authorizing an issue of bonds for public improvements in the Philippines and for the construction of railroads in the islands may be considered at this session, but there is no certainty about this.

The conference was an informal one, and there was no meeting of the steering committee. The leaders had no difficulty in reaching an agreement, but there was considerable discussion relating to the program to be adopted regarding an investigation of the postoffice department by the senate committee. Some of the younger members of the senate were in favor of the adoption of the resolution authorizing the senate postoffice committee to sit during the summer and investigate all charges relating to scandals in the postoffice department which might be brought before it. Senator Penrose, chairman of the postoffice committee, and Senator Lodge, a member of the committee, were in favor of an investigation to offset the attacks made by democrats.

These two senators called at the White house today and consulted the president. They wanted Col. Roosevelt to advise what should be done, but the president declined to do so because he did not care to be placed in the position of dictating to the senate, and he informed the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts senators that the senate must decide the subject for itself. This was done by the older heads of that body.

Postoffice Department Investigation Is Unlikely.

After a number of informal conferences it was decided that nothing whatever should be done at present toward authorizing an investigation, and it is extremely doubtful if anything will be done in that direction at this session of congress at least. The leaders take the ground that there has been a thorough investigation of the postoffice department, and that those who were guilty of corrupt practices and conspiracies to defraud the government have been removed from the service, some of them have been convicted, and others are now awaiting trial. They also agreed that the affairs of the department are now being honestly and efficiently administered, and that all abuses which existed have been corrected. Charges relating to frauds in connection with the weighing of third class mail already have been investigated, and there is no necessity, they assert, for another investigation at this time. Furthermore, it was decided that it would be unwise to start another investigation at the beginning of a national campaign, and to permit the democrats to drag in a number of insignificant matters for the express purpose of making political capital. The leaders were of the opinion that the party could afford to stand by its record in correcting the abuses which existed in the postoffice department, notwithstanding the attacks of democrats, and there was no reason for another investigation. A final decision, however, has not been reached, but it is the opinion of republican leaders of the senate than nothing will be done.

Miss Eleanor Patterson Weds Count Gizycki.

Miss Eleanor Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Patterson, was married at 12 o'clock today to Count Joseph Gizycki of Russia. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents on Dupont circle, and was witnessed by a number of relatives and intimate friends. Mr. Patterson escorted his daughter to the improvised floral altar in the library, and gave her hand in marriage. Count Gizycki had as his only attendant Mr. Rubido-Zichy, attaché of the Austrian embassy. The Rev. Father Thomas Lee of St. Mathew's church performed the ceremony in an impressive manner. The bride wore a graceful gown of white liberty gauze, made over chiffon and silk; the bridal veil falling to the hem of the train, and carried a loose bouquet of orange blossoms and valley lilies. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony.

Among the guests were the Russian ambassador, accompanied by Countess Cassini, and the Austrian ambassador and Baroness Hengelmüller. Each of the ambassadors was accompanied by his entire embassy staff. The guests from Chicago were Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick, and Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blair, Miss Josephine Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, brother and sister-in-law of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Medill McCormick and Mr. Rutherford McCormick, cousins. Other guests were Prince De Bearn of the French embassy, Miss Roosevelt, Mrs. Nicholas Fish, Mrs. Frederick N. Keep, Miss Boardman, Miss Nott, Miss Leiter, Mr. Dumartheray, the Swiss minister, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patterson, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mr. Bonaparte.

Count Gizycki and his bride left Washington this afternoon for New York, and will sail on Saturday, going direct to Paris. They will later go to Vienna for the spring season, and then to Count Gizycki's estate in the southwestern part of Russia, where they will spend the summer.

Philippine Public Improvements Bill Passes the House.

Some progress towards enacting legislation for developing the Philippines was made today when the house adopted a bill authorizing bond issues by the Philippine government for the purpose of raising funds to defray the expenses of public improvements and to authorize it to guarantee an income not exceeding 5 per cent on the capital invested in the construction of railroads in the archipelago. The Philippine government is permitted to guarantee the payment of $1,500,000 annually for a period of thirty years on the capital invested in railroad projects. It is not believed that the island government will be called upon to pay this amount, as Secretary Taft and the other officials are of the opinion that a portion of the roads constructed will be self-sustaining as soon as they are completed. The measure authorizes the Philippine government to issue bonds not exceeding $5,600,000 for the construction of provincial schools, penitentiaries, courthouses, roads, port and harbor works, bridges, and other public improvements. The Philippine government is granted authority to allow municipalities to sell bonds not to exceed 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of the property of these towns. The proceeds of bond sales will be used to provide adequate sewer and drainage facilities and all kinds of public betterments and improvements. It also authorizes the Philippine government to expend all funds realized from the head tax imposed upon immigrants for the benefit of the island. This measure has the support of the administration, and if the senate takes it up for consideration it is likely to become a law, but it is feared the measure may provoke protracted debate and thus interfere with the plan of an early adjournment. For this reason it may not be acted upon until next winter.

Mrs. Roosevelt returned to Washington today from Groton, Mass., accompanied by her sons, Theodore and Kermit. The boys have a well developed case of mumps, and, while there are no alarming symptoms in the disease, there was fear that if the boys remained it might become epidemic.

Peoria, Ill., Is Made Port of Entry.

Peoria, Ill., will now be a port of entry, as Senator Cullom today called up in the senate and had passed the bill recently adopted by the house extending to Peoria all the privileges of a port of entry. Peoria is now a port of delivery in the customs district of Illinois and Indiana, and imports are only delivered after they have been appraised at New York. The object in making it a port of entry is to facilitate the delivery of imported goods. Under the new law all imports intended for Peoria and vicinity will be sent direct from the steamers, and will not be appraised at New York, where goods are delayed a long time because of the enormous amount of business done there. They can now be appraised at Peoria, and consequently the merchants will receive their goods more promptly.

Lowering of Illinois River Dams Authorized.

Senator Hopkins today secured the adoption of a resolution authorizing the secretary of war to permit the sanitary district of Chicago to lower the height of government dams in the Illinois river at Campsville and Lagrange in accordance with plans of the war department to protect the interests of the United States. This resolution has been adopted by the house and it now goes to the president for his signature. The purpose of lowering the height of the dams is to decrease the volume of water which flows into the Illinois river and causes great damage to property along its banks. The expense of lowering the dams will be borne by the sanitary district.

Late this afternoon the senate adopted the bill providing for the straightening of the bend in the Calumet river at the Chittenden bridge. The government now has a deed for land over which the new channel will flow. Cook county granted to the United States an unobstructed right of way 200 feet in width. When the new channel is completed the old one will be closed. This bill has passed the house and will now go to the president for his signature.

Representative Hamilton Speaks on Prosperity.

Representative Hamilton of Michigan today made a speech in the house on capital and labor and their relation to the policy of protecting American industries. He reviewed the prosperity of the country and pointed out that people always have enjoyed it under republican administrations, which stood for protection. This speech, which was one of the best delivered in the house at this session, will be used extensively during the next campaign. At the conclusion of the speech Mr. Hamilton was applauded heartily and congratulated by all of his republican and many democratic colleagues. The business of the house was suspended several minutes because of confusion caused by the enthusiastic manner in which the address was received.

J. J. HILL, LEADER IN RAILROAD FIGHT

Latest portrait of James J. Hill, "the uncrowned emperor of the northwest," now engaged in one of his biggest fights, the outcome of which, he declares, will vitally affect the prosperity of the northwest.

IS IT WATERLOO FOR J. J. HILL?

St. Paul's Railway King Battles for Control of Transcontinental Lines.

ASK COURTS TO UMPIRE.

Great Northern's President Tells How He Fought to Build Up the West.

he would sever all connection with the great railway system he has built up. It would mean only that he would stand in an advisory capacity to such directors as he might select. Two of his sons have long been in training for such positions.

It is not the possibility of such a partial retirement which has startled the northwest. The Harriman case has no bearing one way or another on that proposed action. But if Harriman succeeds in his present demand, and the courts turn over to him a controlling interest in the Northern Pacific system, Mr. Hill has declared that he will sell out his Great Northern holdings and retire absolutely from the field.

Position in a Nutshell.

When he was questioned on this point yesterday he sent for the printed report of his testimony taken in the hearing of the case against the Northern Securities company, opened it at page 51, and put his finger on the paragraph at the bottom of the page.

"That states my position exactly," he said. "I have had no reason to change my position since this testimony was given."

The paragraph in question states that if the control of the Northern Pacific should be put into the hands of a party hostile to the Great Northern, it would put the Great Northern "in a position where it would have to make a hard fight—either survive or perish, or else sell out to the other interests. The latter would be the most businesslike proceeding."

To the casual reader there would seem to be no apparent reason why hostile control of the Northern Pacific should drive the Great Northern out of business, but that is because the casual reader is not a great railroad manager who deals in hundreds of millions of dollars, who thinks in continents and who embraces in his plans the commerce of the world.

Review of a Busy Life.

It may help to an understanding of the reasons for Mr. Hill's threatened retirement, and, as well, throw a great light on the present tangle of warring interests, to review briefly the career of James J. Hill and his relation with the development of the great northwest country.

But let no one imagine that the retirement of Mr. Hill is anything more than a possibility or that in any event it is likely to take place within the next few months.

"Jim Hill has had a headon collision with almost every man and every interest in the northwest, at some time or another, within the last twenty years," said one of his friends today. "He has bumped up against a great many of the largest eastern interests, and up in this country we still consider him an irresistible force. Whether there is an immovable body now in his track remains to be seen."

In 1856 James Jerome Hill borrowed the money to pay his way from his father's farm in Canada to the village of St. Paul. He has lived there ever since, and today they say he is worth $100,000,000. But that is only a brutal and uninteresting statement of his career.

"Get it from somebody else," he said. "Ask anybody else. I don't want to talk about it."

Early Days in St. Paul.

They tell marvelous tales of Hill's early days in St. Paul. The man looms so large in the development of the northwest that his early doings are already a part of tradition. But from the start he was interested in transportation. At first a shipping clerk for a packet line running on the Mississippi, then he organized a steamboat line of his own, which ran up the Red river of the north and brought back the furs which, before that time, had crawled slowly southward in curious two wheeled wooden carts.

He was the first man to bring coal to St. Paul. It came up the river in steamboats in which Hill had by this time acquired an interest.

They were talking railroads and building them, too, in those days. A lot of Dutch capitalists dropped $30,000,000 in a little line called the St. Paul and Pacific railroad. Everything which ran east and west at that ambitious time was certain to have Pacific as a part of its name.

Buys a Railroad, People Laugh.

With the aid of Canadian bankers Mr. Hill bought up the bankrupt road and announced that eventually he should build it through to Puget Sound. People laughed. For, just to the south, was the Northern Pacific, aided by enormous government grants; to the north, the Canadian Pacific was being rushed through to the coast with large government aid.

Perhaps Hill did not want any government subsidies. At any rate he did not get any, and it was worthy of note that the Great Northern, running from Lake Superior to Seattle, was built without a cent of government aid.

But it took time to force the road westward. Out in Dakota, when Hill took hold in 1879, the settlers were few, far between, and badly discouraged. And from the first Mr. Hill had blazoned on his banner the motto, "Develop the country."

"It was years ago," said Mr. Hill, "that I made up my mind that something must be done to keep the people along our lines from being forced to depend on a single crop. They were all raising wheat. Sometimes wheat failed and then there was the devil to pay. I bought about 900 Polled Angus and shorthorn bulls and as many thousand blooded swine and distributed them among the farmers all along the Great Northern. That got the people interested in stock raising. As a result I believe the Great Northern handles more cattle and hogs today than any road running into St. Paul."

"Yim Hell's Black Bulls."

The fame of that free distribution of blooded cattle is still fresh in the minds of hundreds of northwestern settlers, and they do say that "Yim Hell's black bulls" have been the controlling factor in more than one hot political contest.

Early Mr. Hill made a rule that no one connected in an official position with his railroad company should have any interest in the selection or ownership of town sites along the road. One or two prominent employés have been discharged for violating this injunction, for Hill has never hesitated to cut off heads when their owners did not obey him. Consequently you will find plenty of former employés who denounce Hill as a domineering and overbearing dictator. He is domineering and he is a dictator. No man could accomplish what he has done and not be both. But the town site rule was a good one. It kept the road from becoming involved in local controversies.

How to Fill "Empties."

Hill and the Great Northern did not reach Puget sound and the Pacific until 1893. And if you read carefully from now on you may get a clear understanding of what the present fight in the courts is about.

At the start, the Hill road found a certain market on the Pacific coast for eastern products. It could fill its freight cars with household and other supplies for consumption in the state of Washington. But there was nothing which Washington produced at that time which could be shipped east at a profit. Consequently the Hill road was forced to pull empty freight cars back from the Pacific to its St. Paul terminus. That was unprofitable business.

It is one of the Hill maxims that to make railroading profitable you must have your cars full both coming and going. The great product of Washington then, as now, was lumber and shingles. The then freight rate on lumber from Puget sound to Lake Superior was 60 cents a hundred. At that rate there was no profit in it to the shipper, and the lumber did not come east. Hill wanted that lumber to fill his empty east bound freight cars. He said to the lumbermen:

"What rate shall I make you in order that you may make the business of shipping lumber east a profitable one?"

They asked for a rate of 50 cents. Hill laughed at them and made it 40 cents.

From that time on the shipments of lumber from Washington to Lake Superior increased enormously. It increased so rapidly that Hill's old difficulty was now reversed. Instead of bringing empty freight cars from the west, he had to send thousands of empties to Puget sound to get the lumber that was waiting for shipment. That, too, was bad business.

It became necessary to find a market for products which could fill these empty west bound freight cars. It was useless to attempt to increase the consumption along the Pacific coast sufficiently to keep these cars full. As the Pacific coast country developed it came to depend more and more on its productions, and instead of wanting more from the east it wanted less.

Jumps the Pacific.

Where, then, was the market to be found? Hill has the mind of a dreamer, and, as a friend put it, "he makes his dreams come true." He simply jumped across the Pacific ocean and found his market in Japan.

"I knew that the oriental peoples were poor," said Mr. Hill, "but I knew also that every man must have things to eat and to wear. If we could sell them cheaper than any one else there was our chance. Flour and cotton!"

Eastern financiers laughed when they heard Jim Hill's plan of shipping cotton brought from the south by the northern route across the Pacific. They laugh now no longer.

But in order to get the cotton, and in order to provide proper feeding places and proper markets for the cattle raised along the line of the Great Northern, it became necessary for that railroad system to have a sure and certain connection with the south and west.

Had to Have the Burlington.

It was for this purpose that the Great Northern acquired a half interest in the great Burlington railroad system. At St. Louis the Burlington connects with the cotton roads of the south, and its branches run through the corn producing states of Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska.

In some way, and through some complication of interests which only great financiers could explain—and they won't—the Northern Pacific railroad company acquired the other half ownership of the Burlington road.

And here you see the reason why Hill says that if control of the Northern Pacific passes into hostile hands he will sell out the Great Northern and leave the whole great northwest to look out for itself. The control of the Great Northern carries with it a half interest in the Burlington, Hill's feeder to the south and west, and, with a hostile hand on the Burlington, he declares that the Great Northern would be bottled up and its usefulness crippled. It is really for this control of the Burlington that Hill and Harriman are fighting today.

Other things besides flour and cotton have gone across the Pacific from Puget sound as a result of Mr. Hill's efforts.

Sells Japan Steel Rails.

"In 1896," he said, "just before the national election, a party of Japanese capitalists stopped in St. Paul on their way to Europe, to place an order for 15,000 tons of steel rails. It seemed to me too bad that that order should go across the water while we had rolling mills which were, to say the least, not working overtime.

"I got the Japanese to delay a little while and I cabled to England and to Belgium for prices on steel rails and for freight rates to Japan by way of the Suez canal. At the same time I telegraphed John W. Gates to come up from Chicago.

"When I got answers to my cablegrams I gave Gates a figure on a freight rate to Japan for his rails. He put in his bid, got the order, and so the first shipment of American steel rails went out into the orient."

Puget Sound a Winner.

Under Mr. Hill's direction Puget Sound has already passed San Francisco in the amount of its yearly exports. With the new and immense freight carriers which he has had built for that service it is confidently expected that every year will show a still greater increase.

The Harriman combination of transcontinental railroads, which makes its western terminus at San Francisco, is perhaps jealous of the increasing importance of Puget Sound ports in the way of exports to the orient. Perhaps they would be glad to secure the control of the Burlington, and so to cripple the work of the Great Northern in fostering that export trade.

If this be true—and it is certainly the position of Mr. Hill and his friends—one needs no further explanation for that great struggle for the control of the Northern Pacific, which resulted in the panic of May, 1901, and for the formation of the Northern Securities company, which secured the working together of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Burlington interests.

In view of the case, they were fighting in the first place not for the control of the Northern Pacific railroad company alone but for the control of the export trade with the orient. The formation of the Northern Securities guaranteed to the northwest an increasing control of that trade, and in fighting against the Securities company the officials of the northwestern states were fighting not their own battle but that of San Francisco. So, at least, Mr. Hill would ask the public to understand the situation.

Burying the Merger Company.

In the distribution of the assets of the Northern Securities company, the plan of M. Hill and Mr. Morgan is to divide all these assets among all the stockholders, giving to each his pro rata share of both Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock. Harriman put into the Northern Securities pool an admitted majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific company. He wants it back again. He claims that Hill's plan of distribution would leave the control of both Northern Pacific and Great Northern in the hands of Hill, Morgan, and their friends. Hill claims, on the other hand, that his plan will distribute Northern Pacific stock among some 3,000 individuals, of whom at least fifty-eight of the largest would have to combine to control the company.

On April 23 the stockholders of the Northern Securities company are called to vote on the adoption of the plan proposed by Mr. Hill. It is probable that before that date the United States Circuit court will render its decision as to whether it will permit Mr. Harriman to interfere.

Is It Hill's Waterloo?

Meanwhile the people of the northwest are talking of little else than the possibility of their Napoleon finally meeting his Waterloo. And the little, short, broad shouldered, deep chested man, with his immense head, bald on top and in front, and thatched at the sides with a thick crop of long, iron gray hair, sits at his desk in the president's office of the Great Northern system, puffing at a black cigar, pulling at his short, roughly trimmed gray beard, and talking now with a wheat farmer from North Dakota, now with a fruit shipper from the Columbia valley of Washington, and then turning to discuss the situation with some of the great railroad financiers of the east who have been made to feel his power.

To talk with James J. Hill is to get an impression of immense vitality, of tremendous and unshaken will, which makes the thought of his present retirement seem little less than ridiculous.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.

SENATE EXONERATES DIETRICH.

Special Committee of Inquiry Makes Unanimous Report Declaring He Did No Wrong.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Senator Dietrich of Nebraska has been declared by a special committee of congress to be not guilty of any violation of the statutes of the United States or of any corrupt or unworthy conduct relating either to the appointment of Jacob Fisher as postmaster at Hastings, Neb., or the leasing of the building in that city to the United States for a postoffice.

The committee which investigated the charges against Senator Dietrich was composed of Senators Hoar, Platt of Connecticut, Spooner, Cockrell, and Pettus. Three members of the committee are republicans and two democrats.

The report is unanimous and says the scope of the inquiry was broader than was actually needed by even hearsay evidence and did not in any way tend to shake the conclusion reached.

MR. CLEVELAND IS CRITICISED.

Cochran of Missouri Denounces the Former President in Lower House.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—In the house of representatives today Mr. Cochran [Mo.] criticised the "usurpation of the legislative power by the executive," and said ex-President Cleveland had given the most notable instance of such usurpation in forcing his financial policies on the people.

Mr. Cleveland, he declared, was a man whose friendship meant destruction, whose touch meant paralysis, and whose support meant dishonor. He declared Mr. Cleveland had been put into exile never again to be reinstated in the confidence of the people.

There was an extended debate over a resolution to permit Col. Thomas W. Symons of the engineer corps of the army to serve in the advisory board of consulting engineers in connection with internal improvements in the state of New York. After several fiery speeches had been made in opposition to the resolution it was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

Church Society to Have Fair.

The April society of Trinity Episcopal church, Michigan avenue and Twenty-sixth street, will hold a fair and festival in the parish house today from 3 to 11 p. m.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11, 1904.—Sealed proposals will be opened at this department at 2 o'clock p. m. on Monday, April 25, 1904, for supplying to United States buildings under the control of this department, east of the Rocky Mountains, as the requirements of the service may demand, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, the following described articles:

Clocks: 8 day, pendulum, or electric wall clocks, with 12-inch dials, of standard make; frames to be oak, cherry, or walnut. No stated form of proposal is necessary, but the bids should be explicit in description, and accompanied by samples of clocks.

Toilet paper and toilet paper fixtures: No stated form of proposal is furnished or required. Bids should be accompanied by samples of paper and fixtures.

Proposals for toilet paper must be accompanied by certified checks, drawn to the order of the Secretary of the Treasury, in the sum of $200.00 as a guarantee of good faith. The prices stated on the above described articles must include all expenses incident to delivery to such buildings as the department may, from time to time, designate. The department reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive defects. Proposals should be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C., and indorsed, respectively, "Proposals for Clocks," and "Proposals for Toilet Paper." H. A. TAYLOR, Assistant Secretary.

JOAN OF ARC IS AMONG EVICTED.

Her Father's Refusal to Pay Increased Rent Puts Both in the Street.

WIFE'S COOKING IN COURT

Julius Bonam, Arrested for Non-Support, Shows Sample Noodle to Judge.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE
New York, April 14.

East Side Joan of Arc Is Evicted by Landlord.

Bertha E. Leibson, the 17 year old girl who has been called the Joan of Arc of the east side, because she made speeches denouncing the landlords, was evicted today with her father, mother, and younger brother from their home and place of business, 246 Second street, for refusing to pay increased rent. A city marshal called at the building early this morning with a dispossess notice and removed into the street everything in the rooms occupied by the Leibsons, which were on the first floor. News of the eviction spread quickly, and a large crowd of the girl's friends began to gather. The police made them move on. Miss Leibson said their landlord, Henry Rosenberg, had raised the rent without notice from $23 to $25 a month, and her father, although he is able to pay it, refused to do so.

"Twelve years ago," she continued, "we came from Russia to escape oppression, but we have found greater tyranny here than we experienced in Russia."

Henry Rosenberg, the landlord, said he had an understanding with the Leibsons when they came into his building a year ago that their rent should be raised to $25 a month when they had got their dyeing and cleaning business established, but Leibson refused to pay when the raise was made.

For the first time in many years New Yorkers today witnessed a real snow storm in mid-April. At one period it assumed the proportions of a regular winter storm.

Wife's Cooking Displayed in Court as Evidence.

Julius Bonam of Jersey City was arraigned before Police Justice Higgins today, charged with failing to provide for his wife and 3 year old son. "Judge," said Bonam, "I can't stand this woman's cooking. When she makes noodle soup the noodles are hard as rocks. I'll show you some of them." Thereupon Bonam drew from his pocket a handkerchief which contained a piece of meat and several hard balls that seemed to be made of flour, which, he said, were sample noodles his wife manufactured.

"Those things nearly break my teeth," continued Bonam. "Another thing I want to tell you about is that my wife won't wash my shirts. See," throwing open his waistcoat, "look at that shirt! When I want a change I must buy a new shirt. As an honest man, judge, could you eat those noodles?"

"I don't think I'd try," said the justice.

Mrs. Bonam said the noodles and meat were all right when first cooked, but her husband had dried them out in order to make an effective exhibit in court. She accused her husband of cruelty. Bonam was paroled with the understanding that he should provide for his family.

Federal Bank Closed and Little Cash Is Found.

As the climax of an official inquiry into the business of the Globe Securities company, David Rothschild and a group of financiers with which he is associated, F. D. Kilburn, state superintendent of banking, today noon closed the doors of the Federal bank and its Grand street branch, of which Rothschild was founder and president until two months ago. Within a few hours a representative of the district attorney was in consultation with the banking authorities. The Federal bank on paper has a capital stock of $250,000, surplus of $50,000, and loans due amounting to $600,000. Against this is charged $350,000 deposits and $38,000 due on borrowed money, but of $600,000 in bills payable it has been found that practically all is on unsecured notes, on which are the names of the Globe Securities company, David Rothschild, and a long list of persons who cannot be found or else have no financial rating, good, bad, or indifferent. Against this liability all that could be found today to pay depositors was $52,000, distributed among banks. The Globe Securities company is the concern which has been charged by customers with exacting usurious interest.

President's Uncle Decries Jeffersonian Simplicity.

Days of "Jeffersonian simplicity" are over forever, according to Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the president. Mr. Roosevelt, who is an active democrat, expressed this belief in an address before the "Thirteen club," at a celebration of Thomas Jefferson's birthday. In arranging the banquet hall every precaution was taken to set at naught the superstition against thirteen. In the course of his speech Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The days of Jeffersonian simplicity are over. I have a sympathy with them, but sometimes I have had doubts about the sincerity of the simplicity of which we have heard so much. Was there not a little too much in riding up to the capitol, hitching the horse to a post, and stepping into the courtroom to take the oath of office? Would our citizens approve if the chief magistrate of this great and powerful nation were today to so disregard the ordinary proprieties and amenities as to follow these examples?"

Leader of East Side Thugs Is Convicted.

Edward "Monk" Eastman, leader of an east side band of thugs, to whom have been credited many deeds of lawlessness in this city and vicinity, was today convicted of an attempt to shoot George F. Bryan, a private detective. The attempt upon Bryan's life was made one night last February when Bryan was endeavoring to arrest one of Eastman's companions. The maximum penalty is ten years in state prison. For several years the "Eastman gang" has terrorized the east side of the city, and it has been found impossible to secure testimony against them because of fears of bodily harm. Numerous assaults have been charged to them, one of the most notable being on John McMahon, former coachman of David Lamar, at the later's instigation.

Theatrical Managers Change Advertising Plans.

At the regular meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association of New York at the Hudson theater, it was decided to form a national association of managers next autumn, do away with window and street lithographing, require the combination of managers to have their scenery fireproofed, and aid the actors' fund by imposing a tax of 10 cents on complimentary tickets. A resolution was adopted providing that after Aug. 1, 1904, no member of the association shall use any form of advertising for which tickets of admission may be given and no advertising shall be done in New York by lithographs otherwise than rented boardings, photographs, hangers, banners, snipes, or stretchers.

Alleged Bogus Publishers' Agent Is Caught.

A man known as John D. Lothrop, Thomas G. Cook, Walter C. Lewis, and Arthur H. Lee has been arrested in Hackensack, N. J., on charges of obtaining $1,600 under false pretenses from a Newark trust company. Lothrop posed as a buyer of real estate and deposited certified checks for $16,000 in one bank at Hackensack. Lothrop is alleged to have represented himself as agent for many prominent publishers in the west.

YOUNGEST JUSTICE IN COOK COUNTY.

EDWARD J· MURPHY

Edward J. Murphy, elected justice of the peace in Evanston to take the place made vacant by the death of his father, John C. Murphy, "the marrying justice," is the youngest man holding that office in Cook county, and probably the youngest in the state. Mr. Murphy is 24 years old, and had just completed his legal studies in the Northwestern university law school at the time of his father's death two months ago. The latter, who was killed in a railroad wreck in California, was the first white child born in Evanston.

BOOM REEVES AS LEADER.

REPUBLICANS SUPPORT HIM FOR THE STATE CHAIRMANSHIP.

Candidacy Announced After Meeting of Party Chiefs at Headquarters—Action an Innovation, Because Avowal Is Not Customary Before Delegates Assemble—Sharp Contest Is Probable, Yates Forces Sending Word They Will Oppose Aspirant.

Republican leaders who supported former Congressman Walter Reeves for governor four years ago have put him forward as a candidate for chairman of the state convention. This is an innovation.

It has been customary for party chiefs and gubernatorial aspirants to make a choice for chairman long in advance of the convention, but no republican has ever become an avowed candidate for the position prior to the assembling of delegates.

Mr. Reeves' candidacy was announced yesterday after a conference at state headquarters, in which the principal participants were John C. Ames of La Salle county, Congressman Rodenberg, Representative William E. Trautmann and Henry Bader of East St. Louis, and Mr. Reeves.

The full meaning of their action was not explained. It had the appearance of being a Lowden movement, but the St. Clair county visitors asserted it was not in the interests of any candidate for governor. Mr. Reeves protested that he was not a "bidder" for the honor and would not make any sort of a contest for it.

The chairmanship probably will be contested for as sharply as it was at the Peoria convention, with Gov. Yates and his supporters against the field. Soon after Mr. Reeves' name was mentioned in connection with the place word came from the governor's headquarters that the candidate would be opposed with all the strength and influence that the Yates people could muster.

WIN VICTORY OVER PRIMARIES.

Deneen Men's Recommendations to Be Adopted, Committee Meeting Being Held Next Wednesday.

Many members of the republican county committee were surprised yesterday morning when they received notices of a meeting next Wednesday, to call the primaries and county convention. Committeemen belonging to the Lowden camp had declared the notices would not be issued this week. Chairman Conway's departure from the city gave rise to a story that he went away to avoid being forced to act, but he left the notices with the secretary. This shows that the recommendations of the Deneen committee of seven are to be acted upon, as a majority of the organization is with the state's attorney. May 5 is the earliest date on which the committee can agree, and it practically has been decided that May 9 will be recommended for the primaries. The question of holding the convention before or after the state convention is in dispute, but it is said the county meeting will follow.

POLITICAL NOTES BY WIRE.

BOSTON, MASS.—The republican state convention, which will elect four delegates at large to the national convention at Chicago, will be held in Tremont temple on Friday. It is expected the delegates will be Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, former Gov. Murray W. Crane, former Gov. John D. Long, and Col. E. C. Benton.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The state republican convention selected four delegates to the republican national convention at Chicago, and instructed them to support Roosevelt for president.

FRANK RAYMOND BAKER DEAD.

Leading Stock Broker Succumbs to Paralysis in Kansas City While Traveling for Health.

Frank Raymond Baker, a leading stock broker of Chicago, died Wednesday noon at Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Baker, who had offices at 108 La Salle street, suffered a stroke of paralysis and left Chicago on Good Friday in search of health. He had another stroke on Tuesday, and was taken to a hospital, where he died. The report of Mr. Baker's death was received in Chicago yesterday and was not unexpected by his friends. He was a widower and left no children. His brother, Charles W. Baker, is secretary of the Chicago live stock commission. The funeral will be Sunday afternoon from St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, Englewood.

YATES CENTERS FORCES IN ADAMS

'Rabbit Shepherds' Innumerable Gathering in Behalf of the Governor.

LOWDEN IS HANDICAPPED

State Machine Expected to Capture Delegation While Colonel Is Busy in Chicago.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Quincy, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—There is a "rabbit shepherd" for every rabbit in Adams county, and as rapidly as a new rabbit is discovered a new shepherd is appointed by Gov. Yates.

That is the Lowden charge against the administration in Quincy. It may be a trifle exaggerated. It may be that there is only one shepherd for every two rabbits. And rabbit shepherds are not the only state employés busy earning their salaries within this county.

Every other branch of the administration is represented, from the state board of pardons to the door guards of various institutions. Some of the Lowden men have had their ears glued to the long distance telephone and claim to have heard the governor's lieutenants promising appointments in every township. They say they have heard of appointments being given out over the telephone. The political sense of hearing often is acute.

Wants to Get First on Roll Call.

It is a fact, however, and not fancy, that Gov. Yates is bending every energy to capture the first county on the roll call. This is his second visit here since the date of the primaries was set, and this time he has spent three days in the county, speaking twice tonight in Quincy to large audiences. With prophetic ears he can hear the roll call at the state convention starting off with: "Adams, twenty for Yates," and it pleases him, sounds like a trumpet announcing the get away of the band wagon. He has dreamed dreams and has seen visions to that effect.

The fact that Col. Lowden is tied up in Cook county in a contest with Deneen helps Yates' cause here in Adams.

Still Looking for Shower of Gold.

It has not rained money yet, it is said, but some of the citizens still are watching the daily weather reports, as there is plenty of time. Signs of sudden prosperity have appeared in some sections of the city, but the Lowden men say this is all because of Yates' money.

Several townships are conceded to Yates because of state officials. They are Burton, Fall Creek, Houston, Liberty, Northeast, and Riverside. The last is the township containing the Old Soldiers' home, and is said to be absolutely hopeless for any candidate except the governor. Capt. Somerville, the superintendent, is expected to carry it without contest.

Yates Machine Working Well.

The state machine is especially strong in this county and numbers among its cogs T. J. Clarke of the Chester commission, Supt. Somerville of the home, Dr. D. M. Landom, surgeon of the home; F. W. Menkes, trustee of the Jacksonville asylum; Col. George Cottrell of the staff, and S. H. Trego of the Clinton board. To these are added a small army of employés who are at the home earning state salaries by doing political work, and then still in addition is the "flying squadron," which will be augmented as soon as the Stark county primaries are over, thus releasing one division of the squad.

Gov. Yates has been brave enough to submit to questioning at some of his meetings.

"How about political assessments?" asked one worried Yates supporter, yearning for information. And the governor said solemnly that not a cent had been asked of the state employés. He did. He sat on the platform and said it.

Gov. Yates may be reëlected to succeed himself, but some people are greatly afraid he will never jolt George Washington off his pedestal.

Two Conventions at Toledo.

Toledo, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Two republican conventions for Cumberland county were held here today, one by the Yates men and the other by the Hamlin men. There were contesting delegations from Greenup and Neoga, the Yates convention accepting one set and the Hamlin convention the other.

Two sets of delegates, nine each, were also selected to attend the senatorial convention when called.

Mason County Is for Yates.

Mason City, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—The Mason county republican convention met here today. There was no contest on the governorship question, the county's five delegates to the state convention being given strong instructions for Yates. The delegates also were instructed for Chiperfield for attorney general.

DENEEN ASSAILS YATES RULE.

Says Petty Jobs Should Be Taken Out of Politics, and Criticises Officeholders.

State's Attorney Charles S. Deneen went into Ravenswood last night, addressing a large audience in Bennett's hall. He was enthusiastically received.

"I don't speak as a civil service reformer," he said, "but the time has come to take the little state jobs out of politics. They are filled by good for nothing loafers, drones, and whittlers, relatives of Yates' political henchmen.

"There are thousands of habitual criminals in Chicago who have not been improved by serving time at Pontiac, Joliet, or Chester, because all these institutions are grossly mismanaged.

"I believe we should have a compulsory uniform primary law."

Representative Harry Oldam, preceding Mr. Deneen, characterized the campaign as a "war for supremacy in the republican party," and "a revolt against the slavery of the political boss." He reviewed the revolt following Speaker Miller's denial of a roll call on amendments to the Lindly bill, and declared Miller had been only "the weak tool of his bosses."

Dr. Jones Lauds Deneen.

At the meeting of the Welsh-American Deneen club of Cook county last night, Jenkin Lloyd Jones declared in favor of Deneen for governor. In his speech at the Sherman house he declared:

"Of all candidates Deneen is the best equipped in the head; he is the best balanced in the heart; he is probably the cleanest handed. Until a better man appears I stand for Deneen. Show me the candidate who is nearest to the man who has debauched the politics of our ward and I'll vote for the other fellow every time."

Crowd at Noonday Meeting.

Frank O. Lowden's first noon hour meeting at McVicker's theater drew a crowd that filled the house. In his advocacy of a state primary law the candidate gave one or two reasons he had not mentioned before. Among these were that in Winnebago and other counties he had received a majority of the popular vote yet failed to get the delegates.

The candidate was given a reception at the South Side Turner hall in the evening, where he addressed the Republican club of the Twentieth ward and voters from other wards. Nearly 500 were present.

At his last evening meeting Col. Lowden spoke at Illinois hall, 293 Thirty-fifth street. Nearly 2,000 persons were present and an overflow meeting was held on the sidewalk. The candidate said:

"When did Mr. Deneen become a reformer and abandon the machine? Was it when he discovered the machine would not support his candidacy?"

J. Clark Andress.

Trenton, N. J., April 14.—[Special.]—The regular democratic state convention was held here today and after passing a set of resolutions selected delegates at large to the St. Louis national convention. The unit rule was adopted and the delegation goes uninstructed.

The regular convention was followed by a Hearst convention at the Hearst headquarters, the bolters numbering about 100. The regular convention numbered about 1,200.

District Delegates Named.

The district delegates named by the regular convention are:

1. William J. Thompson.
2. Michael A. Devine.
3. O. F. Bogardus.
4. Charles H. Gallagher.
5. Dewitt C. Flanagan.
6. William D. Gourley.
7. John R. Hardin.
8. James R. Nugent.
9. Lucius F. Donohue.
10. John Mullen.

The bolting convention also named five district delegates.

The regular convention adopted a set of resolutions condemning the administration regarding the Panama canal, the trusts, and tariff.

Bolters Denounce Regulars.

In the bolting convention a resolution was introduced declaring that the regular convention had been controlled by the interests of corporations and agents of the republican party and that the Hearst delegates had been deprived of their rights. It was referred to a committee of ten.

New Mexico Is for Hearst.

Silver City, N. M., April 14.—By a vote of 79 to 77, after a bitter fight, the territorial democratic convention this afternoon instructed the New Mexico delegates to the national convention to vote for William R. Hearst for the presidency.

DELEGATES TO CHICAGO.

George W. Atkinson,
James L. Caldwell,
Sydney T. Mallory,
M. Pritchard.

Charleston, W. Va., April 14.—With the meeting of the republican state convention today the row in the state committee has reached a more bitter stage. Dawson, the chairman of the committee, is a candidate for governor and the friends of Teter, the opposing candidate, charge him with using his office in an unfair way to promote his candidacy. They tried tonight to oust him but on a test vote, it is claimed, he announced the result as opposite to the way the recorded vote showed it to be, and then declared the committee adjourned. A majority of the committee elected a new chairman.

The delegates at large were instructed for Roosevelt for president and Elkins for vice president. All the district conventions previously had acted likewise, making fourteen delegates secure in the Roosevelt column. The feature of the convention was the keynote speech of Senator Scott.

The resolutions deplored the death of McKinley and Hanna, indorsed Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, and approved the records of Senators Scott and Elkins.

NEW YORK DELEGATES NAMED.

Republicans in Eleven Congressional Districts of Manhattan and Bronx Make Selections.

New York, April 14.—Republican conventions held tonight in the eleven congressional districts of Manhattan and the Bronx elected delegates and alternates to the national convention. Seven of the conventions instructed for Roosevelt and two others indorsed his administration.

There was no contest except in the Fifteenth district, where Lemuel E. Quigg won against Congressman William H. Douglas after a bitter fight.

Among the delegates elected were former Secretary of War Elihu Root, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university, Edward Lauterbach, Cornelius N. Bliss, former Judge Julius M. Mayer, and Judge William K. Olcott.

FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1904.

Why Not Obey the Law? Some members of the Chicago Automobile club are seeking to come in under the Banker injunction so as to evade license examinations and the numbering of vehicles. There is no reason why any person driving an automobile through Chicago streets should not willingly go through the prescribed form of assuring nearly 2,000,000 other people that he knows what he is doing. If he does know and is determined to respect the rights of others he should not be fighting the numbering of his vehicle, the one measure for tracing the law breaking motorist. As for the cost of conforming to the ordinance requiring license, it is $3 for a first examination of twenty minutes; thereafter $1 a year for license renewal. As for numbers, all machines virtually are provided with them. To take them off in defiance of the ordinance is to proclaim defiance of police regulations and the rights of the people. The city cannot take the Appellate court decision too quickly to the Supreme court.

Hobson Will Not Go to Congress. Capt. Hobson's congressional campaign in the Sixth district of Alabama seems to have been postponed too long. That is the reason for its failure. Four years ago there is scarcely a doubt that Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson of the sunken Merrimac in Santiago harbor could have won the seat of the veteran Congressman Bankhead. This year, however, not even Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson has come within 450 votes of defeating the renomination of Mr. Bankhead. The democrats in Hobson's district have not forgotten his services in the Spanish war. They are proud of them, but they are not so proud as to be willing to send him to the house of representatives in the place of a man who has served them well for eighteen years and has high standing in the house. The naval or military hero who wishes to compete with civilians for office should strike while the iron is hot and before the people have time to reflect that a hero may not make an efficient civil officer.

Policemen Need Revolvers. Within a fortnight the revolver of the Chicago policeman has been unusually conspicuous. One officer, hurrying for a car, dropped the weapon from his pocket and the bullet lodged in his leg. Another patrolman fired upon a crowd of stone throwing strikers and killed a man. In defense of his life against an unprovoked assault, another seriously wounded an assailant. On two or three occasions bullets fired into the pavements have glanced into the bodies of escaping thugs and crooks and halted them. All of which promises to stir up the individuals who rise occasionally to protest against the carrying of weapons by policemen and say they should use moral suasion and not the revolver or club. Nobody will listen to them. Chicago is not yet ready for the policeman without a gun. There are many sections of the city where at night he needs two. To the average law abiding, decent citizen it may seem strange that a 250 pound policeman, walking a quiet day beat in a quiet neighborhood, should be armed with a revolver and club. But one night of a totally disarmed police force, provided the fact were made widely known, would convert the advocate of such a force, who for the most part has only ethical grounds for his criticisms of armed officers. A proper personnel and after that proper discipline for the police department are of first consideration. Having these, the department may be trusted with clubs and revolvers.

ON THE WAY TO LHASSA.

The British secretary of war has notified the house of commons that it is not the desire of the government to occupy Tibet or to establish a permanent mission there, but it is absolutely resolved that if any power is to be predominant in that country it must be Great Britain. The house of commons approves of that resolve. It voted by more than four to one to authorize the Indian army to assist in convincing the Tibetans that they should receive the political agent who is paying them a visit.

The Tibetans have not been persuaded yet. They made an unsuccessful attempt early in the week to stop the advance of their British visitors, who say they come on a peaceful errand, but are quick to use their rifles. In the last engagement 200 Tibetans were killed and a few English were wounded, but none killed. That reads more like a slaughter than a fight. If the British had encountered Afghans, trained in fighting, there would have been no such disparity of losses, but the Tibetans are an unwarlike lot, and it may be that the services of the Indian army will not be required.

The latest dispatches report that Tibetan delegates are on their way to Gyangtse, where the British forces now are. It may be that they are coming to sue for peace. Whether that is their object, or they intend to repeat the reasons why they are unwilling to receive the political agent, the result will be the same. The Tibetan question is settled. England is determined to be the dominant power in Tibet, and there is nobody at this time to say her nay. Even if the Balfour administration were to go out and a liberal one to come in, there would be no change of policy as regards Tibet. It may not be long before the "Forbidden City" is no longer forbidden, and European visitors will be interviewing the Dalai lama.

MILES HELPED TO DO IT.

Gen. Miles is distressed when he hears his country spoken of as a "world power." He is grieved because its flag floats over the Philippines, and would like to see it hauled down within 200 days. He professes to believe that would be sufficient time in which to bring about what he calls the "glorious result" of establishing a Philippine republic.

Gen. Miles cannot undo his own work. He won distinction among the patriotic, gallant men who fought for the preservation of the union. But for his and their bravery and military skill the United States would not be a "world power," would not be the master of the Philippines and Porto Rico, and would not have been the emancipator of the Cubans.

Mr. Seward said on the eve of the civil war: "Dissolution would not only arrest but extinguish the greatness of our country. Even if separate confederacies could exist and endure, they could severally preserve no share of the common prestige of the union. Nor will great achievements be possible for the new confederacies." The dissolution of the union was prevented. The United States did not disappear to make room for "obscure republics of North America."

The inevitable sequence of the victory over secession was the advent of the United States on the scene as a "world power" in the ordinary sense of the term and also in an industrial sense. It was because the civil war ended as it did that Gen. Miles became commander in chief of the army and led soldiers to Porto Rico, an island which he does not say should be given up. If he had led a victorious army to the Philippines he would not be so ready to turn them adrift.

Gen. Miles may deplore as much as he pleases the fact that the American republic is a "world power," but he will be remembered only because of what he did to bring it about.

SPELLING AND SANITATION.

Somewhere in their philosophies Dr. Arnold Tompkins of the Normal school and the board of education and the teachers in the public schools should get together. Dr. Tompkins has discovered that a pupil should spell reasonably well but not too well, as if one can spell too well. Coming down to the work of the housemaid, he argues that she should take up the broom and duster and mop with all the zeal shown by the artist who sits down to his canvas. On the other hand, the board of education has been in favor of good spelling and vertical writing, while as to the use of the mop and duster, it seems to have ignored them until a principalship in some of the older school buildings will not tempt a grade teacher to accept promotion to the position.

If it were at all necessary, it might be urged that between sanitation and spelling a proper compromise could be effected. But it is easy to have both. If there is a school building in Chicago in which in a few months five teachers and a dozen pupils are made ill for periods of months, that building should have its doors nailed up until it can be made fit to study in. If there is a school which is not making effort to turn out pupils who are observant enough even to learn how to spell, its management should be brought up and questioned.

It will be the opinion of every housekeeper and office building tenant that to scrub only once in two weeks the floors of the rooms in school most likely to get dirty is not enough. To turn out a high school graduate who expects the world at large to look upon his poor writing and poor spelling as significant of higher culture and higher thought is ridiculous. Everybody is lenient always with the person who admits that he has forgotten his algebra, and has not condemned ignorance of vulgar fractions. But it will be long before educated people will cease to speak scornfully of the poor speller. There are more words to spell in the English language today than ever before, and hence there should be better methods for teaching spelling. So there are more sanitary precautions to be observed than science dreamed of twenty-five years ago. Let spelling and sanitation go together in the schools.

THEY DIED FOR THEIR COUNTRY.

The court of inquiry which will investigate the dreadful accident on the Missouri, which cost more naval officers and men their lives than the war with Spain did, may determine its cause conclusively. Until the court shall have done its work the cause can only be guessed at. The guess made by some of the navy men at Washington is that rivalry among the gun crews of different warships as to which could fire the largest number of shots in a given time has made them careless, ready to take chances, and neglectful of regulations.

That may be true to a certain extent, but officers are more likely to be cautious and regardful of regulations than seamen are, and officers of the Missouri were in the turret superintending the firing when the explosion occurred. It is not the opinion of the president that there was a lack of care, for he says, "in order efficiently to prepare for war risks must be run similar in kind, though not in degree, to the risk run in battle, and these men have died for their country as much as if the ship had been in action against the enemy."

Serious accidents happen on shipboard and elsewhere when explosives are handled, even though every conceivable precaution has been taken. It may be that it is impossible to train men to use effectively the big guns of the warships and at the same time eliminate altogether the possibility of a casualty like that which befell the Missouri. In that event one can only hope that accidents will be of rare occurrence, that each will be followed by the adoption of additional safeguards which will make its recurrence less likely.

REMOVE THE LIMIT.

Fourteen years ago congress directed that the amount of subsidiary silver outstanding at any one time should not exceed $100,000,000. The limitation was harmless when imposed, but it will be harmful soon, for the country will need a larger amount to do its retail business without inconvenience. There is no greater annoyance than a scarcity of small change. There is in circulation now about $96,000,000 worth of subsidiary silver, and timely provision should be made for a larger stock.

The house committee on banking and currency recommends that the limitation be repealed and the secretary of the treasury be authorized to coin as many halves, quarters, and dimes as the increasing business of the country calls for, and that the silver be obtained by melting down some of the unused silver dollars piled up in vaults. There are over 100,000,000 of them against which no certificates have been issued, and which might as well be converted into small change. In that shape they will circulate freely. If silver is not procured in that way it will be necessary to go into the market and buy bullion.

John Sharp Williams, the democratic leader in the house, has given the republicans to understand that there will be no objection to increasing the volume of subsidiary currency, but that a proposition to melt down silver dollars—"dollars of the daddies"—cannot be entertained. It would be an act of sacrilege to put one of them in the melting pot. Not all the democrats by any means have ceased to make a fetich of the silver dollar.

The volume of money in circulation will not be reduced by melting down legal tender dollars which do not circulate, not even by proxy. There is absolutely no reason why the proposition of the committee on banking and currency should not be carried out. But if the democrats are not yet healed of their silver delusions it may be expedient to yield a point to them in order to secure the repeal of the limitation and thus enable the treasury department to keep the people supplied with small silver.

THE frosts, so far as we are able to ascertain, are not killing any fruit buds in this section.

Later—there are no fruit buds.

ONE trouble about finding a republican candidate for the vice presidency possibly may be that whoever is nominated will be morally certain he can't escape the office.

THE sultan of Turkey will have to be particularly obstreperous to attract any attention at this juncture.

THE "life" of a big gun is said to be 100 shots. Many of the big guns on the Japanese warships must have been shot to death by this time.

"ALL the same," declares the Troy (N. Y.) Times, "the census estimate is undoubtedly more reliable than Chicago guesswork." Out here it is considered merely a census guesstimate.

THE battleship Texas, formerly the hard luck ship of the navy, willingly resigns in favor of the Missouri.

THE London Lancet says love is a disease. The fact that frequently it makes a young man ill at ease may be regarded as bearing out this view to a certain extent.

FOR a few weeks yet the governor's astrologers and soothsayers may succeed in deceiving him, but they can't fool the people any longer.

"REAFFIRMATION" is too long a word for the brief democratic platform Mr. Cleveland wants.

A TEXAS man says his state will never vote for a candidate that parts his hair in the middle. Hair splitting distinctions, look you, never should enter into a presidential campaign.

THE first baseball manager to advertise "grand stand and bleachers heated by steam" will draw the crowd.

ON the other hand, if two Chinamen were to go to an Afro-American restaurant and order a dinner of 'possum and watermelon would they get it?

THE effort to get Roeski out of jail now assumes the form of smuggling in some bandit testimony.

THE hairs of your head may be numbered, but after you have had a providential escape you naturally wish to know what number the automobile carries.

MR. GEORGE KENNAN is bearing up under the repeated misfortunes of the Russians as well as could be expected.

IT may be that Judge Parker is engaged in thinking of the fat salary he will feel impelled to sever himself from if he is nominated for the presidency.

MR. BRYAN, author of the Letter That Never Was Read at the Iroquois club banquet, has leave to print it in the Commoner. Now is the time, etc.

AS GOV. YATES' political horizon narrows, his vanishing point becomes more and more distinct.

GEN. MILES is surprised to find himself embalmed in the hearts of so many people as a candidate for presidential honors.

THE thirteenth certainly was a most unlucky day for the warships.

Couldn't Drown Him Out.

The faker just inside the corner of the downtown alley had been expatiating for five minutes or more on the merits of a superior brand of celluloid collars and cuffs, when somebody on the third floor of the tall office building, weary of the oratory, raised a window and emptied the contents of a water pitcher on the head of the orator and his stock in trade.

Not in the least disconcerted, the faker shook the water off his hat and picked up one of the drenched collars.

"You see, gentlemen," he said, proceeding to wipe it off with his handkerchief, "all you have to do when you want to clean one of these collars is to dip it in water, or, better still, have somebody pour water on it, then dry it with any kind of rag you happen to have about you, and there it is, gentlemen, perfectly clean again and just as good as new, and I'm selling these today for the small sum of 10 cents, one dime, the price of a good cigar. Who wants one? Thank you, sir. Who'll take another?"

Having been greatly troubled by mice, I bought a quantity of powdered sulphur and sprinkled it freely over my pantry shelves. The only result has been more mice. They fairly rioted in the sulphur. The sulphur cure for the mouse nuisance is a humbug, and I think everybody ought to know it."

C. W. T.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1904: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH lost an old and faithful servant the other day through the death at an advanced age of Baron Braun, who for more than forty years filled the post of chief of the private chancellery to the Austrian monarch. The privy chancellery of Francis Joseph is an institution which does not exist anywhere else in the same form, and the functions of the chief of that chancellery are a species of combination of those performed by King Edward's private secretary, Lord Knollys; of his keeper of the privy purse, Gen. Sir Dighton Probyn; of the chief of the czar's so-called private cabinet, and of the chief of the private cabinet of the German kaiser, who, as everybody knows, is baron von Lucanus.

Like the latter, old baron von Braun was frequently employed by his imperial master to inform cabinet ministers and great dignitaries, such as, for instance, Count Buest, the chancellor of the dual empire, that the days of their official careers were numbered and that their resignation was required. It was his duty to read and comment on every legislative measure submitted to his majesty before its presentation to parliament by the government, to draft imperial replies to public addresses, and when speeches from the throne were drafted by the ministers of the day to edit them and modify them in accordance with the prerogatives of his sovereign. He had to advise his monarch on personal as well as on official matters, and is known on several occasions to have been responsible for the organization of administrations, as well as for the dismissal of others. In fact, his influence with the emperor was great, all the more so because it was unobtrusively exercised, few people outside court circles and of the highest administrative spheres being aware of the rôle which he played. Indeed, I doubt whether there are many people outside of Austria who ever heard of his existence.

About eight years ago Baron Braun resigned, and on his recommendation the emperor appointed the Chevalier Francis von Schiessl de Perstorff in his place. Herr von Perstorff is a diplomat of about 50 years of age, who at the time of his appointment was fulfilling the duties of Austro-Hungarian minister at Belgrade, a position of considerable difficulty and calling for the exercise of an immense amount of tact and discretion. He had previously made his mark as secretary of the embassy at Constantinople and later on at Teheran, while at Vienna he had been careful to avoid being mixed up in any of the internal crises of recent years. He is not of noble birth, but owes his title of chevalier and the prefix of "von" to his possession of the third class of the Order of the Iron Crown, which at the time when it was conferred upon him still carried with it elevation to the hereditary nobility.

The rank of "chevalier," or "ritter," or of "elder" may be said to constitute the lowest degree in the order of nobility in Germany and Austria. Its possessors are entitled to use a coronet with five pearl tipped prongs, whereas barons have a coronet with seven of these prongs, and the coronets of counts and countesses have nine prongs. It must thoroughly be understood that the title of "baron" in Germany and Austria is superior to that of "elder" or "ritter," although abroad confusion is frequently made of the two grades of nobility, foreigners manifesting a tendency to concede the dignity of a "baron" to every one who is entitled to the mere nobiliary prefix of "von."

The rôle played by the present duke de Morny in the events that brought about the sensational suicide of the Russian actress, Mlle. Feyghine, is about to be recalled by the impending production at Paris of a drama entitled "L'Etoile Filante" (The Falling Star), written by a countrywoman of the young actress—namely: by the Countess Lydia Rostoptchine, unmarried sister of Countess Tornielli, Italian ambassadress to France, and like her a granddaughter of that Gen. Count Fedor Rostoptchine, governor of Moscow in the fateful year of 1812, and who, sooner than permit the ancient metropolis of the Russian empire to fall into the hands of the first Napoleon, set it on fire.

The drama has already been produced at the house of the Countess Kessler before a private audience and is declared to be one of the most powerful plays of recent years, full of strong incident, of charm, dignity, and giving evidence of a great mind, as well as of a knowledge of human nature. It may safely be taken for granted that had the author occupied a less distinguished position in the French great world means would have been taken by the friends and relatives of the duke de Morny to prevent the production of the piece. But inasmuch as the countess is a Russian woman of considerable influence in her own country, besides being the sister of the Italian ambassadress at Paris, the duke's efforts are certain to fail.

The rôle which he played in connection with the death of Mlle. Feyghine, who was the daughter of a Russian general, was so disgraceful that at her funeral, at which he had the impudence to show himself, he was hooted and mobbed by the people present. Indeed, had it not been for the police, who looked for something of the sort, there is no knowing what might have happened. The blow now aimed at the duke by the Countess Rostoptchine must seem to him all the more cruel as coming from a Russian—that is to say, from a countrywoman of his mother, who was a Princess Galitzine, as he has always been inordinately proud of his Muscovite relationship. He is married to a daughter of Guzman Blanco, who was for so many years president and dictator of Venezuela, and owes his present affluence to the proceeds of years of robbery in South America on the part of that old pirate.

The duke has never done anything to distinguish himself beyond this unfortunate Feyghine scandal, and his appearance in amateur theatricals at an ultra-smart Parisian club on the Champs Elysées as a ballerina in tights, gauze skirts, a décolleté dress, a painted face, and his mustache, the retention of the latter being the crowning indignity of this most objectionable performance, and a piece of bad taste which would have caused his father, a remarkable compound of the grand seigneur and unscrupulous adventurer but who had faultless manners and extreme tact and breeding, to turn in horror in his grave.

The late duke de Morny was a half brother of Napoleon III. Indeed, the Almanach de Gotha bluntly states that the late duke was the natural son of Queen Hortense and of her chamberlain, the comte de Flahaut. It likewise gives the date of his birth as October, 1811, a time when Queen Hortense was, although living apart, yet legally married to King Louis Bonaparte of Holland.

It is Archduchess Valerie, younger sister of the late Crown Prince Rudolph, who has been at Prague with his daughter, young Princess Otto Windischgraetz, not only for the birth of the latter's little boy but likewise for the christening, at which the emperor acted as sponsor, represented by his son-in-law, Archduke Francis Salvator. That the ex-crown princess, who is entirely restored to health and enjoying herself at Nice, should not have been at Prague either for the birth or for the christening indicates that the relations between herself and the Austrian court are much strained and that even Princess Otto is not on the best of terms with her mother.

In fact, all of the relatives and fellow royalists of ex-Crown Princess Stephanie, and of her father, King Leopold, seem to be embittered against both of them on account of the scandal which they have caused by bringing into a public court of justice their sordid monetary squabbles. The count of Flanders, only brother of King Leopold and next heir to the throne, indeed is so angry alike with his niece and with his brother that he is no longer on speaking terms with the latter and has broken off all but the most formal relations.

Lord Hindlip, who is about to marry Miss Agatha Thynne, is well known in this country, and in most of his central African explorations has usually had one or more American companions. He is the head of the great British brewing firm of Allsopp, the third of his generation. The Basses, who were radicals, owed their elevation to the peerage to the nomination of Mr. Gladstone, whereas the Allsopps, who have always been equally rabid tories, were indebted for their promotion to the upper house of the national legislature to Lord Beaconsfield.

The Essence of Culture.

"Culture and good spelling seldom go hand in hand. The higher educated a person is the less he cares about spelling."—Dr. Arnold Tompkins.

It use to be that when one wood
The paths of kulcher chuse
His teecher deer sed that he shood
Mined all his p's and q's.
The trooth, howevver, is that he
Who to bad speling leens
Is fond of prose or poetry
As Boston is of benes.

For instence, take the finest thots
That hav been put in vurse—
The auther semed to murmer: "Whot's
The way to spel this wurse?"
Now, Shaikspere wrote a lot of stuff
And has undying fame,
And Shakespeare didn't know enuff
To rightly spel his naim.

Then, old Geff Chosser, he who gave
Good poesy its start—
Geff always knew how to behaive,
But wuzzent very smart,
Becos he spelt in offhand stile
Just as he went along,
And usualy, all the while
He got his speling rong.

A man may try to sit and reed
The dickchunaries throo,
And think that that is all he'll need
To culture's paths persoo—
But thare is this grate trooth to tell;
That as he climes the hite,
The moar he lerns of how to spel
The less he spels things rite.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

SOCIAL PROGRESS.

Dr. Strong's Year Book of Economical and Other Statistics.

Dr. Josiah Strong, the president of the American Institute of Social Service, and probably the best known writer on our country and its various social and religious phases, has compiled and edited "SOCIAL PROGRESS," which is a year book and encyclopedia of economic, industrial, social, and religious statistics. (Baker & Taylor company, New York.)

The statistics are generally for the year 1903, and will be found to be later than those available in any similar publications. A few of the topics which are taken up are: Child labor, civil service, coöperation, divorce reform, education, the housing problem, institutional churches, public ownership, the initiative and referendum, social settlements, tax reform, temperance, the hours of work and the wages of men and women. This book will show the growth of the various reform political movements, and especially of labor and reform legislation.

For sociological students the book is a handy one of reference.

FRESH ROMANCE OF THE WOODS.

"The Story of King Sylvain and Queen Aimee."

"THE STORY OF KING SYLVAIN AND QUEEN AIMEE" is by Margaret Sherwood and is the story, told in quaint diction, of a king and queen, wearied of court ceremonials, who fled to the woods and lived there, learning to become true man and woman again, wandering for a season in wild gypsy fashion, and finally building a home and fashioning its furnishings themselves. It is not a wonderfully new subject, but it is written with such care and freshness of style that it is like a series of pictures on gay tapestry.

It is a love story something of the sort of "Prince Otto." These two had been wedded many years, but it needed the freedom of the woods, the absence of courtiers and attendants to show or give birth to any affection.

Like Prince Otto and his princess, the king and queen never return to their kingdom to reign, but bring up their little son to have all the virtues and marks of a king except in the possession of a crown.

Nearly all readers rejoice in this sort of a story. They like to hear of others bold enough to flee responsibilities and become children of nature, for the greater part of the world has this same desire but neither the courage nor the ability to follow it. (The Macmillan company, New York.)

DAUGHTERS OF DESPERATION.

Hildegarde Brooks' Delightful Bit of Literary Nonsense.

There will be many chuckles heard from the depths of hammocks this summer when Hildegarde Brooks' "DAUGHTERS OF DESPERATION" is read, for a more delightful bit of nonsense has never been written by an American author. A groomsman on his way to a wedding finds himself—but no, it would spoil the reader's enjoyment of this delicate trifle to outline what it is all about.

Gilbert himself never conjured up a more whimsical situation than that where the three bridemaids lock Silsbee up for fear he will betray their plot to—but this is not the place to reveal Miss Brooks' comical fancy. Stockton never imagined a more farcical enigma than the three girl anarchists found confronting them after they had stolen the wedding presents—there we go again, telling badly what can be read so much better.

For pure madness there has never been anything like this, and, improbable and preposterous as it all is, the author has managed to invest her characters with reality. Even Josh, the mongrel dog who attaches himself to the dramatis personæ, seems to be a real cur, with a real cur's characteristics. For uncontrollable laughter commend us to "Daughter of Desperation." (McClure, Phillips & Co., New York.)

HUNTING THE MUSK OX.

Caspar Whitney, George Bird Grinnell, and Owen Wister on Big Game Shooting.

"MUSK OX, BISON, SHEEP, AND GOAT" is the latest addition to the American Sportsman's library. (The Macmillan company, New York.) Caspar Whitney writes the chapters on the musk ox, Mr. George Bird Grinnell that on the bison, and Owen Wister those on the wild sheep and wild goat.

Mr. Whitney's chapters on musk ox hunting are discouraging. To begin with, there are few musk oxen to be found this side latitude 66. Their favorite habitat is the barren lands of Canada, a place which God seems to have made and then forgotten. It is almost impossible to get food during the hunt. The game is scarce and when you are fortunate enough to shoot it it isn't worth anything. The flesh is not particularly good, the pelt is only useful for sleigh robes, and the horns make good trophies.

Still the rarity of the game and the hardships of the sport are enough to whet the hunter's appetite. Few white men have recorded their experiences in musk ox hunting, Schwatka and Peary being among Mr. Whitney's chief predecessors. The former shot them Alaskawards and Peary found his in Greenland. Mr. Whitney's descriptions of the animal are interesting, and he gives as much of its habits as he learned. Mr. Grinnell's chapter on the bison is more or less of an obituary, as that noble beast has been slaughtered out of existence, nearly. Mr. Wister's descriptions of his hunting the wild sheep and goat in the Rockies are full of the humor for which he is noted.

CORRUPTION IN BIG CITY POLITICS.

Responsibility of the Prominent Citizen.

CONCLUSIONS BY LINCOLN STEFFENS.

LINCOLN STEFFENS, in his article on the "Enemies of the Republic," published in McClure's Magazine for April, summarizes his investigation of corruption in politics as found in the larger cities of the country.

He gives many details in support of his conclusions, and among his other enlightening statements are the following:

"The corruption of our American politics is our American corruption, political, but financial and industrial, too. Miss Tarbell is showing it in the trust, Mr. Baker in the labor union, and my gropings into the misgovernment of cities have drawn me everywhere, but, always, always out of politics into business, and out of the cities into the state.

⁂

"Business started the corruption of politics in Pittsburg, upholds it in Philadelphia, boomed with it in Chicago and withered with its reform, and in New York business financed the return of Tammany hall.

"Here, then, is our guide out of the labyrinth. Not the political ring, but big business—that is the crux of the situation. Our political corruption is a system, a regularly established custom of the country, by which our political leaders are hired, by bribery, by the license to loot, and by quiet moral support, to conduct the government of city, state, and nation, not for the common good but for the special interests of private business.

"Not the politician, then, not the bribe taker, but the bribe giver, the man we are so proud of, our successful business man—he is the source and the sustenance of our bad government. The captain of industry is the man to catch. His is the trail to follow.

"We have struck that trail before. Whenever we followed the successful politician his tracks led us into it, but also they led us out of the cities—from Pittsburg to the state legislature at Harrisburg; from Philadelphia through Pennsylvania to the national legislature at Washington. To go on was to go into state and national politics, and I was after the political corruption of the city ring then. Now I know that these are all one. The trail of the political leader and the trail of the commercial leader are parallels which mark the plain, main road that leads off the dead level of the cities up through the states into the United States, out of the political ring into the system, the living system of our actual government. The highway of corruption is the 'road to success.'

⁂

"One night at a banquet of politicians I was seated beside a man who had grown rich by unswerving loyalty to a corrupt ring—'the party organization,' he would have called it—which had done more permanent harm to his country than a European army could do in two wars. He was not a politician, but a business man; not a boodler, but the backer of boodlers, and his conversation was a defense of 'poor human nature,' till the orchestra struck up a patriotic air. That moved him deeply.

"'Isn't it beautiful!' he exclaimed; and when the boodlers joined in the chorus he murmured, 'Beautiful, beautiful,' then leaned over and with tears in his eyes he said:

"'Ah, but the tune for me, the song I love, is "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."'

"I believe this man thinks he is patriotic. I believe H. O. Havemeyer thinks his success is success, not one kind of success, but success, not alone his, but public 'prosperity.' And William Zeigler, who is spending millions to plant the American flag first at the north pole, I am sure he regards himself as a peculiarly patriotic American—and he is. They all are, according to their light, honorable men and patriotic citizens. They simply do not know what patriotism is. They know what treason is in war; it is going over to the enemy, like Benedict Arnold, and fighting in the open against your country. In peace and in secret to seize, not forts, but cities and states, and destroy, not buildings and men, but the fundamental institutions of your country and the saving character of American manhood—that is not treason. That is politics, and politics is business, and business, you know, is business.

"Folk, rising out of the wrecked machinery of justice in Missouri, may lead his people to see that the corruption of their government is not merely corruption but a revolutionary process making for a new form of government; and the people of Missouri, rising out of the wrecked machinery of the government of Missouri, may teach their politicians a lesson in liberty and honor. But that is not enough. That will reach neither the source nor the head of the evil.

"Some power greater than Folk, greater than that of the people of Missouri, must rise to bring home to the captain of industry the truth; that business, important as it is, is not sacred; that not everything that pays is right; that, if bribery is treason, if the corrupt politician is a traitor, then the corrupting business man is an enemy of the republic. No matter how many bonds he may float in war, or how much he may give for charity and education, if he corrupt the sources of law and of justice, his business is not success but—treason and a people's failure."

PERSONAL.

John D. Strassburg began work in the Louisville postoffice in 1843, and is the oldest postal employé in the United States. He never has been promoted.

Truly Solid Party.

[Washington Correspondence New York World.]

"The republican party is a remarkable organization," said John Sharp Williams, democratic leader of the house. "Its members stand by each other. It reminds me of the story Judge Culberson of Texas used to tell about his regiment during the civil war. The judge was made colonel of a regiment, but his soldiers never went into action—in fact, they never got across the Mississippi river.

"'What did you do?' I asked him one day.

"'Wal,' said the judge, 'them that didn't have the measles gathered sassafras to make tea for them that had.'"

Royal Purple.

Fashion Note—Royal purple is becoming to about one woman in 999,999, and it should never be worn in daylight. This peculiar shade is in high favor among the negro women, and always has been. The woman of dark complexion harmonizes better with purple than her white sister. A royal purple skirt, a scarlet waist, and a flower hat make a splendid combination for a colored lady.—New York Press.

ENEMIES OF THE REPUBLIC.

[From the Philadelphia North American.]

In his investigation of corruption in politics the writer, Lincoln Steffens, in his article on "Enemies of the Republic," published in McClure's Magazine, found a condition which astonished him and may well shock every believer in popular government. The real corruptionist, he shows, is not the political boss, nor the venal legislator, nor the bribe taking official of any sort, but the "big business man," the prosperous, eminently respectable leader in finance or industry, who, to buy advantage or immunity for his own interests, contributes money and support to the machines. Mr. Steffens' words are startling, but every man who has studied political conditions knows that they are true. One paragraph sums up his conclusions:

> Our political corruption is a system, a regularly established custom of the country, by which our political leaders are hired, by bribery, by the license to loot, and by quiet moral support, to conduct the government of city, state, and nation, not for the common good but for the special interests of private business.

The specific instances cited in support of this sweeping statement are taken from events in Missouri, but Mr. Steffens declares that the rule applies everywhere. "Business," he says, "upholds the corruption of politics in Philadelphia." Is this true? Can we not confound this magazine writer who presumes to asperse our leading citizens?

The task would be difficult. He has the facts with him, and they cannot be obliterated by pride or resentment. In this city and state the big business interests have not only sustained but have instigated and profited by misgovernment. They have not only given "quiet moral support" but have conferred "the license to loot" and frequently have shared in the products of the looting.

It is hardly necessary to cite examples to the thinking citizen. He is perfectly familiar with the influence of "big business" in the state and municipal government. He knows that legislators are elected by the railroads, that corporations have their representatives in city councils, and contractors their friends in public office. The "regularly established custom of the country" is exemplified here as elsewhere. From the large business interests the machine obtains its power, and in return gives to them the people's property—favors in taxation, in control, in franchises. When contributions are needed it is not to the ordinary business man that the leaders apply; the sinews of war for the unceasing campaign of corruption come from the financial institutions, the railroads, the lighting and traction companies, and the big manufacturing concerns. Either through moral cowardice or for selfish purpose, these interests are invariably the silent partners in the system of corruption.

But are not the men at the head of these concerns among our leading citizens? Are they not respected for their business integrity and social repute? Assuredly. None the less, the traffic in public rights and the corruption of public life would be impossible but for their "moral support" and active assistance. They are the real foes of good government, and the bosses are their employés.

So long as such men are considered patterns of public probity and private virtue, opposition to corrupt politics is vain. "Some power," as the writer we have quoted says, "must bring home to them the truth that business, important as it is, is not sacred; that not everything that pays is right; that, if bribery is treason, if the corrupt politician is a traitor, then the corrupting business man is an enemy of the republic."

Overreached Himself.

"Yes. Merchant's scheme was to display his goods in his window with a lot of mirrors back of them, so that all the women passing would be sure to stop and look in."

"Foxy idea, eh?"

"Yes, but it didn't pan out. None of the women looked at anything but the mirrors."—Philadelphia Ledger.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

CONDUCTED BY THE SCHOOL OF DOMESTIC ARTS AND SCIENCE OF CHICAGO

LESSON NO. 207.—Arts and Crafts for Chicago.

So many of the domestic arts are industrial arts, the relationship between the two is so close that the appropriateness in this place of the series of articles on industrial art and handicraft, to which the present paper is but a word of introduction, is immediately apparent.

The different articles of the series will be contributed for the most part by practical artists and craftsmen, and are of especial importance as giving the artists' point of view on a question of which quantities of books and countless lectures have been delivered by the layman.

It is true that the artist's readiest means of expression is in his art, his craft, and the pen must oftentimes be forced into his unwilling hand; but when at last he speaks, or writes, it is with authority that lends the keenest interest to his utterances.

If I were asked what feature of the work of promoting the development of industrial art in this country, the purpose of the organization I have the honor to serve, is most disheartening I should say without hesitation that it is the failure on the part of the cultured class to recognize the good work that is being done by native craftsmen, and to encourage by their patronage the struggling pioneers of a difficult field.

It is true that the volume of this work, the number of these artists, is pitifully small. All the more reason, then, for rejoicing over a beautiful product and lending new inspiration to the producer by practical appreciation, the appreciation that gives him work to do.

Is the story of the "prophet without honor in his own country" old and hackneyed? In its application it is ever new. Witness the not too distant instance of the man who, visiting the establishment of a local dealer, admired a set of steins offered for sale. The price, $350, seemed too high, however, for the work of merely a local artist.

A few weeks later this man, in the same establishment, spoke with enthusiasm of the set of steins he had just purchased in New York for $500.

"Yes, I know they are beautiful," commented the dealer. "You saw them here before I sent them east." The eastern house had already reported the sale to the Chicago man.

Are such instances uncommon? Ask the artists. Why is it that artist after artist who has led a precarious existence in Chicago goes east and is welcomed and given that best of all encouragement, plenty of work to do? Not because Chicago does not need the artists, surely. Yet how many of those whose names are high on the roll today were once Chicago's own, and ceased to be so only because she was slowest of all to recognize their worth, and most withholding of all in her patronage!

◆

The question of the development of industrial art is, of course, wholly educational; yet it has many phases.

The art lover must be brought to recognize the good work that is already being done; the greater class, whose eyes still dwell with approval on the machine made product, must come to appreciate the difference in expression between that and the art product; and craftsmen must strive for an ever higher standard of artistic worth, an ever increasing skill in execution.

Of these three phases of the education work, however, the first is the most important, the most pressing; for in it lies the means of accomplishing the other two. And it must be brought to pass largely by the conviction, the awakening of the class in itself, for it means the laying aside of a prejudice and a skepticism oftentimes deep rooted, and the encouragement through force of example of the recognition of good work, even though done by "a local artist."

◆

An artist, a producer of beautiful things in whatever line, is a most valuable member of a community. His departure is a distinct loss to that community.

Chicago has suffered too many such losses already. The time is long since here for her to rouse herself to a full realization of their magnitude and by every possible means to guard against adding to their number.

The strongest possible inducement, the argument that carries most weight, is plenty of work to do!

If you would further the cause of art, if you would see the development of handicraft, do not gather together and with great enthusiasm discuss, till it is threadbare, the question of the effect that such development might, could, would, or should have upon society, but go to the studio, the workshop, learn the spirit of the artist, seek to understand his work, and, above all things, give him work to do!

That will aid the development of art; and the beneficial effect of that development, whether upon a community or upon the nation, may safely be trusted to manifest itself.

HARRIET KING-DAVIS,
Assistant secretary Industrial Art league.

The spring course of lectures of the School of Domestic Arts and Science begins Saturday morning, April 16, at 11 o'clock.

The general topic is upon the "Growth and Manufacture of Textiles." These lectures are for the governing members of the school, and any one else may attend by the paying of 50 cents at the door.

Miss Henrietta Connor, director of the domestic arts department of the school, will give these lectures under the following heads and dates:

April 16	Cotton
April 23	Linen
April 30	Silk
May 7	Wool
May 14	Lace
May 21	Relative values

These lectures will have a value in the knowledge imparted, enabling shoppers to detect differences in the manufacture of articles they purchase, for even the experienced shopper does not always know why this year's purchase of linen does not wear as did last year's, nor why when she asks for certain articles that did give satisfaction once are not to be had again any more than last year's snows.

Menu Novelties—

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM IN BOXES—Cut lady fingers in halves and build into little boxes two inches square, fastening them together with white of egg. Press each over a slice of the pink ice cream and tie a pale pink ribbon around each box.

APPLE PANCAKES—Cut apples in thin slices. Cut across again and steam for ten minutes. Stir into freshly made pancake batter; fry until quite brown and serve a griddle full to each person, buttered and scattered with powdered (or maple) sugar.

HAMBURG STEAK WITH MUSHROOMS—Fry balls of Hamburg steak and remove to platter. Add water and a handful of fresh mushrooms. Cook until tender, thicken with a roux, and serve over steak.

CREAM SPONGE CAKE—Three eggs beaten separately, one cup of powdered sugar, one cup of flour, a half a cup of cream, and one-fifth teaspon of baking soda.

TONGUE A LA NEWBURG—Cut cold boiled tongue into bits, add some stock, a little sherry and the yolks of two eggs beaten with a teaspoonful of flour.

NOVELTIES FROM PORTO RICO—MAMMEES AND POURPORT NUTS.

Two new curiosities are being featured at the local market side show. They are, good people, worth almost the price of admission alone. Each might be called the "what is it?" The larger of the two is known by two names—mammee apple and sapota, the latter being the Spanish for it. It was captured off the coast of Porto Rico by a party of fishermen out in search of big fish, and was brought to this country at enormous expense. The mammee resembles the ordinary cocoanut in many ways, but it is a few sizes smaller than that worthy. Externally speaking, it is not as attractive as an American beauty, but from another point of view it is—well, one only wishes that he had the price, that's all. In taste the mammee is a cross between a peach and an apricot. One mammee goes a long way, because almost everything but the jacket is good to eat. The fruit is quit common in Porto Rico, where the natives never think of eating it otherwise than raw. However, it is said that it may be boiled into a sauce that is really delicious. The mammee scored a big hit with Miles and his men when they occupied the island at the time of the recent war, and those who participated in that campaign are about the only ones who know all about the product. There are not enough mammees in Chicago today to make it worth while taking a census.

◆

The other curiosity is known as the pourport nut. To the uninitiated it might be taken for a new wrinkle in the lady finger line. It is about the size of the dainty cakelet, but possesses a darker color. The pourport is the peanut of Porto Rico, although, of course, it is not cultivated so extensively there as is the circus necessity in this country. The pourport is a kernelless nut, its "goody" being a pulpy substance. It has a hard shell, and it takes a pretty sound crack to get to the part that's good to eat. But the difficulty experienced in getting beyond the shell is more than offset by the excellence of the meat. The pourport tastes about as much like a hickory nut as tomato butter tastes like Kentucky twist tobacco. A nibble of it reminds one a little of uncooked Hubbard squash.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

MRS. FORGAN TO GIVE TEA FOR MRS. ROBERT FORGAN.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., Now at Lakewood, N. J.—King-Dibblee Wedding in London Tomorrow—Engagement Announced of Miss Katherine Romadka of Milwaukee to Mr. Carr Meysenburg—Mrs. Rudolph Ortmann's Tea for Mrs. F. H. Stevens.

Mrs. James B. Forgan, 541 Dearborn avenue, has issued cards for a tea to be given Wednesday, April 27, for her son's wife, Mrs. Robert Forgan. The hours will be from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., 1919 Prairie avenue, have left New York and are now at Lakewood, N. J., after a brief stay in Hot Springs. No date has been set for their return to Chicago, although their sons returned home last week with their grandfather, Mr. Marshall Field.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dibblee, 1922 Calumet avenue, who, with their daughter, are now in London, preparing for Miss Dibblee's wedding to Mr. John King, which will take place tomorrow, will return to Chicago early in May. Mr. and Mrs. King will travel extensively through England in a motor car.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Valentine, 3700 Michigan avenue, who went to New York to spend Easter, will return home the first of next week.

◆

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Mr. Carr Meysenburg of Chicago to Miss Katherine Romadka of Milwaukee. Mr. Meysenburg is the son of the late O. W. Meysenburg. Mr. Carr Meysenburg now resides at 65 Bellevue place. Miss Romadka is the daughter of Mrs. John M. Romadka, and well known in Milwaukee society.

Mrs. Seymour J. Thurber, 4309 Calumet avenue, has cards out for a musical, followed by a dove party, which will take place Thursday afternoon of next week.

One of the pretty affairs of yesterday was a luncheon given by Mrs. Rudolph Ortmann at the Auditorium Annex, where Mr. and Mrs. Ortmann have made their home for several months. The affair was in honor of Mrs. Frank H. Stevens, who, with Mr. Stevens, recently came from St. Louis and are occupying the Arthur Aldis residence on the Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Ortmann's guests numbered fifteen, and the repast was served in the English room, which was made additionally attractive by spring flowers.

Mrs. James H. Barnard, 71 Astor street, will hold the second of two post-nuptial receptions Monday afternoon, when she will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick Babcock, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, Mrs. Emanuel Senn, Mrs. John Lynch, and Mrs. William Mason.

◆

The wedding of Miss Clara Ethel Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Weaver of the Stratford, to Mr. Ralph D. Small, will take place June 7. It will be an evening wedding, at 8 o'clock, and will be solemnized in the empire room of the hotel. About 150 guests will witness the ceremony, and later a reception for 300 will be held.

The Young Men's institute, Sherman council, will give a dance this evening at the Marquette club hall, Dearborn avenue and Maple street. The cotillion will be led by Mr. Thomas B. Lantry.

The Ladies' Aid society of Trinity Episcopal church, Michigan avenue and Twenty-sixth street, will hold a bazaar and festival in the church parlors this afternoon and evening.

Bloomington, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Two prominent families of Bloomington and Decatur were united by the marriage at 8 o'clock this evening of Mr. Charles A. Ewing and Miss Idelle Kerrick. One hundred guests attended, all the principal cities of the state being represented. The Rev. Frost Craft of Denver, Colo., officiated. The maid of honor was Miss Eva Cole and the bridemaids Alice Funk, Madeline Funk, and Letitia Stevenson of Bloomington, and Emma Ewing of Decatur. The best man was John McWilliams of Decatur. The ushers were Herman Fifer and Lon Bracken of Bloomington, and Edward Powers and Robert Vail of Decatur.

SEALED VERDICT HOLDS END OF LEONARDS' DIVORCE CASE.

Wife Admits Husband's Charges and Declares Him Equally Guilty—Blames Mrs. Laura Watson for It All.

A sealed verdict to be opened in Judge Dunne's court this morning will decide the divorce case of Joseph H. against Esther Leonard. The hearing came to an end yesterday after a dramatic scene in the courtroom. In ten minutes the jurors had reached an agreement, but it was sealed.

Mrs. Leonard began her testimony late in the afternoon. Both judge and jury were startled when she admitted her husband's charges, protesting that he, too, was guilty in like degree. On Mrs. Laura Watson, her husband's friend, she placed all the blame, declaring Mrs. Watson had first led her to seek amusement away from home. Her family life, she said, had been pleasant until Mrs. Watson won her husband's love and at the same time surrounded her with evil companions.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Watson made many charges against Mrs. Leonard, while a private detective told of following Mrs. Watson and Leonard on many nocturnal outings. All the witnesses talked of wine suppers, summer resort escapades, cocktails, and traveling men.

Charges Ten Years of Cruelty.—After ten years of cruelty, she charges, Mrs. William Gannon, 4248 Cottage Grove avenue, has begun suit for divorce from William Gannon, a shoemaker. Mrs. Gannon's suit is at the end of thirty-three years of married life, in which ten children have been born to the couple. Judge Dunne has enjoined Gannon from visiting his wife's home.

Writ Bars Husband.—On charges that her husband attempted to cut her throat, Mrs. Margaret Shevlin, 710 West Forty-seventh street, is seeking a divorce from Patrick Shevlin, a yardmaster. Judge Honoré issued an injunction restraining Shevlin from interference with his wife's possession of their home.

Wife Charges Intoxication.—Alleging that he spends nearly all his money for drink and she is compelled to support herself, pay taxes and insurance out of a monthly income of $15, Mrs. Annie Jensen filed suit for divorce against Carl Jensen, a salesman, 1527 North California avenue. Cruelty is also charged.

Asks Freedom from Convict.—Her husband a prisoner in the penitentiary at Joliet, convicted of murder, Mrs. May Miller has begun suit for divorce from James Miller. He was sentenced to prison for three years.

LORVELLE: 1. What is the meaning of kissing? Why is it considered such an awful thing to kiss a man or let him kiss you? What is the harm? 2. Please tell me the correct way to write a lady, asking to call. 3. Will you tell me the correct way to answer the note of a lady wishing a gentleman to call?" 1. To kiss is to salute with the lips.

Some say that kissing's a sin,
  But I think its nane ava,
For kissing has wann'd in thi warld,
  Since ever that there was twa.
O, if it wasna lawfu'
  Lawyers wadna allow it.
If it wasna holy,
  Ministers wadna do it,
If it wasna modest
  Maidens wadna tak it,
If it wasna plenty
  Puir folk wadna get it.

Is not this delicious logic for one who is pining for a kiss? But, Lorvelle, just as we are ready to bless the poet for his heavenly reasoning, Dame Propriety unmercifully slaughters even the thought of osculation. She says it cheapens a girl to give those roses away promiscuously. It is a step from the sacred to the familiar, hence to contempt, and asks how the maiden may know to whom she is giving this sweet of sweets? What may she give to the other nearer and dearer? We think Dame Propriety rigid, unromantic, a crank—when along comes Prof. Science and tells the lovelorn swain that kisses are filled with horrid microbes, and that terrible disease lurks in such fascination. Here are some of the harms as set forth by greater than I: You will reason for yourself that what is rarest is most desired, that what is purest is dearest, and what is sweetest belongs to the nearest and best. Dame Propriety and Prof. Science will set down the terrible results, and youths and maidens will continue to prove the theory by experience.

HIKO: Why don't you have a dressing table, with pink canopy? The drapings might be of pink silk or delicate stuffs, or even pink crêpe paper is effective. You should have some pillows worked in musical designs—a lyre, or a mandolin with the music score, or many different creations appealing to a musical taste. Pictures of the noted music artists will give your room a musical "tone." Scenes on pink posters. Your programs may be daintily booked in a pink case. I hope you may have your room breathe the essence of artistic effort.

EDYTHA: The flesh on face, neck, and chin may be reduced by continual practice of the neck exercises and by massage. Also care in eating is an essential. Some good exercises are as follows: Bend the neck to the front, to the right, to the left, and back, giving to each four counts. Also turn the head to the right, slightly on count of one, then return head to position; move on count two, and return, and so on until it is as far around as you can carry it easily. Left side the same. After this done, turn head all the way around to the right on four counts, same left. Rolling massage on the double chin will also help. HARD LUCK, April, 1856: You are now coming into the most fortunate period of the entire life; will be successful in business and enjoy good health during the coming year. Your horoscope shows you are restless and liable to overdo. You should strive to finish whatever you begin and have a regular rule of life, a time for work and a time for rest and quiet. Try to be entirely alone for at least one hour every day. You have much talent in music, also in art; you have also a good configuration for a housekeeper and would be likely to prove a success as manager of an institution. Wherever you are, endeavor to become your own mistress as soon as possible, as yours is not a nature made to work under others.

KATHIE, July, 1869: You are now under most favorable planetary influences for marriage if not already wed; if you are then the coming year promises prosperity for the husband. You will be likely to inherit landed property within two years and there are indications that you will make your home in some small town or city after this happy windfall. You are likely to make a change of residence soon which will be much to your advantage. You will achieve your ambitions more through the help of friends than by your own merits and should cultivate the friendship and good will of women, as they are shown to be fortunate for you.

*

JACK D., September, 1883: You will rise to a high position in life by your own efforts, but much of your success will be owing to your ability to make friends. Will always be generous and spend money freely, and be fond of helping some one in financial difficulties, yet you will always have plenty of money; you could succeed where many would fail. You will marry happily before the age of 25, and will be devoted to home and family; will also be much attached to your mother. You have love of scientific knowledge and desire to make it practical and useful to the world, and are likely to enter at an early age into some intellectual or scientific business. You will succeed to a good inheritance.

*

MURIEL ENGLISH, 1879: You are now under vibrations which are likely to bring an offer of marriage and also a wedding this year. The husband will be quiet and industrious, rather studious, and dislike society, will be fond of home and family. You will be happy and your children will bring great happiness. Should you not accept this offer you will have another opportunity in about three years. The moon is your life ruler and your husband is signified by Saturn. You are of too timid and dreamy a nature to make your way in the world, but in your own home you would reign a queen.

*

MRS. ISABEL G.: You are now under some inharmonious vibrations which tend to make you unhappy and to worry about the future; are not likely to give this impression to your friends, as you are quiet and inexpressive, feeling more than you can say. Yours is a fortunate horoscope, financially. You could make a good living for yourself anywhere, and are careful and economical in the home. Your health will be much improved this year, and there are indications that you will become stronger as you grow older. You are well fitted to teach or to enter general business life, as you are shown to be shrewd in making a bargain.

*

MARIGOLD, 1883: You have chosen the name of your planetary flower as a nom de plume, and you will find that peonies are lucky also for you. You will marry before the age of 25 and will be an economical housekeeper; will accumulate great wealth by careful management of property and will be devoted to husband and children, who will bring great happiness. Are adapted to business life, would do well as a stenographer or bookkeeper, and have also a good configuration for a teacher. You are now under most favorable transits for success during the coming year.

*

B. A. H., May, 1876: You are apt to feel that there are many obstacles in the way of success and that things are much against you in this world; you have great desire to make money, also to save it. Should you become a teacher you would be successful in teaching mathematics or logic, and should you enter business life you would do well as a bookkeeper; also have talent in elocution. You have the best of positions for wealth and are certain to acquire a great deal of landed property, but only after much trouble and delay. You are likely to marry before 30, and the husband will also be a good money maker.

*

HOPEFUL, July, 1860: You are almost abnormally sensitive and are now under most depressing planetary influences. You are so susceptible to mental and physical conditions of those around you that you should be careful about choosing hopeful and cheerful persons for associates; also learn to live within yourself rather than to depend upon others for happiness. You will find that you will gain much more love by cultivating your own mind and talents, also that you can more easily face unpleasant situations and rise superior to them. At about the age of 50 you will make a much more happy marriage than the first.

*

ELLEN AMY, June, 1847: You are now under a good transit of Jupiter, which will bring good health and many things pleasant during the coming year. Yours is a fortunate horoscope and one that indicates much wealth by inheritance. You are likely to make a long journey soon, possibly to your native land, which will prove of much benefit, but you are more successful in this country. Between the ages of 65 and 70 you are likely to suffer in health, but the indications are that you will live many years longer.

R. W. Hudson Appeals to Court to Prevent Priest Trustee of His Inherited Estate from Ousting Him.

R. W. Hudson, 26 years old, 437 Evanston avenue, appeared in Justice Richardson's court yesterday morning to resist an attempt to evict him from the residence left him by his father. Hudson is the heir to $40,000 from the estate, and of which the senior Hudson's will made the Rev. Patrick D. Gill, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Roman Catholic, church, trustee, with absolute discretion until the heir becomes 35 years old.

Father Gill, it is said, has refused to pay the young man any money till he proves his ability to support himself, and as a part of his program of discipline the priest is seeking to get control of the family residence. Hudson declares he has been unable to find work. When the case came to trial the young man demanded a jury and the hearing was continued to next Tuesday.

"I have been everywhere, even to the employment agencies, where they 'ship tonight,'" he said, "but it's no good. I cannot even get $5 a week. When I tell the father that he just whispers softly: 'Laborare est orare'—to work is to worship—and refuses to give me any money."

"Mr. Hudson Sr. knew his son's disposition," said Father Gill, "and invested me with absolute power, because he feared the boy would squander the estate."

YELLOW AND BLACK AGAIN HAVE CLASH ON CHOP SUEY.

Negroes Cause Arrest of Three More Chinese on Charge of Refusing to Serve Them with Oriental Dish.

Three Chinese were taken into court yesterday to show cause why they should not share the white man's burden in purveying chop suey to negroes, under the provisions of the Illinois civil rights act.

M. B. Williams, A. M. Christy, H. W. White, and Mary S. Kelly, all colored, complained that they were refused service in the restaurant of Hong Fong Lo, 229 Thirty-first street.

"We asked for chop suey, and the China man told us to get out. He said he couldn't serve negroes, as his white patrons objected," said one of the complainants.

The hearings were set for next Wednesday.

Besides the foregoing prosecution, there have been two others within the last ten days, as fallows:

Clarence Cooper and Daniel Robinson vs. the Wee Ying Lo Chinese restaurant, 172 Clark street, in Justice Everett's court. Defendants exonerated by a jury of white men.

J. G. Thurman vs. Riley & Early, saloonkeepers, 116 Monroe street, in Justice Wolff's court. Complainant awarded judgment of $200 by default. The defendants appealed.

The American league championship season was inaugurated in Chicago yesterday under the worst possible conditions. The mercury hovered close to the freezing point, the grounds were heavy, rough, and wet, particularly in the outfield. The game was naturally in keeping with the conditions, and the initial victory went to Cleveland's sluggers by a score of 6 to 1. In fact, there was not a single ray of sunshine to brighten up things.

A crowd of 5,000 or 6,000 enthusiasts of the kind that cannot be kept away from a ball game by an uncharted field of Russian mines attended the opening and shivered and stamped through the nine inings much like a football gathering. They found a few occasions to enthuse. One of these was over a catch by Lush in left field which robbed Sullivan of a sure double and practically turned the tide of battle; another was a fine stop and throw by Davis which robbed Flick of a hit in the second inning, and still another was a stab by Donohue which kept the score from being more one sided in the fifth inning. "Jiggs" stopped a liner from Bernhardt's bat which would have done a lot of damage.

Treacherous Fielding Conditions.

The condition of the infield made the fielding of grounders treacherous work, and the fielding was clean under the circumstances. The blues lived up to their reputation as stickers, and Owen had some hard luck besides in trying to pick up slow grounders in his vicinity. These fumbles and the catch by Lush, mentioned before, were the cause of the defeat. Neither team took long chances with its arms or legs, but both played to win, and Cleveland's victory was no fluke.

The blues started scoring in the first inning. Flick singled safely to left, where the ball stopped the moment it struck the ground. Bay bunted to Donohue and was out, advancing his man. Bradley rolled one along third base line which Tannehill shot to first, a bit wide, and "Jiggs" muffed it, Flick scoring the first run of the game from second on the play. Lajoie popped out, but Owen missed a roller from Hickman and passed Lush, filling the bases, then ate up Turner's grounder and stopped the run getting at one.

Wild at the Start.

Bernhardt was wild at the start and passed Holmes on four balls pitched. Instead of taking advantage of this wildness Dundon was too anxious to bunt and struck out. Green waited and was passed, too, but Davis flied to short right and Donohue struck out.

Bemis opened the second inning with a clean hit to center and Bernhardt bunted him ahead. Davis robbed Flick of a hit over second by a brilliant stop and throw to first and Bay was retired at the initial corner by Owen. In the White Stockings' half Tannehill led off with a single to center and Jones sacrificed neatly, but the hits that were needed did not happen, both Sullivan and Owen rolling easy ones to Bernhardt.

White Sox's Only Run.

Once more in the third Cleveland started with a single, Bradley being the offender. Lajoie struck out trying to bunt. Bradley stole second, but Hickman struck out and Lush hit to Donohue, retiring the side. The White Sox tied up the game in their half. Holmes opened it with a double past Bradley's cushion. Dundon sacrificed him to third. Green batted an easy one to Hickman, who had Holmes beaten a mile at the plate, but threw low, and the run scored. Davis forced Green at second and Donohue filed to Flick.

The blues died three in a row in the fourth. Then the Sox promised to win out but Lush prevented. Tannehill cracked a single to right and Jones bunted him to second. Sullivan whacked a long liner to deep left center which looked good enough, but the fleet footed Lush headed it off by a grand catch, and when Owen hit one in the same direction Bay pulled it down, wrecking Chicago's hopes.

Game Is Over in Fifth.

The fifth saw the finish of said hopes. Flick was easily disposed of at first, but Bay pushed a safe one through to center, and Bradley rolled one safely into right, sending Bay to third. Lajoie bumped a little one close to the first base line, and Owen muxed it so long that Bay scored and Larry was safe, too. Hickman was thrown out at first by Dundon, but a pass to Lush filled the bases full, and that tow headed youth named Turner slammed a liner over right center good for a triple on any other grounds. It cleared the bases anyway, although Turner had to stop at second. Bemis followed with a single, scoring Turner with the fifth run of the inning and the last of the game, for directly after Donohue perpetrated his theft of Bernhardt's hit, ending the trouble.

The Sox started things a bit in their half of the fifth when Holmes and Dundon both started with singles, but Green popped one into Lush's hands, Davis hit to Hickman, and, after Donohue had been passed, Tannehill drove one to Lajoie, ending the round.

Closing Part Is Tame.

Little happened during the remaining four innings. The blues got only three more men to first in safety, and the White Sox did less. After the sixth inning Chicago did not see first base. Score:

REDS WIN OPENING GAME FROM SELEE'S MEN, 3 TO 2.

Big Crowd of 13,000 People Attends Inauguration of Baseball Season at Cincinnati and Sees the Home Team Capture Close Contest — Weimer Pitches Magnificent Ball, Allowing Only Three Hits, but Errors of Players Behind Him Lose the Game.

Cincinnati, O., April 14.—[Special.]—With a nod of the head and a wave of the hand Umpire Johnstone gave the word of command to pitcher Jack Sutthoff to "play ball" this afternoon, and the season of 1904 was on. Before a crowd of 13,000 people the reds gave evidence to the local fans that they have improved over last year's form by defeating Frank Selee's Colts by a score of 3 to 2 in a contest full of exciting moments from start to finish.

The Chicago men really handed the game to the locals by errors, which came at costly times, and Jake Weimer, who was on the slab for the visitors, was forced to lose the game, even though he pitched a superb ball from beginning to end, and allowed the reds only three hits during the nine innings, while the Colts made a total of seven off Sutthoff.

Weather Is Almost Perfect.

The weather was perfect, with the exception of a slight chilliness in the air, but the sun was out bright and the grounds were in midseason condition. Long before the time for the game to commence the crowd began to gather and a constant stream of enthusiastic fans flowed into the League park until long after the start had been made. Every box and every available seat in the grounds was taken and finally the crowd overflowed into the field and the right corner of the ground was roped off and ground rules became necessary.

The opening today was the most auspicious in the history of the game in this city. The program was a simple one. The parade of former years was omitted and all the ceremonies attending the opening were performed at the park. The decorations of the grandstand were as elaborate and attractive as is usual on such an occasion and a brass band discoursed music for an hour previous to the start of the game. After the two teams had put in their allotted time in practice the men were called to the front of the grandstand and acting Mayor Harry Gordon addressed them with a few words of welcome and then threw over the ball which John Kling of the Chicago team caught.

The bright star of the day was Seymour of the local team. He made one or two difficult catches of long fly balls and had six putouts to his credit. Besides that, he made one-third of the hits registered by his team. The fans cheered him for his efforts and he was the hero of the afternoon.

Colts Score Two Runs in First.

In the opening inning Slagle, who came to bat first, was out on a short grounder to Corcoran. Casey waited for four wide ones and then Capt. Chance caught a straight one for a full swing and sent the sphere into deep center garden and was resting on third when the ball was returned. Casey scored and Chance completed the circuit a moment later when McCarthy sent a long fly into right.

In the last half of the inning Woodruff was given a base by Weimer and then managed to steal second before the Colt southpaw was quite at his ease on account of the new rule governing balks. Seymour popped out to Kling and then Donlin hit a fly into Slagle's hands in center, but Slagle had not counted on anything so easy and let it go through to the ground, which gave Woodruff his chance to score.

First Hit Off Weimer.

From this time until the sixth inning not another run was counted, and the visitors kept the lead until the first hit was made off Weimer by Seymour in the sixth. He went to third when McCarthy fumbled the ball in left field. Donlin followed with a single past second, and the score was a tie up to the final inning, when Kelley managed to cross the plate with the winning one, and the crowd broke on to the field and carried him to the clubhouse.

In the ninth Kelley was first to bat and singled to right center; Steinfeldt sacrificed him to second, and Corcoran sent a fast grounder down to short, which Tinker fumbled and kicked into the diamond, and Kelley had plenty of time before Evers could throw the ball to the plate.

Notes of the Colts' Game.

Wicker will likely pitch tomorrow's game for the Colts, and Ewing probably will work for the reds.

Manager Selee has released Howard and Graham, but Moriarity will be retained for awhile. Only fifteen men are here with the team.

The first double play was made off Frank Chance. McCarthy sent a long fly to center field after Chance was on first, and Chance took too long a lead and was out at first on the throw in by Seymour. Kling made two of the seven hits counted by the Chicago team.

DEFEAT WORLD'S CHAMPIONS.

New York Highlanders Start Season Successfully, Winning from Boston by Score of 8 to 2.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—In spite of a snow storm in the morning and genuine football weather in the afternoon, the American league season was opened on the Washington Heights diamond today in a blaze of glory. Nearly 16,000 persons passed the turnstiles and saw the New York Americans take the measure of the world's champions from Boston by a score of 8 to 2.

With the subway still unable to carry the throng to the park and the counter attraction over in Brooklyn, this outpouring of enthusiastic fans far exceeded the expectations of the club officials, who were warmly congratulated on the successful beginning of the season. Score:

WINTRY OPENING IN BROOKLYN.

New York Beats Superbas by Score of 7 to 1—Pennant Already Claimed for McGraw's Outfit.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—There was a wintry but enthusiastic opening of the National league championship season in Brooklyn today. The snow in the morning did not chill the desire to see the national game once more get under way.

The game resulted in the defeat of Brooklyn by McGraw's men by a score of 7 to 1. The figures represent about the proportion of merit between the two teams. New York is at least seven times as good as Brooklyn. Strong hopes are entertained that this year's New York team will win the National league pennant, and if their clip today is that which they intend to maintain they will win it.

The playing of Brooklyn was a sad affair. Its batting was melancholy and its fielding depressed.

The automobile end of the opening was not particularly impressive. It served, however, to give the New York players a scare. A wagon on Brooklyn bridge crashed into the vehicle in which the New York players were going to the grounds, and the players were unceremoniously dumped out on the roadway. They were shaken up and disfigured, but nothing serious happened. Score:

Herrera Defeats Farmer.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

"Kid" Farmer lasted just one round before Aurelia Herrera in the windup at the Ninth Ward Guards' show last night. A clip on the jaw towards the close of the round sent the "Kid" to the floor for the count of ten, and when he arose Herrera sent over another right hand smash on the same spot, again flooring the "Kid." When time was called for the second round Farmer was still in the land of dreams. "Kid" Abel got his quietus from Billy Finucane in the third round. Abel never had a look in. In the other bouts Willie McNamara stopped "Kid" Lucca in the fourth round, Jack Galligan won from George Quinn in the third, and "Young Kid Farmer" defeated Maxey Haugh in six rounds.

Notes of the White Sox Games.

The same teams will play here again tomorrow.

Baseball yesterday was considerably a matter of luck, and the luck went the wrong way, but one game is like one swallow.

Yesterday's was the first opening game of a season the Cleveland team has won in five years. The players were correspondingly elated.

Donahue will probably pitch for Cleveland tomorrow and Altrock for the White Stockings, although much will depend on the conditions of grounds and men for the second game.

The opening was devoid of the usual inaugural features, as the spectators were more interested in keeping warm than in picking out the players for the customary welcome cheering.

Tannehill and Holmes did all the clean hitting for the White Sox. The mighty Lajoie failed to locate the hoodoo which haunts him here, and did not get a hit, but the rest of his men lived up to the team's reputation for slugging.

Donohue's lefthandedness served the White Sox well in the fifth inning, when he kept the score from climbing higher by spearing Bernhardt's liner with his gloved right hand. It would have broken a bare hand.

If the players of both teams escape serious effects from the exposure and dampness incidental to the unseasonable opening of the race yesterday it will be a fortunate miracle for all concerned. It is a standing menace to the game to schedule so early an opening north of Mason and Dixon's line.

C. W. Somers and John F. Kilfoyl, owners of the Cleveland club, were on hand for the initial contest and were delighted with the work of their men under unfavorable conditions. H. P. Edwards, Will McKay, and Elmer Bates, Cleveland newspaper men, are also accompanying the blues on their trip.

BIG PLAY ON MARTINMAS.

OWNER HENSHALL AND FRIENDS SCORE WELL AT MEMPHIS.

Defeat of Irene Lindsay in the Feature Race Results in the Overthrow of the Talent and the Enrichment of a Coterie That Supports the Second Choice — Steeplechase Proves an Easy Thing for Golden Link, the Betting Selection.

Memphis, Tenn., April 14.—[Special.]—Sam Hildreth tried an experiment today when he started Irene Lindsey in the Tennessee Brewing company stakes at seven furlongs, and the experiment proved a failure.

By Ways was put in with Irene Lindsey, and, coupled in the betting, they were made favorite at 8 to 5. Those who were not clamoring for the Hildreth entry wanted Martinmas, and it was between these two that the result of the race lay. Martinmas was the winner. Irene Lindsey stepped along in lively fashion until she came to her limitations, then Martinmas, with a display of gameness that has hardly been accredited to him, came on and took the honors in the struggle at the end.

The race was worth $1,970 to the winner, but that sum was only an incidental feature with the owner of Martinmas. The real earnings were in the betting ring here and in different poolrooms. Every one who had anything to do with the horse profited to a considerable extent. Mr. Henshall, who owns Martinmas, presented Jockey Dominick with $1,000. Dominick thought enough of his winnings to present his valet with a gold watch and chain.

There were only four starters in the steeplechase, and the 7 to 10 favorite, Golden Link, won. It was said the owner of Golden Link mortgaged his horse to bet money on this race.

Notes of the Golfers.

The Exmoor schedule has been completed and will be published in the course of a few days.

Owing to a clash of dates with the Olympic golf championships the Glen View club probably will set the dates for its open amateur tournament during the week following the St. Louis event.

HORSES COMING TO WORTH TRACK

Manager Wagner Returns from Memphis and Expects 300 Racers from Tennessee.

GOOD STABLES TO RACE.

Fred Cook, Barney Schreiber, Tichenor, Hildreth, Bennett, and Others Soon to Arrive.

Manager J. E. Wagner of the Worth Jockey club returned from Memphis yesterday, and promises that 300 horses will reach the Worth track from the Tennessee city and other racing points within the next two weeks. Mr. Wagner is pleased over the success he achieved in securing stables for Worth that had planned to go to St. Louis, Kansas City, or other points.

At the Worth club's offices yesterday the following was given out as a list of stables that would be on their way to Worth within a few days:

Fred Cook, with twenty-five head, including the American Derby candidate English Lad.
Barney Schreiber, with a string of twenty from San Francisco.
M. H. Tichenor & Co., with their string of twenty from Memphis, including Early and Flower King.
S. C. Hildreth, thirty, including Witfull.
George C. Bennett, twenty, including Little Scout.
J. C. Milam, twenty, including Commodore.
S. W. Streett, eighteen, from Nashville.
R. Bradley, twenty-three, including Peter Paul, to be shipped from Aqueduct.
E. L. Kripp, five, including Beau Ormonde.
J. F. Newman, with Don Domo, Our Bessie, and five 2 year olds.
L. M. Hodges, seven, from Grand Rapids.
John Mannion, seven, from Nashville.

C. E. Durnell, with fifteen horses, including Golden Rule, Nitrate, and Lady Lasca, is already on the scene, together with other horses that came from New Orleans ten days ago. The following additional stables may be relied upon to be here by the time of the opening:

Sidney Bender, with 8 horses; J. O. Keene, [illegible]; James Arthur, 20; B. Vincent, 5; H. Dernham, [illegible]; S. S. Tracey, 10; "Frisco" Gardner, 5; R. M. Westerfield, 4; J. C. Gray, 4; C. B. NORTHWESTERN ON BLACKLIST.

High School Board of Control Takes Severe Measure Against Suburban Athletics.

The high school board of control at its meeting yesterday took caustic action against Northwestern university athletics by the adoption of the following resolution:

"In view of the fact that Northwestern university has repeatedly encouraged high school teams to violate rules of eligibility of the board of athletic control, all members or individuals of the high school teams are prohibited from taking part in any athletic event under the auspices of Northwestern university until June 30, 1904."

The action is said to have originated in the game of baseball played at Evanston April 2, in which three Englewood pupils which had been debarred from athletics played with the Englewood High school nine against Northwestern. According to the Englewood pupils, they did not have enough men to form a nine, and so informed Coach Fleager of Northwestern. The latter advised them to declare the game off in so far as the high school was concerned and to play under the name of the Englewood Athletic club, which was done. But this did not save the pupils from being called to account by Principal James E. Armstrong of the Englewood High school, and the latter referred the case to the board of control.

Englewood Relay Team Chosen.

Englewood High school held its relay team trials yesterday afternoon at Marshall field. The four men chosen to run in the western interscholastic races tomorrow are Badenoch, Hopkins, Merrill, and Morris, who finished in the order named. The time was :56 4-5.

LEGAL NOTICES AND PROPOSALS.

NOTICE OF RECEIVERS' SALE OF THE PROPerties of the National Salt Company in the State of New York at Ithaca, May 25, 1904.

SUPREME COURT: NEW YORK COUNTY.
Chauncey H. Strickland, plaintiff, against National Salt Company, defendant.

In pursuance of an order duly made in the above entitled action, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1904, and duly entered in the office of the clerk of the county of New York on the 14th day of March, 1904, we, the undersigned, receivers of the National Salt Company, the defendant above named, will sell at public auction at the office of the said receivers, at No. 115 South Cayuga street, in the City of Ithaca, in the State of New York, on the 25th day of May, 1904, at 12 o'clock noon, the premises and properties directed by said order to be sold.

Said properties shall be offered for sale in parcels and each parcel shall be struck off and sold to the highest bidder therefor, subject to confirmation of such sale by this court.

Ten per cent of the purchase price to be paid at time of sale. The residue of said purchase money shall be paid to the said receivers at their office on a day and hour to be fixed by said receivers, within thirty days after the confirmation of the sale.

Any and all bids may be rejected by the court and the property and assets again offered for sale under the direction of the court.

The machinery, implements, tools, and appurtenances used and in use in operating the several plants shall be considered as a part thereof and go with the several parcels hereinafter described; a list of the said property going with each plant, also full terms of sale and full description of the real estate will be furnished by the receivers forthwith to each applicant therefor.

The properties, as they are, shall be offered for sale in the following parcels, in the order below set forth:

COLLEGE MEN DEBATE TONIGHT.

Northwestern and the University of Michigan Will Decide Central League Championship.

Northwestern and the University of Michigan will debate this evening in Music hall, Fine Arts building, for the championship of the Central Debating league. The question is, "Should Labor Unions Incorporate?" The Northwestern representatives will be John Massen, John Barnes, and Horace G. Smith. J. E. Bills, C. M. Holderman, and J. A. Rippel will be the opposing team. Michigan won its right to participate in the contest by defeating the team from Minnesota on Jan. 13; on the same evening Northwestern defeated Chicago.

PUNISHED FOR PENSION FRAUD.

Old Soldier and Lawyer Sentenced to Three Years at Joliet—Made False Affidavits.

Three years at hard labor in the penitentiary at Joliet was the sentence given Francis S. Miller, a pensioner, and William Griesenbeck, an attorney and notary public, for false affidavits in a pension claim, by Judge Humphrey in the United States District court yesterday afternoon. Judge Humphrey sentenced the prisoners within ten minutes after a jury returned verdicts of guilty. The jury was out less than ten minutes. The perjury case grew out of Miller's efforts to prevent his wife, whom he had deserted, from securing half his pension.

Reduction in Bank of England Discount Rate Results in Many Orders to Buy in New York Market—Statement of Merchandise Exports Over Imports for March Smaller than in Years—Gold Exports Have Not Ceased.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, April 14.—[Special.]—Prices of securities today developed a weak, sagging tendency which no doubt was disappointing to those having outstanding speculative commitments. The news of the day on the whole was favorable. After a strong opening the market evinced a general lack of buying power, which deprived it of ability to hold the gains in prices that had been made. The reduction in the Bank of England's minimum discount rate to 3½ per cent naturally was cheering to the London stock exchange and resulted in many orders being cabled to this side to purchase stocks. American gold also was quotably lower in London. All this serves to relieve our market in some degree from the demands recently addressed here from Paris for gold. The foreign exchange market today clearly indicated that gold exports had not ceased.

The government's statement of excess merchandise exports over imports for March is $28,511,235, this being the smallest excess for any corresponding month since 1897. Our foreign trade balance, it must be admitted, is steadily declining because of the comparatively high prices ruling here for leading articles in the commerce industry. Publication of this trade statement, however, was made late in the day and attracted little notice in Wall street.

In the early trading foreign buying of Southern Pacific stock was most noticeable, though it was said a good deal of the stock thus bought was sold later in the day. Other especially strong stocks were National Lead issues, Consolidated Gas, and New York Air Brake, the rise in the last named issue resulting in rumors, without a shadow of foundation, that the Air Brake company and its leading competitor were about to consolidate their interests.

Money on call easy, 1¼@1½ per cent; closing bid 1¼, offered at 1½. Time money, easy and dull; sixty days and ninety days, 2½@3; six months, 3¾. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent; sterling exchange strong, with actual business in bankers' bills at 487.35@487.40 for demand, and at 485@485.05 for sixty day bills; posted rates, 485½ and 488; commercial bills, 484¾; bar silver, 53¾; Mexican dollars, 43; government bonds easy; railroad bonds heavy.

FLAT PROPERTY IS SOLD.

DU QUESNE, IN OAKWOOD BOULEVARD, BRINGS $75,000.

New Owner Plans to Remodel the Entire Structure Into Small Apartments—Big Transfer by S. E. Gross to George M. Paine for a Nominal Consideration Is Recorded—Edward T. Singer Buys Residence in Superior Street, Near Pine Street.

A notable transaction in south side apartment house property has just been closed in the sale by Charles W. Praesent to William J. Fox of the "Du Quesne" building, in Oakwood boulevard, east of Vincennes avenue, for $75,000. The building is seven and a half stories, with ground dimensions of 51 by 170 feet, south front, and cost the original owner nearly $120,000. It is considered in point of construction one of the best of its class of buildings on the south side and was partly remodeled some time ago into thirty-six apartments of two to six rooms, for small families and bachelors.

Mr. Fox, it is said, will remodel the entire building into small apartments and install a café on the top floor. The negotiations were conducted by Burt J. Fitzgerald.

Big Transfer by S. E. Gross.

For a consideration of $1 Samuel E. Gross has conveyed to George M. Paine 171x100 feet at the northeast corner of Francisco avenue and Thirty-sixth street and twenty-three other lots in the same subdivision, the transfer, however, being subject to an incumbrance of $40,200.

Edward T. Singer has purchased from Thomas H. Colman the residence property in Superior street, 450 feet east of Pine street, with 20x125 feet of ground, for $20,000, subject to an incumbrance of $5,000.

The residence property in Grand boulevard, sixty feet south of Forty-first street, 20x175 feet, has been sold by Henry Kahn to David Wiener for $15,000.

The deed by which Adolf Kraus acquires from Elizabeth A. Ware the property at 229-233 South Water street for $130,000 was filed for record yesterday, the purchaser assuming an incumbrance of $50,000.

Other Real Estate News.

The Sanitary Laundry company has given a trust deed for $75,000 to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure an issue of bonds due Feb. 10, 1907, and bearing 6 per cent interest. GRAVE FEARS FOR CROP.

WHEAT STRONG ON CONTINUED DAMAGE COMPLAINTS.

Backward Season Over Winter Wheat Belt and Poor Appearance of the Plant in Ohio, Indiana, and the Southwest Basis of Some Sensational Claims—Cold and Snow Delay Seeding in the Northwest — Corn and Oats Firm on Small Receipts.

More snow and cold weather in the northwest and low temperatures all over the country to delay seeding and growth, and more complaints from Ohio, Indiana, and the southwest of poor crop prospects, made the wheat market strong at the start, and kept it strong most of the session. The dullness of the cash demand affected the May, which closed unchanged, but the July gained ⅜c and the September ⅜c, as the result of fears for the crop. The best prices were not maintained, the close being at a reaction of about ½c. The old July sold between 88⅝c and 89⅝c, and closed at 89c bid.

The low prices, which showed losses of ⅛@⅜c, were made in the first hour on selling by local holders, who lost faith for a time in the numerous and virulent claims of crop damage because they did not seem to be accompanied to any extent by buying orders. But offerings on this decline were as light as the buying had been on the early advance. There was buying which was taken to be for the leading short in the local market, and the theory that some one else really wanted wheat caused a decided scramble among local traders for the same property, with the result that there was a sharp rally of 1⅛@1⅜c. The buying referred to, which was led by Bennett and other houses with St. Louis connections, was supposed to be for Kaufman. There was buying for the northwest also through Wrenn, Daggett, and others, selling on the early advance by McReynolds and Irwin-Green, buying on the break by Pringle, Dunn, and local traders, and selling on the late rally by Bartlett-Frazier, Logan-Bryan, Ware-Leland, and pit longs.

Radical Damage Claims.

The crop news was just as radical as the day before, particularly from Ohio and Indiana. There was a claim from the southwest that western Kansas, which usually raises the bumper crop, would be a total failure. There was the claim no wheat would be raised in the Panhandle of Texas. The complaints were so sweeping there was some disposition to consider them overdrawn and more attention was paid to prophecies that with a few days of warm weather things would look better. The Price Current said the condition was slightly improved. It was snowing in the northwest from Moorhead to Winnipeg, and the prediction was for more snow today and cold weather, an outlook which put the Minneapolis price up over a cent.

As an offset to the crop news there was the fact the cash demand here was extremely dull and that the Minneapolis mills were closing after a week of small production and smaller demand. New York messages said the flour demand was the dullest it has been in twenty years, and reported the United Kingdom reselling cargoes of Manitoba wheats. Minneapolis stocks increased 175,000 bu for five days.

The movement was light, 128 cars northwest, compared with 251 a week ago and 111 a year ago. Primary receipts were 242,000 bu, compared with 236,000 bu last year, while shipments were 220,000 bu, compared with 527,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were only 42,000 bu, of which but 1,600 bu were wheat. Argentine shipments were estimated at 3,600,000 bu, a liberal showing which helped the final reaction from top prices. Liverpool responded moderately to the advance here the day before, grading ⅜d and spot wheat in that market was high, Kansas up ¼d, Manitoba 1d, and Argentine ⅜d. Paris was steady to ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Small Changes in Corn.

There was not much to the corn market except occasional buying of May by Armour, some selling of July by commission houses, which might have been for the same interest, and some open July selling toward the close on a moderate scale. The trade was largely local and the tendency was to follow the fluctuations in wheat. The May range was from 52¼c to 53⅜c, with the close at 53½c, a net gain of ½c. The July and September gained ⅜c. Receipts were light, only 49 cars in, of which 13 graded contract, and only 73 cars were estimated for today. Cash prices were ½c to 1c higher as the result of the small receipts, and it is expected the movement will continue light for some time, unless prices advance, as little corn is being bought in the country and little being consigned. There was more shipping inquiry from the east, but bids still out of line. There were 117 cars and 52,000 bu of contract corn out of private houses. Primary receipts were 315,000 bu; a year ago they were 178,000 bu. Argentine shipments were estimated at 400,000 bu. Liverpool futures were ⅜d higher. Clearances were 106,000 bu, export sales 16,000 bu.

Light Receipts of Oats.

There was a narrow trade in oats, the range barely ½c, with closing prices steady to ⅛-¼c higher. The strength in other grains was a factor, and there was buying on the light receipts and the continued delay in seeding, which the Price Current announced was from from one to two weeks late, but the market was a narrow one and had to take some local realizing. There were 51 cars in, with 3 standard, and about 25,000 bu standard out of private houses. Estimated receipts for today are only 57 cars, and a small movement is predicted for some time. The cash market was steady and there were indications of a better shipping demand. There were sales of 20,000 bu standard oats at ½c over May in store. Total cash sales were 45,000 bu. Clearances were 26,000 bu.

Provisions Weaker, but Rally.

Provisions opened higher on the firmer hog market and the better grain prices, but later, when it became apparent that buying by Cudahy had ceased, the market turned heavy. When grains relapsed and selling by brokers was generally credited to J. Cudahy and the Milwaukee Cudahys weakness became more marked and declines of 27½@32½c for pork, 10@12½c for lard, and 12½c for ribs were registered. There was further liquidation by outsiders on the way down, but with the upturn in grain local buying, mainly by shorts, brought a rally. Pork closed steady to 5c off, lard steady to 5c up, and ribs unchanged to 2½c lower. Early selling was led by Hately, Steever, and Bartlett-Frazier. There were 17,000 hogs at the yards and 15,000 are expected today. Prices were a shade higher early, but the close was easy, the advance about lost. Receipts at the western points were 52,000 head, against 61,600 last year. Shipments were under last year, the meat outgo 400,000 lbs less and the lard 200,000 lbs less. Liverpool lard was 9d higher and bacon and hams 6d higher.

Rye Up with Wheat.

Rye ruled firm in sympathy with other grains, but there was no trading in futures. May was 71c bid and 73c asked and July 68c bid and 70c asked. Cash offerings were light, sales of a poor car of No. 3 at 53c being the only trade reported. There were no receipts here; shipments, 3,791 bu.

Barley offerings were small, choice particularly scarce. Feed sales were at firm prices, sales from 34@35½c and screenings from 31@35½c. Malting sold from 40@52c, with fancy quotably 60c. Receipts were 25 cars and shipments 6,520 bu.

Flaxseed market was without receipts, and no spot was offered. No. 1 northwestern was quoted steady at $1.16 and No. 1 at $1.09. Futures were neglected, April nominally $1.08, May $1.09, and September was offered at $1.15. Minneapolis receipts were 10 cars and Duluth got 38 cars. The three points received 22 cars a year ago.

Timothy seed was slow and steady, country lots selling mostly from $2.40@2.50, with the extreme range $2.00@2.80. April was nominally $2.85@2.90 and September was $3.00 asked and $2.90 bid.

Clover seed prices were nominal and about the same as Wednesday. Contract spot was $10.75 and country offerings sold sparingly from $8.00@10.00.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

It was snowing at Winnipeg at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, and there had been half an inch of moisture there the preceding twenty-four hours. It was snowing at Louisville, and a heavy frost is reported in Virginia. During the session snows were reported at various points in Minnesota and North Dakota. Temperatures in the northwestern states ranged from 22 to 32 degrees, in Iowa and Nebraska from 30 to 38 degrees, in Kansas and Missouri from 36 to 44 degrees, and in Illinois from 30 to 44 degrees. Colder weather was predicted for the northwest today, following snows. The situation was not a promising one for seeding of oats or spring wheat, for growth of winter wheat, or for farm work generally. A few days of bright, warm weather, when they come, will of course change the appearance of things, as some conservative traders were careful to point out. But with such conditions continuing, and some woeful complaints of the miserable condition of winter wheat and the certainty of a reduced area of spring wheat coming in, it seemed easy to believe that the wheat crop of 1904 was bound to be an exceedingly poor one. Spencer wired from St. Louis that it was too early to get excited about the winter wheat crop, as appearances are often deceptive at this time of the year. Halliday, the Cairo miller, ventured the prediction that with a few days of mild spring weather a vast improvement would be noted in the plant in Indiana and Ohio, in those sections where it is looking in bad shape now. On the other hand, Sneath of Tiffin, O., who operates a system of country elevators through northern Indiana and Ohio, declared crop conditions were the poorest he had ever seen them and his reports so sensationally bad he did not care to publish them. The Indiana statistician, Johnson, announced reports from nearly every township showed few counties would harvest even a fair crop, estimating the yield from 55 to 60 per cent.

The Northwestern Miller says of the Minneapolis flour market: "By reason of some of the mills stopping late in the week, the flour output last week decreased 63,000 brls. The quantity of flour turned out (week of April 9) was 187,885 brls, against 352,035 in 1903, and 363,195 in 1902. The present week promises to make even a lighter showing. Most of the nine and one-half mills in operation today will be shut down tomorrow night and so remain until Monday. Therefore, the week's output is not likely to exceed 100,000 brls. Light as was the production, even a smaller quantity was sold. With a large amount of delayed flour arriving at Boston and other eastern markets, there is the greatest indifference shown by buyers about placing new orders. The limited business doing is being largely absorbed by resellers, who make prices under what millers can afford to accept." Of the flour trade generally it says: "Conditions last week were varied according to locality, and while some millers report a revival of inquiry and an increase of demand, others tell the continued story of dead trade. Mills everywhere are running lightly and many are closed down. Scanty supplies of wheat is a commonly made excuse, but lack of orders is the explanation more frequently advanced. Latest news of the wheat crop is more encouraging, and this is especially true of Kansas, where weather conditions are reported to be favorable for the new wheat. Today's cables state the flour stocks in Glasgow are heavy, though receipts have been moderate of late; hence flour is a dragging sale. In Liverpool similar conditions prevail and nearly all grades can be bought cheaper on spot than for shipment. Reports from London and from Amsterdam note no encouraging features in those markets."

A message from Portland, Ore., to Logan-Bryan says: "The editor of the Commercial Review has just returned from a trip through the wheat belt and reports crop prospects excellent. Acreage of spring and fall wheat about 4,000,000 acres, fully 33 1-3 per cent larger than a year ago. Barring hot winds in June, crop should be fully 70,000,000 bu, against 32,000,000 bu a year ago. Fall wheat in excellent shape—never looked better."

These are hard times for the man who thinks he is a speculator until the market goes against him and then decides he has been gambling. Even country juries have lost their sympathy for traders of this kind. E. W. Wagner recovered damages of $430 in a case at Paxton, Ill., from J. L. Larkin, who had pleaded the gambling act as an excuse for not paying his obligations.

Directors who oppose the admission of members whose employers own their certificates deny there was any change of principle in the admission of an applicant last week who had been rejected the week before, declaring he had borrowed the money to buy his certificate and so owned his own membership, a substantial difference, it was claimed, in the matter of responsibility for contracts or engagements.

Ware-Leland's traveling man wired from Salina, Kas.: "Have been in north part of Ness, Russell, Barton, Rice, and McPherson counties today; condition of wheat steadily improves as you come northeast, but have seen more spotted and yellow wheat than at any time on my trip. From Lindsberg to Salina color of wheat is good and looks more promising. Reserves old wheat from 3 to 5 per cent."

The 3,000 bu out of the two cargoes of corn loading for Armour which was turned down on Wednesday was the first which was run out into the vessels, and the best of it was not examined. Supervising Inspector Smillie said: "The first 3,000 bu was in such poor condition it was graded No. 3, and the loading was stopped."

The Cincinnati Price Current says: "The wheat crop is maintained or slightly improved. Some decline in parts of Indiana and Ohio; improvement south and west. Oats seeding and plowing much delayed by wet ground; season one to two weeks late. All grain movements light to moderate."

Schwabacker's estimate of local provision stocks follows: Pork, 51,000 brls; lard, 78,000 tcs; ribs, 25,750,000 lbs. Compared with the figures from the same source issued last week, the pork stock is 200 brls larger, lard 500 tcs smaller, and ribs 700,000 lbs smaller.

The Western Elevator company at Winona, Minn., which operates 175 elevators, wired Bartlett-Frazier: "Reports from our auditors in South Dakota and western Minnesota say good progress being made in seeding of wheat and oats."

A Minneapolis wire said: "Eight inches of snow at Brandon, Man.; two inches at Grafton, N. D., two inches at Grand Fords, N. D. Still snowing from Fargo as far east as Fergus Falls, Minn."

Grain receipts for today are about as follows: Wheat, 17 cars; corn, 73 cars, 21 of them contract; oats, 57 cars, 1 standard; no rye; barley, 16 cars. The hog estimate is 15,000 head.

Cash wheat was quoted "dead dull" in the local market, not enough arriving to make a market, but nominal prices not following the advance in wheat.

Memberships are lower, being offered at $3,550 clear to the buyer or $3,425 net to the seller, a decline of $50 from the last transaction quoted.

Iowa dealers were in the market in Peoria for corn to ship to Iowa to supply feeders.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The market conditions in dry goods show little change, and yet there is a feeling of greater firmness. Considerable weakness is in evidence, and the buyer who does not want the goods is not apt to make a price for fear of it being accepted.

Metals—The London tin market was easier, spot declining 2s 6d to £126 17s 6d, while futures were 5s lower at £126 15s; locally the market was quiet and a little lower in sympathy with spot, closing at $27.75@28.00. Copper advanced 2s 6d to £57 17s 6d for spot in the London market, but futures there were 5s lower at £57 15s; locally lake is quoted at $13.25@13.62½, electrolytic at $13.12½@13.25, and casting at $12.87½@13.12½. Lead was unchanged here at $4.60@4.65, but declined 1s 3d to £12 6s 3d in London. Spelter advanced 2s 6d to £22 7s 6d in London; locally it was firm but unchanged at $5.25@5.30. Iron closed at 52s 6d in Glasgow and at 45s in Middlesboro; locally iron remains firm at recent prices; No. 1 foundry northern is quoted at $15.25@15.75, No. 2 foundry northern at $14.75@15.25, No. 1 foundry southern and No. 1 foundry southern soft at $14.25@14.75.

Coffee—Spot Rio steady; No. 7 invoice, 7⅛c; mild, steady; Cordova, 10@13c. Futures steady at a net decline of 30@35 points.

EXCHANGE OUTLOOK FIRM.

BANK RATE REDUCTION DOES NOT AFFECT STERLING MARKET.

New York Banks Purchase British Bills More Profitably than Lending at Call Rates—S. B. Chapin Believes That the Present Scarcity of Stocks Is Due to Purchases Made by Railroad Companies — Union Bag and Paper Company.

Although the Bank of England yesterday reduced its minimum rate of discount from 4 to 3½ per cent, sterling exchange in New York continued firm. The course of the sterling market seems to indicate that New York bankers find it more profitable to buy sterling loans than to lend their call funds in Wall street at 1½ to 1¾ per cent.

While the minimum bank rate is now 3½ per cent, the open bank rate is from 2 9-16 to 2⅝ per cent. In the circumstances the change in the bank rate to 3½ does not mean materially slower money market in London. Had the rate been made 3 per cent it would still have been from 7-16 to ⅜ above the open rate. For this reason the reduction does not have the significance that frequently attaches to it.

If a New York banker is able to buy sterling, paying 2½ per cent, he is still ¾ per cent above the New York call market. With sterling almost instantly convertible into cash, and considering the attraction it offers in the present money situation in Wall street, the outlook continues to be for firmness in sterling rates.

The Bank of England's minimum rate was on May 21, 1903, reduced from 4 to 3½ per cent. On June 18, 1903, it was reduced to 3 per cent. On Sept. 3, 1903, it was advanced to 4 per cent, and continued at that figure until yesterday.

Have Railroads Bought the Stocks?

S. B. Chapin of S. B. Chapin & Co. returned from New York yesterday. He advances the idea that the railroads have been the buyers of stocks and have been borrowing money to pay for them. He said of the general situation:

"The consensus of opinion is that good dividend stocks are worth the price at which they are now selling. Among the traders you will find that they are about equally divided between the bull and the bear side of the market. One side waits for a small reaction on which to buy stocks, while the other side stands ready to sell the market on any sharp advance.

"What puzzles a good many people is the question, Why is it necessary for the railroads to borrow so much money? My theory is that, while part of the proceeds of these short time loans may be used for improvements, the major portion is being used to buy stocks in connecting or competing roads. New bonds are practically unsalable, hence the necessity for the railroads to make these loans. There are plenty of new bonds which are now unsalable and will have to remain in cold storage for some time, unless they can be sold in Europe. Our market will need a year or more to absorb the bulk of these various issues.

"The control of railroads is getting into fewer hands each year through the ownership of stocks by the greater road in the smaller one. This is proved by the fact that the brokers are carrying fewer stocks than formerly, they having passed into the strong box of railroad corporations."

Union Bag's Investments.

In his annual statement to the stockholders of the Union Bag and Paper company, President L. G. Fisher said, among other things:

"Commencing in November, sales for the whole of the last quarter of the year fell off 40 per cent from normal. This was not the result of competition, but was due to the general cessation of buying in all lines of industry during that period. It affected our profits materially. It is encouraging, however, to note that the business of the first two months of the new year (February and March) has been larger than that of the corresponding months of any year since the formation of the company.

"During the year ending Feb. 1, 1901, the company purchased raw material to the amount of $1,193,000; for the year ending Feb. 1, 1904, $230,000. The estimate for this year is $175,000, mainly for soda pulp, of which we do not use enough to pay to manufacture. The company sold the last year, and has contracted for this, about 4,000 tons of wood pulp and 6,000 tons of sulphite. The total sum of money spent by the company since its formation in construction of all kinds and in the purchase of woodlands and real estate amounts to $2,200,000.

"The profits saved and made last year by its wood pulp and sulphite mills alone paid 10 per cent on this total investment. The indebtedness of the company has been decreased since last July (high water mark) $200,000, and the prospects are favorable to its elimination within a reasonable time. The management feels that the company has a good property now, well rounded out and with continued earning capacity under any circumstances, and it is well to remember that it has other sources of income besides its bag business."

Dividends Declared.

Pacific Coast company has declared regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent each on its first, second preferred, and common stocks, payable May 2. Books close April 16, reopen May 2.

Henry R. Worthington, incorporated, has declared regular semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent on its preferred stock, payable May 2. Books close April 20 and reopen May 3.

National Steel and Wire company has declared regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred stock, payable May 4. Books close April 22, reopen May 4.

Central Oil company declared regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent, 25c per share, payable May 2 to stockholders of record April 22.

Talk with Jacob Schiff.

Jacob Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is quoted as saying in Frankfort, Germany:

"The recent heavy buying movement in Union Pacific is as yet unexplained, but it cannot be assumed that it is due to the purpose of a new group of capitalists to get control of the property. The persons now controlling the enterprise are firmly established, and too strong in capital to afford other parties any prospect of getting a controlling interest. I doubt whether the Northern Securities decision will be followed by action of the courts against similar combinations. It will, however, prevent the formation of further combinations, which would certainly have been organized had the decision been favorable to the Northern Securities company."

General Financial News.

There were rumors in Wall street yesterday that either the Amalgamated Copper or the Anaconda Copper, or both companies would increase their quarterly dividends on the occasion of the next regular distribution.

President Dolan of the United Gas Improvement company emphatically denies that his company will absorb the Philadelphia Electric company.

Stockholders of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad will hold their annual meeting in Pittsburg on May 19. Books for the meeting close April 19.

The subtreasury has since last Friday lost $4,594,000 to the banks.

Pig Iron Market.

Rogers, Brown & Co. say: "The last week has been an uneventful one, about the only distinct feature being the reported withdrawal from the market of the product of a prominent southern furnace company, it being stated that this course was adopted on account of heavy sales. The buying in this territory for all classes of iron has been exceedingly light. Judging from information received from widely scattered points it appears that the tardy spring weather may have something to do with present slow conditions.

"Stocks of pig iron are reported reduced during the month of March about 75,000 tons. This accounts in some measure for the holding up of prices in the face of light buying."

War View of Financial Paris.

According to the London Statist, the Paris money view of the war situation runs about as follows: "The argument that seems to be most generally accepted in Paris is that the Russians, having had two months to make ready, and having now competent men in command both of the army and of the navy, will be able to hold their own. It is deemed possible that they may even inflict a defeat upon the Japanese. In any case, it is not thought likely that the Japanese will be able to gain a great success. If the Russians win, it is hoped in Paris that they will be satisfied. They will see that a war in Manchuria, if pushed to extremes, would be a most costly thing, and that it would strain the resources of the empire, that it would last a long time, and it might provoke other states to intervene and that thus the end might be most disadvantageous to Russia than her position would be now if, after a victory on land, she were to make peace. On the other hand, it is pointed out that Japan has always declared she does not want increased territory, that she is quite prepared to acknowledge all reasonable claims of Russia, and that, therefore, if Russia is willing to treat, Japan will be eager to meet her half way, especially if the first encounter upon land is not advantageous to Japan."

Chicago Stocks.

On the local stock exchange Pneumatic Tool stock dropped to 23¼ for a lot of 100 shares. The market may now be expected to take care of itself for a while. There is no special motive for supporting the stock, since it is nondividend paying, and would naturally find a level a few points lower. The bonds sold back to 50, a price where there has heretofore been a fair market for them.

The Biscuit shares continued steady. The Can stocks sold off apparently in sympathy with New York.

National Carbon directors will meet in Cleveland next week for the purpose of acting on the quarterly dividend on the preferred.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, April 14.—The supplies of money today were scarcer and the rates hardened temporarily. It was estimated that the amount of the county council loan was covered from ten to twenty times, thus locking up $20,000,000 and sending borrowers to the Bank of England for temporary accommodation. Business on the stock exchange generally was cheerful, consequent on the reduction of the Bank of England's rate of discount from 4 per cent to 3½ per cent. Operators were largely occupied with the conclusion of the settlement, which ended satisfactorily, only one failure, that of a small jobber in Kaffirs, being announced. Consols and home rails were easier and prices rallied. Americans opened steady, subsequently improved to above parity, on New York support, notably in the case of United States Steel; then became inactive and closed firm. Foreigners were dull. Russian securities fell ⅝. Japanese securities were ⅝ better. Closing stocks:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Cattle Market Active, with Moderate Arrivals—Hogs Sell Off at Close—Sheep Prices Weak.

Arrivals of live stock for Thursday's market were moderate, including only 6,000 cattle, 17,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep. The market for cattle was active and strong; hogs opened strong, but closed lower. Sheep are generally steady to weak.

The following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated, with comparative figures:

Cattle.

There was some hunting around on the part of buyers for choice to prime fat steers and the extreme scarcity of these kinds forced an active and strong market on medium to good grade of steers that sell from about $4.75 to $5.25. Only two loads of cattle for the day were found good enough to sell above $5.40 and few above $5.25. Quotations:

Good to prime steers	$5.25@5.60
Poor to medium	3.75@5.00

Bulls	2.00@4.10
Calves	2.50@4.75
Texas fed steers	4.00@4.65

Hogs.

Thursday's trade in hogs was uneven. A few early sales to the scalper trade were at strong to a shade higher prices. Quotations:

Mixed and butchers'	$5.10@5.35
Good to choice heavy	5.30@5.40
Rough heavy	5.10@5.30
Light	4.85@5.25
Bulk of sales	5.10@5.30

Sheep.

The market for sheep was slow, with prices steady to weak. The same was true of lambs, with the exception of some nice light clipped lambs, a season's top for this kind being made at $5.75. Quality of offerings of both sheep and lambs was not as good as on previous days of the week. Quotations:

Good to choice wethers	$4.75@5.65
Fair to choice mixed	3.50@4.50
Native lambs, clipped	4.50@5.50
Clipped western sheep and yearlings	4.50@5.25

SCHOOL TO FOLLOW PUPIL

OFFICIALS FAVOR CONSTRUCTION OF MOVABLE BUILDINGS.

Establishment of System Declared to Offer Solution of Problem of Housing "Floating" Population of Students—Will Do Away with Rented Quarters—Extension of Car Line May Develop District Needing Educational Facilities.

The establishment of movable schools was declared by board of education officials yesterday to offer the only solution of the problem of housing the "floating" school population of Chicago in sanitary quarters.

The plan has been evolved as a result of the cry against accommodating the "overflow" in poorly ventilated, badly heated, and insanitary rented quarters.

School Buildings Too Slow.

Erection of new buildings has reduced the number of poorly accommodated pupils from 40,000 to nearly 5,000 within the last five years. Another 5,000 are attending only half day sessions.

Board officials say it will be impossible to reduce the number greatly by building new schools. They declare Chicago always has a large "floating" population that goes from one part of the city to the other, with an influx of immigrants annually. They have found that permanent schools cannot be built between "migrations," and suggest that the movable schools follow this population in the wake of the moving vans.

Used in Boston with Success.

"The movable schools are used in Boston with great success," said Supt. Cooley. "They are built so as readily to be taken to pieces in sections and moved from one part of the city to the other. They are constructed along the most approved lines, and fitted with all conveniences necessary to insure perfect sanitation.

"The extension of an electric car line for a mile or two, or an improvement in the suburban service of a steam railroad, may build up a district in a few months. It will not do to postpone attending to the needs of a section of the city until the permanence of the population is assured. It must be not only possible but convenient for every child in Chicago to attend school."

Trustee Ole A. Thorpe indorsed the plan.

Relief for 3,700 Pupils.

Relief for 3,700 children now deprived of seating room will be provided by an order of Acting Building Commissioner L. E. Stanhope, throwing open for recitation class purposes thirty-one school assembly halls and permitting six assembly halls to reopen as classrooms. The latter, with capacities, are as follows:

MAKE PLANS TO IMPROVE ALL STREET CAR SERVICE.

City Railway to Add 100 Cars and Union Traction Will Lay Before Court Its Project for Same Number.

How the service can be improved was considered yesterday by officials of both the Union Traction and the Chicago City railway companies. The latter took definite action, while the former must consult Judge Grosscup.

The south side company announced it had contracted for 100 more cars and would put them in use at once. Some are to be run on the Wallace street line and some in Indiana avenue. The practice of taking cars out of service en route will be stopped.

It also is proposed to put a night car service on the Indiana avenue line, since trolley cars now can run uptown independently of the Cottage Grove avenue cable. The Brighton Park service is to be increased, and more cars are to be put on Archer avenue.

The receivers of the Union Traction company considered the plan of purchasing 100 new cars. They must be paid for out of receipts, and this would interfere with the payment of dividends to the underlying companies, so Judge Grosscup must act.

Estimates were given to show that for permanent improvements it would require at least $30,000,000 to lay tracks, buy cars, and supply motive power. This cannot be provided without a settlement of the franchise question, and it is believed the company will go before the city council at its next meeting with a request that an ordinance be reported as soon as possible.

R. R. Govin denied the statement that he had agreed to accept certificates under the Mueller law in return for the interest of his friends in the Traction company.

CLUB WOMEN IN "BLACK FACE."

Colonial Members Will Give Minstrel Show This Evening and a Short Play.

The young women of the Colonial club will give a minstrel show tonight in spite of the declaration of Mrs. Frank T. Bliss that it would be shocking for them "to blacken up their lovely faces." The women of the club will appear in burnt cork and will make things lively with the tambourine and bones. Mrs. William West will act as interlocutor. A curtain raiser, "Mrs. Gadabout's Busy Day," by Mrs. William Parker, will be presented.

GIRLS DECOYED TO CHICAGO.

Police Are Asked by Relatives to Find Two Young Women from New York State.

The police yesterday were asked to search for Rose Dwyer, 16 years old, and Esther Stanbock, 16 years old, both of whom, their relatives declare, were enticed to Chicago from near New York City with promise of employment by the Home Folks Publishing company, 63 Washington street. The publisher denies all knowledge of them.

NEWS OF THE INSURANCE WORLD.

Eastern News Telegraphed from New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.

WANT COUNTY RATE RESTORED.

Agents Suggest That Revocation of New Tariffs Would Prevent Further Trouble with Holmes.

Several of the local agents met yesterday at luncheon to discuss the Cook county insurance trouble and to suggest plans whereby further complications might be avoided. The general opinion was that any action taken by the Chicago Underwriters' association or Frank F. Holmes & Co. would involve litigation, and probably lead to serious results.

The suggestion was made that the board authorize the old rate on the county property in view of the fact that a charge for electrical defects could be construed as being provided for in the rate without an extra charge. It also was reported that fire fighting apparatus has been purchased at Dunning, and captains in the fire department drill some of the inmates every week on the course to pursue in case of a loss, and that the streets have been paved, so that the nearest engine can arrive in fifteen minutes. This plan is being put forth in order to get the sentiment of board members.

John A. Eddy, formerly general agent of the Union Central Life at Sioux City, Ia., and later manager of the ordinary branch of the Life Insurance company of Virginia, has been made Iowa state manager of the life and accident departments of the Travelers, with headquarters in Des Moines. W. E. Snider, who formerly had charge of those departments of the company, has resigned.

The New Amsterdam Casualty has won its suit in Judge Holdom's court against the American Bonding company and Clyde D. Knapp. Knapp was the former Chicago manager of the New Amsterdam. The American Bonding company executed two bonds of $1,000 each on him to protect the New Amsterdam. The company charged Knapp with collecting premiums and not turning them over to the company. The bonding company denied liability on the bonds. Auditor Pratt of the New Amsterdam was in Chicago during the trial this week.

Manager J. D. McCune of the Northwestern National declares the policy of his company on the the Chicago public library was written at the local board rate, and says that if Charles Brock-Jones, the broker who submitted the bid, made a rate of 40 cents, he offered the difference in rate on his own account. Mr. McCune asserts he told Mr. Brock-Jones the Northwestern National would take $10,000 at the board rate, and even at that he considered the tariff too low. He declared the company is not seeking business at less than the regular rate.

A problem has arisen over the adjustment of the loss of the Talking Machine company, which was involved in the recent Madison street fire. This concern handles the records of the Victor Talking Machine company and the National Phonograph company. Accompanying each record is a contract in which the selling agents agree not to dispose of the records for less than the full schedule price, on penalty of forfeiting their contracts. The Talking Machine company has filed proofs for a total loss. The adjusters contend that many of the records are as good as new, and few are damaged to any extent. They hold they can dispose of them for a fair price. The concern, however, refuses to turn over the records for less than the full price. The insurance companies are inclined to make an issue on this point, as they hold there is by no means a total loss, and they do not care to establish a precedent in dealing with such losses by paying full value when there is not a total loss.

A general meeting of representatives of companies interested in Kansas affairs will be held in Kansas City, Mo., May 3. The conditions in Kansas have materially improved since the various interests have got together.

W. W. Waddell, who for several months has been connected in an office capacity with the western department of the Delaware and Reliance, has been appointed special agent of the companies for Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa.

E. W. Scott Jr., superintendent of agents of the Provident Savings Life, is spending the week in Chicago.

W. D. Wyman, manager of the Berkshire Life, has gone to Philadelphia to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Life Underwriters, which will be held in that city today.

M. J. Fullerton, a broker in Chicago, has been appointed Cook county special agent for the Connecticut Fire.

At the meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in New York May 12 a banquet will be served at Delmonico's, at which business and professional men will be invited to discuss fire insurance from their viewpoint.

Owing to the organization of the Western Sprinkled Risk association, it is likely the movement of Ohio field men to form a syndicate of nonunion companies to write sprinkled risks in that state will be dropped. Ohio has a number of such risks, and the nonunion men felt they should be in a position to assist an agent in carrying a large line.

The Prudential Insurance company has completed an elaborate exhibit for the St. Louis world's fair. The exhibit shows the practical working of the insurance business.

James A. Waterworth of St. Louis has completed his schedule of rates for the world's fair. Most of the concessions are rated at 10½ per cent, with a diminishing clause providing that 5-10 of 1 per cent of the rate shall expire May 16 and 5-10 of 1 per cent of the original policy shall expire at noon on each succeeding day. The clause is so arranged that the whole amount of the policy will expire on the day the fair closes.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

Charles F. Koster Chosen Secretary of Phenix of Brooklyn—Hinkley Funeral Held.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Charles F. Koster, formerly assistant secretary of the Phenix Insurance company of Brooklyn, has been elected secretary of the company.

Funeral services over the late James W. Hinkley, president of the United States Casualty company, held this afternoon in Christ church, Poughkeepsie, were largely attended by many friends and business associates, including the directors and officers of the United States Casualty company. The pallbearers were Judge Parker, former United States Senators D. B. Hill and Edward Murphy Jr., Capt. Frank O. Briggs, U. S. A., retired, of Trenton; John Doheney of Poughkeepsie, and Frank B. Lown of Poughkeepsie. The local offices of the United States Casualty company were closed throughout the day as a mark of respect to the memory of its late president.

Harry C. Birge, secretary of the Riggs Fire Insurance company of Washington, has arranged to form a partnership with Herman E. Gash to do a real estate and insurance business, with headquarters at the present office of the latter.

At a special meeting of the New York board of fire underwriters held this morning to consider legislative matters a resolution offered by the committee on laws and legislation was unanimously adopted, authorizing the committee to oppose the signing of the Grady reinsurance reserve bill now in the hands of the governor.

Thrasher Hall, a well known St. Louis adjuster for assured, has established an office in this city.

Recent investigation into conditions at Dallas shows many recommendations made by Inspector Johnson of the national board have been adopted, and the work either completed or in progress while in other cases matters are receiving careful and favorable consideration. In order to reap the full benefit of these improvements it will be necessary to have a new chief of the fire department. As the term of the present incumbent expires in June the opportunity of effecting a change will be had, and it is hoped in some quarters underwriters will take advantage of it to do all in their power to bring about such a result.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—[Special.]—The legislative committee on mercantile affairs yesterday reported favorably a bill to amend the building laws of the city of Boston so that mercantile buildings may be erected with 20,000 square feet of area subject to certain restrictions as regards construction and fire protection.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR COMPANY.

Baltimore Equitable Life Consents to Action Taken by Company, Bond Being $20,000.

Baltimore, Md., April 14.—The Baltimore Equitable Life Insurance company went into the hands of receivers today upon the application of State Insurance Commissioner Wilkinson, and upon an answer filed by the company in which the appointment of receivers was consented to. The receivers were required by the court to give a bond of $20,000, this amount being double the value of the only asset of the company, this asset being the $10,000 deposited with the insurance commissioner as required by law.

National Life Restrains Attorneys.

Topeka, Kas., April 14.—[Special.]—On application of the National Life Insurance company of Chicago the United States court today granted a temporary restraining order against S. H. Nold and A. L. Atwood, Topeka attorneys, charged with inducing policy holders to cancel their policies.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

DECIDE AGAINST SPRING GRAIN RATE REDUCTION.

Eastern Traffic Officials Depart from Custom and Ruling Probably Will Cause Severe Criticism from Shippers—Gulf Lines Will Benefit—E. H. Harriman Now Is Believed to Be Behind the W. A. Clark Road Building Enterprise on the Coast.

Eastern traffic officials, at their meeting here yesterday, decided not to make the customary spring reduction in rates on grain and grain products from Chicago to the east. This will leave the tariff on domestic grain and grain products from Chicago to New York by the all rail lines at 20 cents for 100 pounds, or 2 cents higher than last summer. On export grain from Chicago to New York the rate will be 15 cents for 100 pounds and on grain products 16½ cents.

The lake and rail rates will be 2 cents less than the all rail rates. Philadelphia will continue to get a differential of 2 cents below the New York rate on grain products and Baltimore of 3 cents, but on grain the differential to Philadelphia will be only 1 cent and to Baltimore 1½ cents.

Favors the Gulf Lines.

The action of the east bound roads in deciding to maintain winter rates during the summer undoubtedly will cause severe criticism from shippers, as it will have the effect of diverting the western grain to the gulf lines, which are making unusually low rates to secure the business.

While the traffic officials of the east bound roads insist that the above rates are fixed for the season, the suspicion prevails that they are merely taking advantage of the low rates on grain now in effect from Missouri river points to Chicago and that as soon as the western roads have restored their rates, which will be before the end of this month, both the all rail and the lake and rail lines from Chicago to the east will put the rates down to last year's level.

The failure of the eastern roads to meet gulf competition during the last few years has caused New York's downfall as the leading grain export city, and only a short time ago the trunk line officials promised the New York shippers that the gulf competition should be met. It is probable that they will veto the action taken yesterday by the Central Freight association lines.

Harriman Is Behind Clark.

Authoritative denial is made of the report that the Rock Island is backing the construction of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad. E. H. Harriman is believed to be behind the W. A. Clark enterprise. It has been current gossip that the sale of a part of the Oregon Short Line to Senator Clark by the Union Pacific is merely a blind to conceal the fact that Mr. Harriman was building another line from Salt Lake to the Pacific coast.

The San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad is in no way parallel to the Central Pacific. It is the third side of a triangle, the base of which extends from San Pedro to San Francisco, 500 miles. At the western end it will compete with the Santa Fé for the fruit carrying trade of the California valleys, routed east.

It is a matter of common knowledge in western railroad circles that all specifications for rails, equipment, and rolling stock for the San Pedro road have been approved by General Manager Bankcroft of the Union Pacific. The road is being built to Harriman specifications and ultimately will be made a part of the Harriman system.

Other Notes of the Railroads.

The Rock Island yesterday announced the withdrawal of its fast California train, the Golden State limited, and the last train will leave Chicago today. During the summer the Rock Island's California service will consist of a daily train by way of the El Paso route, carrying standard and tourist sleeping cars and dining car through to Los Angeles and San Francisco; also a daily train, Chicago to San Francisco, by way of Colorado. The service by way of the Rio Grande route will be supplemented by the Rocky Mountain limited service, which makes close connections at Colorado gateways with similar service for Pacific coast points.

Traffic officials of the western roads met here yesterday for the purpose of giving effect to the agreement which was reached in New York last week for a restoration of sugar rates. New Orleans will have a differential rate of 11 cents on 100 pounds on shipments of sugar from New York to Missouri river points and beyond, under the rate charged by the direct all rail lines from the east.

Lake Geneva summer service will be inaugurated by the Chicago and Northwestern on Sunday, May 29.

WHERE WAS COPERNICUS BORN?

School Board Will Be Asked to Settle Dispute Between Trustee Kuflewski and Cooley.

The board of education will be asked to settle a dispute between Trustee W. A. Kuflewski and Supt. E. G. Cooley as to the birthplace of Nikolaus Copernicus, for whom a school was named last week at the solicitation of Mr. Kuflewski. The latter maintains Copernicus was a Pole and the superintendent that he was born in Thorn, Prussia.

SUIT HATS The New Idea in Millinery.

This new idea is developing with a rapidity that promises it a period of widespread popularity, lasting throughout the spring and summer. A hat for every suit is the dictate of fashion—a hat that will harmonize in color and effect the same as gloves, neckwear, or any other accessory.

Fourth Floor South Room.

In our New Suit Hat Section we have kept pace with this unusually heavy demand, and it is largely through our efforts that these new styles have been so popularly established.

The displays today and tomorrow will be especially bright and attractive with great varieties of these popular hats in all the newest plain colors and the prettiest combinations of spring shades.

Prices—$6.75, $8.00 and $10.00.

The Manhattan, $10.00—A splendid type of the New Suit Hat; black, white, navy and castor.
